Hydro Strike 'Unavoidable'

2,200 Linemen Poised

VANCOUVER (CP) —A strike by 2,200 B.C. Hydro linemen is unavoidable and it could be a long one, an official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said Sunday.

Labor Minister James Chabot said today that while he "views the situation with alarm," he would not use Bill 33 "at the present time."

The government's action will depend on whether the IBEW initiates a total walkout, Chabot said. He also said the labor department has no further plans to find a way of getting Hydro and the union back to the bargaining table.

Though he would set no time for a strike start, union negotiator Doug Cronk said:

STRIKE PLANS

"We have no choice now but to strike, and we're looking at one soon. When we start, our actions will be predicated on the support we have behind us (from other labor organizations)".

He said the electrician's union has strike plans all set

Barrett Firmly In Saddle

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett wanted a strong show of unity from his party's 1971 convention and he says he got it.

"The unity of this convention indicates that this party for the first time in 35 years is united both psychologically and politically in a way that it represents a positive alternative to those foolish, wasteful and uneconomic policies centred around a small group of men whose homes are in Victoria," Barrett said following his re-election by acclamation as NDP leader.

Not only was Barrett re-elected without a fight, but he also won firm control of the party's executive, taking 12 out of 19 positions. The three-day convention ended Sunday at the University of British Columbia.

HAYNES DEFEATED

Several federation-backed candidates did win executive posts, but Haynes' defeat surprised even Barrett's supporters and left the labor leader solidly in the background of NDP internal politics for at least another year.

Haynes issued a repeated string of "no comments" when asked by reporters to discuss his defeat. The Waffle decided to censure Barrett, but this had more of a "sour grapes" tone than a policy statement against his views.

TWO SPEECHES

Barrett talked about the convention in political, rather than policy language. Like Haynes, he too stayed mostly in the background, speaking to the 430 delegates only twice, and then only for brief periods.

From a strictly political viewpoint, it was Barrett's convention. Now that the Waffle has censured him, no one will be able to call Barrett a radical. With Haynes in the background and a pro-Barrett slate running the executive, Barrett will be able to continue his task of

SIGHTSEERS WORSE THAN VOLCANO

FORNAZZO, Sicily (AP)—Angry farmers on the slopes of Mount Etna complained today that the thousands of sightseers watching the eruption were doing more damage than the lava.

Crowds trampled the vineyards and climbed to vantage perches in the fruit trees to see the fiery spectacle.

The lava still was pouring down the mountain side on the 56th day of Etna's second worst eruption this century.

Census Called Sexist Oppression

MONTREAL (CP)—The federal government's 1971 census form is an insult to women and a prime example of "sexist oppression," says the Women's Action Movement of Montreal.

The movement is urging women and sympathetic men not to complete the form and to return it blank to Ottawa.

In a statement released today, the movement criticizes the section of the census form which defines the husband as head of the household.

Noting that the census does not include housework in unpaid hours worked "in the operation of a family business or farm," the statement said:

By PAT DUFOUR

In the toughest race since the first Swiftsure was sailed in 1930, one of the smallest boats has won the biggest trophy of them all.

On handicap, Tom O'Brien's Cal 2-30 Hooligan of the Seattle Yacht Club today was named over-all winner, taking the Swiftsure Trophy and the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club Trophy for Division IV.

In the first hours of the race Saturday morning more than a quarter of the 171 vessels were forced to quit.

Mauled by gale-force winds that whipped up angry tide rips, at least six boats lost their masts shortly after the race began, others suffered gear failure or were crippled with seasick crews.

Of the 44 boats that retired, 35 were in Swiftsure and the others, the 75½-mile Juan de Fuca.

LOSING SPARS

Among those losing their spars were two Buchan-built boats, John Buchan's Warrior and Lawrence Robinson's Gamin, both of Corinthian Yacht Club.

Swiftsure veteran, Joseph Williams' Norwester broke her water tank, George Clark's Nubian was damaged in a collision and Don Lawson's Cubara of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, her halyards.

Survivors of the punishing first hours of the race went on to face the usual ordeal in the night and early hours of Sunday. They flogged around in long, heavy swells, made sloppier by the lack of wind.

The first boat to reach the Swiftsure Bank and round the mark vessel, HMCS Fundy, was George Schubert's Pemaquid of the Seattle Yacht Club. She wins the Royal Canadian Trophy for the first boat rounding the outward mark and the Ocean Cement Co. Trophy for winner of Division 1.

It was a long haul home for the Swiftsure boats. Lack of wind altered the positions of the leaders continously, giving a decided advantage to the smaller, light-displacement boats.

She went over the line at 8:39 p.m., Sunday, being followed by Joe Pollack's Minsette of Rose City, Ore. and Pemaquid.

Veteran Royal Vancouver Yacht Club sailor Bonar Davis sailed a spectacular race in his Discovery 32 Hyak, designed by Vancouver marine architect Peter Hatfield, the man chosen to create Canada's entry in the next America's Cup.

He narrowly lost out to Hooligan for top place, coming second over-all and winning the Seattle Yacht Club Trophy for Division III.

Adventure In Juan de Fuca Race —See Page 17

Per Christoffersen, also of Royal Vancouver, repeated his trophy win of 1966, when he won his division in a Discovery 32. Sailing a C and C 45 this year, he ended fifth over-all and won the T. Eaton Company Trophy for Division II.

Winner of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club Trophy for Division IV was Don Brink's Tonic of the CYC, who came third over-all.

The first boat in the PHRF Division was Robert Connor Jr.'s Emeraude of CYC.

The first boat home and winner of IOR, Division I, in Juan de Fuca was D. S. Gibberd's Gypsy G of the West Vancouver Yacht Club. Gordie Hill's Ariki IV of the same club won the IOR, Division II trophy and the first boat in PHRF racing was Te-Pah, skippered by Roger Oldham of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association.

Preliminary Session Held For Victoria BNA Talks

A spokesman for Mr. Turner's office said the discussions were private and no communique should be expected at the conclusion, probably Tuesday.

Informants said the meeting was to canvass the views of the provinces on the possibility of agreeing in Victoria to a formula to amend the British North America Act of 1867 in Canada.

Mr. Turner recently conferred with British constitutional authorities on how jurisdiction over the act might be transferred to Canada.

Prime Minister Trudeau and provincial premiers will meet in Victoria June 14 to continue the constitutional discussions. They last met here in February and tentatively agreed on a plan which they regarded as feasible for amending the BNA Act in Canada.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec was also in Ottawa today for talks with Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Bourassa attended Mr. Turner's meeting of provincial ministers as Quebec's minister of intergovernmental affairs.

Tax Office Bombed

SAIGON (AP) — A heavy explosion destroyed the Saigon tax office building today in Saigon. It apparently was set off by a bomb.

Initial reports from rescue workers said five Vietnamese were killed and 12 others injured.

'OUR KIND OF RACE' BECAME CONFUSED

Foam, Spray and Broken Spars

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Aboard Frank Bush's tough Warrior class sloop Concubine we welcomed the stiff winds that damaged several boats and sent many more home with other ills in the first few hours of the 1971 Swiftsure.

"Nothing trivial, I hope," was the favorite joking remark we offered each time one of the competition fell back around us with gear or stomach failure. We were in reach of the leaders.

But the spectacular display of foam, spray and broken spars seen also by landward Swiftsure watchers Saturday morning was only an illusory introduction to about 30 more hours of the most demoralizing kind of weather a yacht racer encounters.

What looked like "our kind of weather" became a big, careless, confused slop the closer we came to the edge of the Pacific and the turning point on the Swiftsure Banks 75 miles west of Victoria.

The highlight of that long, deadly night was the few moments when a huge ocean liner, blazing with lights and luxury, swished past on its way to romantic ports of call, unaware of the woozy misery of six men in a small boat far below.

Otherwise, it was a matter of worrying over the throbbing, barely lit freighters that passed in every direction, and hoping that the time we gained on that first brisk windward leg was not being swallowed up completely by the quick light boats that can move in light airs.

When the dawn finally produced its great grey expanse, we still had some painfully slow miles to go to round Fundy, the minesweeper anchored on Swiftsure Bank, and it seemed that everywhere on the horizon we could see sails beating back down the strait.

Then as the Pacific rollers built up over the 19-fathom shallows, we had a hair-raising jib and sail change around the Fundy which was one moment towering above us, and the next moment eye-to-eye at bridge level.

When the spinnaker was set for an 18-hour run home, we hoped hopelessly for a brisk and that meetings will be held with other groups this week.

"When we go, there's some question of how long it'll be before we're back," he said, adding, "it could be a long hot summer."

A B.C. Hydro spokesman in Vancouver explained to the Times that there are several categories of linemen's work. He said they maintain the system, repair breaks as they occur and in some cases make installations.

He said the electrical workers union includes some key people so far as keeping the system operational is concerned.

FIRST EFFECTS

A union spokesman said the primary effects would probably be the shutting down of certain Hydro operations by picketing. He said the Mica Dam site in southeastern B.C. might be singled out for such picketing.

The union spokesman said Hydro's electrical operations could continue without striking workers unless there was some sort of breakdown.

Talks between the union and Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum broke down Friday after the union rejected the same Hydro offered its office and technical workers—21¾ per cent over three years.

"The other unions have no bearing on us," Mr. Cronk said.

"Shrum is saying he'll bargain with somebody else for our wages. We'll never buy that principle and nor would Dr. Shrum if his wage was concerned."

"We wouldn't take it if the officer workers had been offered 40 per cent."

The union's proposal is for 29½ per cent over two years.

The negotiations started last December and the last contract expired March 31. On May 21 the union served 72 hours strike notice.

SECURITY ISSUE

Mr. Cronk said that apart from money, the union is concerned over a Hydro move to abolish isolation allowances, and over job security.

He said the union has asked for independent mediators in the conflict because it feels the provincial mediation commission "can't represent us."

A strike by the linemen is not likely to cut off all power in th province, Mr. Cronk said, "but it could sure as hell close industry down pretty quickly."

In a statement issued after the Friday talks, Dr. Shrum said:

"We made it very clear to the senior officers of the local union of the IBEW that there was no way we could give them a higher percentage wage settlement than that already accepted by or recommended and being voted upon by other unions of B.C. Hydro and by other locals of IBEW in B.C.

Colwood Arena Fate To Be Decided Tonight

Recreation supporters in the unincorporated area west of Greater Victoria will seek tonight to rescue plans for an arena, curling rink and senior citizens centre in Colwood.

Attending the meeting will be representatives of the recently-appointed arena commission and the joint centennial committee.

Asked if construction tenders well above the Capital Regional District's bylaw amount mean the death of the arena, Colwood regional board director Dick Emery said today, "no, I don't think the people of Langford, Colwood and Belmont Park will let it die. The community out here usually sees a thing through."

westerly to push us down the the long rollers. They seemed mountainous at times but by a dispassionate calculation we measured them at no more than 10 or 11 feet. The effect even of this kind of sea is remarkable, because nearby yachts disappear for long moments.

BRILLIANT SUN

Under the brilliant sun, we strained our eyes looking through binoculars at sail numbers, hoping to see boats nearby that carry handicaps, higher than Concubine's IOR rating of 28.2. But many of them were the small designs, inching ahead to advantage in the drowsy wind.

The big worry now was to make it through Race Passage before the wind turned against us shortly after 10 p.m. Possibly lengthening our race by several more hours. Committing ourselves finally to go through, we picked up a breeze and scudded through at 7 knots as the water began to churn at the tide change.

Only one of our little "pack" of a half dozen boats got by us as we coaxed every last bit of speed out of Concubine during the last two hours towards the lighted Victoria skyline, crossing the line just past midnight.

We didn't expect to win, but certainly hoped to get a reasonable place, which we did. Twelfth in our class, forty-second over-all.

The low bid on the Juan de Fuca Arena was $921,200 while the regional district had provided $750,000 in a bylaw, of which about $695,000 was available for actual construction and the rest for fees and other items.

Emery said the "whole package," on the basis of tenders received, will require $1.1 million "so we need $350,000 to $400,000 more to do the whole thing properly."

MORE MONEY

One suggestion for more money, he said, is selling bonds interest-free for the first four years to keep arena costs to under 3 mills.

Another thought was a new referendum providing more money. This, however, would not allow us of the federal government's low-interest make-work loan plans because there would not be time to finish the building by next March, he said.

Asked if one solution is a stripped-down ice surface, Emery said the people voted on a referendum which included curling and senior citizens use as well "so how can we decide to do one without the other?"

Some solutions would also require approval of Municipal

But as with all NDP gatherings, policy was important. A new panel discussion system permitted more detailed debate on the 10 policy areas the convention decided to consider.

Past conventions debated everything from the floor. The results used to be long delays and too much procedural wrangling.

TWO DAYS

The most important panels were on taxation, resources, health and labor. After two days of talk, all panels boiled down their resolutions for final approval or rejection by all delegates. This is what the convention decided:

Delegates adopted a taxation policy which, if ever put into law, would significantly hike corporation taxes. The party is now committed to enact legislation which would require corporations to open their books to workers and government.

Companies which say they cannot profit under proposed tax scales would have to prove this. Those which could not afford the new taxes would face government takeovers.

FAIR SHARE

This policy was adopted because the party decided B.C. citizens have not received a fair share of corporate tax revenues. Delegates felt a taxation policy would be cheaper than a straightforward nationalization plant. Open books would enable the government to construct correct tax schemes for every industry.

Because the right to tax is more acceptable than the right to take over industry, corporations would look like lawbreakers if they refused to open their books. This would put them in a position identical to labor unions which defy the Mediation Commission Act.

The resources panel won approval for resolutions encouraging more "labor intensive" use of resources and deceptralization of the ways resources are developed.

Under NDP policies, resource development industries would pay "economic rent" in the form of increased royalties in B.C. under NDP policy.

The party created a standing committee on health to advise MLAs about the paper which suggests ways to cut B.C. health costs by about $100 million a year.

END FEES

This would be done by eliminating the fee-for-service system of doctors' incomes and replacing it with per-patient per-year payment method. Doctors would work in group practice to a greater extent than now exists. Emphasis would shift from cure to prevention through nutrition programs. All health service delivery systems would be brought under one ministry. And doctors gradually would be redistributed throughout the province for geographic balance.

Delegates gave the NDP a mandate to establish the "closest possible ties to the labor movement." This is a "motherhood" resolution, and it was adopted in almost identical form in 1970.

But the labor panel introduced it again this year because of dissatisfaction with the executive's lackluster efforts to effect that policy.

REAL ROLE

This resolution indicates the strength of the party's pro-labor group. Despite Barrett's coolness to the B.C. Fed, the NDP must someday determine labor's real role with the party.

Other labor resolutions committed the NDP to a shorter work week, more holiday pay and time, and end to the Mediation Commission Act and working to organize rallies of the unemployed.

Delegates defeated a motion which would have required the NDP to have conventions every other year. Those who wanted biennial conventions said annual ones are too costly. Those in favor of annual conventions said policy must be debated and revised frequently.

The convention did not rule on the controversial education panel resolution which called for aid to private schools.

The issue was referred to the party's new standing committee on education. But the party did adopt a resolution calling for voluntary high school attendance.

Other significant resolutions called for a guaranteed income, a provincial department of environmental quality and planning, a diverse public housing program, and enactment of a Canadian Bill of Rights as part of a "Constitution of Canada."

UNDERSTAND

Barrett says he does not anticipate a provincial election before 1972, but in his second speech to the convention he said:

"I hope our enemies underestimate us and I hope that all of us understand that with some feeling of sincerity, willingness to understand other peoples' points of view, willingness to listen to other people outside this party, that there is a great opportunity for the province to turn to us and give us a chance."

Barrett Censured By Waffle Group

Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Provincial New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett was censured Saturday by his party's Waffle group.

The move came a day after the group decided not to challenge Barrett for the party's leadership at the 1971 convention in Vancouver. The Waffle group, the NDP's wing of members who want the party to adopt a straightforward socialist platform, approved the censure motion to demonstrate its disenchantment with Barrett's "right-wing, anti-labor positions."

Wafflers voted 34 to 26 to adopt this motion:

"The B.C. Waffle decision May 28 not to run a leadership candidate against Dave Barrett does not signify any shift in our strong criticism of the right-wing, anti-labor positions taken by Barrett, especially his attacks on the B.C. Federation of Labor and the movement of the unemployed. The only way the B.C. NDP can ove forward is to fully support labor in its struggles."

TOO VAGUE

One delegate in the Waffle caucus said Barrett should be criticized, but the motion was too vague. He said its phrases of "right-wing" and "anti-labor" do not spell out the policy differences between the Waffle and Barrett.

Another delegate said Barrett's mistakes in the past should be forgiven and that he is the best leader the party can have today.

Delegates in favor of the motion said the Waffle group will mean nothing to the NDP if it does not show where it differs with the more conservative elements within the party.

Those in favor of the motion said Barrett should have led the demonstration of unemployed persons before the Legislative Bukldings in January instead of remaining inside the House listening to the Throne Speech.

NDP WEAKENED

They also said Barrett has attacked the B.C. Fed and weakened the NDP's role as the leader of labor in the figiht for socialism. But one former union man who now runs a small business said the NDP should not get too close to the B.C. Fed. He said many businessmen would vote NDP if they believed it was not in an alliance with big labor.

Interviewed after the vote, Barrett said he was "indifferent" to the Waffle's move. Throughout the convention Barrett maintained the Waffle has failed to concentrate on policy in a way which stimulates genuine discussion within the NDP.

To qualify, the workers must be high school graduates or university students.

The program has been approved by federal Opportunities for Youth.

SIDNEY SHIPWRIGHT WINS COUNCIL SEAT

A Sidney shipwright with 13 years' experience on Oak Bay council topped the polls Saturday in a Sidney council by-election.

Fred Robinson, 9372 Maryland, received 284 votes. His closest opponent was Carl Anderson with 236. Others were Dudley Johnson, 72; John Pedlow, 59; Bernard Ethier, 46, and Alfred Knudson, 34. Thirty per cent of the 2,400 eligible voters cast ballots.

Robinson takes the seat vacated in April by Herb Perry, and will complete the two-year term which expires December, 1972.

Four-Way Split Predicted In Today's Federal Byelections

By DAVE McINTOSH

The ridings are Brant in Ontario and Chambly and Trois-Rivieres in Quebec, previously held by the Liberals, and Central Nova in Nova Scotia, held by a Conservative.

The results could split four ways. Each of the four political parties in the Commons has a good chance of taking at least one constituency.

The four byelections probably represent the biggest test at the polls for the Trudeau government until the next general election, which could come in October but appears more likely for June next year, at this stage.

In the six byelections since the Trudeau government was elected in 1968, the Liberals won two Frontenac and Labelle in Quebec, the Conservatives Lisgar in Manitoba and the NDP three, Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands and Comox-Alberni in British Columbia and Selkirk in Manitoba.

JOBLESS MAIN ISSUE

The main issue in the byelections has been unemployment.

The Liberals say they hope and expect to retain the Ontario and Quebec seats and that they have made Central Nova a toss-up.

The NDP claims it will win Brant, Social Credit that it will take Trois-Rivieres and the Conservatives that they will retain Central Nova.

All parties say Chambly will remain Liberal, though the NDP is making a spirited fight there.

Current Commons standing is: Liberal 149, Conservatives 71, NDP 23, Social Credit 13, Independent 2, Independent Liberal 1, vacant 5—Total 264.

The fifth vacancy is the Saskatchewan riding of Assiniboia where the government declined to call a byelection until after the June 23 provincial general election.

Only in Central Nova was there a chance of inclement weather for the voting with a dull, rainy day in prospect. Clear skies, bright sun and 70- to-75 degree temperatures were the order for the other three ridings.

Central Nova got its heat Saturday night.

STANFIELD CAMPAIGNS

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield called on the voters to serve notice on the federal government that "you are sick and tired of its ineffectiveness . . ."

And Energy Minister J. J. Greene and Privy Council President Allan McEachen said the province needs another Liberal member for better representation in Ottawa.

The vacancies in the two Quebec ridings were caused by the deaths of Liberal MPs. In the case of Brant and Central Nova, the sitting members were appointed to the bench.

In 1968, the election results were:

RESULTS

First significant voting returns in today's by-elections are expected by 6 p.m. Polls in Nova Scotia close 4 p.m. and in the other three ridings at 5 p.m.

Chambly Bernard Pilot, Liberal, 22,767; G. H. Lassonde, Conservative, 6,733; G. M. St. Amour, NDP, 3,394; M. Mignault, Social Credit, 1,431.

Trois-Rivieres J. A. Mongrain, Liberal, 17,592; Gilles Gauthier, Conservative, 10,507; E. Frechette, Social Credit, 7,305; Philippe Daviault, NDP, 1,724.

Brant Lawyer Bob McIntosh, Liberal; history teacher Derek Blackburn, NDP; insurance agent Emory Knill, Conservative; Alcide J. Hamelin, Social Credit.

Chambly Contractor Yvon L'Heureux, Liberal; union representative Emile Boudreau, NDP; Leopold Hamel, Conservative.

Trois-Rivieres—Realtor Claude Lajoie, Liberal; company executive Mrs. Therese Landry, Conservative; store owner Real Lemay, Social Credit.

The NDP is not running a candidate in Trois-Rivieres and Social Credit has none in Chambly.

Number of eligible voters in the four ridings is 221,827—a total of 58,439 in Brant, 64,240 in Chambly, 39,400 in Central Nova and 59,748 in Trois-Rivieres.

Tory, NDP Quebec Policy Lack Bodes Ill for Fall Election

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — If Prime Minister Trudeau called a general election this fall—and no one is placing bets either way—he would catch both the Conservatives and the New Democrats with their Quebec policies down.

The Conservatives will attempt to articulate their stand on Quebec during an October convention here. And at the recent NDP leadership convention here, it was decided to let a committee frame a platform on Quebec and Confederation.

NDP Leader David Lewis said it was hoped to have these policies developed in time for the next general election. But party sources say there is a little chance of the job being completed by early fall. The NDP convention agreed to let a committee examine the situation after it dealt with a series of conflicting resolutions regarding Quebec's status in Confederation.

It had been a tough convention problem for the party, itself strongly federalist.

PROBLEM SINCE 1968

With the Conservatives, the articulating of party policy regarding Quebec has been a problem since the 1968 general election when leader Robert Stanfield was saddled with the "deux-nations" expression. It was difficult to define against the simple "One-Canada" slogan of the Liberals.

Recently, the constitutional issue resulted in the resignation of the party's Quebec president, along with one of its four Quebec MPs—Roch LaSalle of Joliette.

There had been hopes that a recent Quebec City convention of the party's provincial wing would produce clear-cut stands on constitutional questions. But while some resolutions were approved in this direction, and Mr. Stanfield himself expressed some views, the questions won't be settled until the October meeting.

Mr. Stanfield said in Quebec that a credible policy must allow for both cultural and regional differences. He said he would be willing to consider a redivision of powers in such fields as welfare and cable television.

FEW SPECIFICS

While calling for an acceptable accommodation between the "rigid federalism" of the Liberals asd the strongly-independent voices within the Quebec wing of the party, Mr. Stanfield did not deal with many specifics.

In October, say party sources, an attempt will be made to mesh successfully the views of the French- and English-speaking groups into a nationally acceptable platform.

If an election were called in the meantime, it acknowledged the party would face the same difficulties of 1968 when cumbersome explanations of a complicated subject didn't appear to stack up well against the simple One-Canada Liberal slogan.

The NDP, while arguing that a committee examination of the issue is a reasonable and realistic course to follow, also acknowledge that campaigning Liberals could score political points by distorting difficulties and delays in producing policies.

MPs NEXT TARGET IN HELLYER CAMPAIGN

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Paul Hellyer, who quit the Liberal party a week ago and resigned a federal cabinet position two years ago, said Saturday he hopes to drum up support from other members of Parliament for his newly-formed political movement, Action Canada.

Mr. Hellyer said in an interview he has not discussed the movement with other MP's yet, but he hopes some will eventually join him.

"Our procedure," he said, "is that we would like to hear from their constituents rather than approach them directly."

He said he received "extremely good reaction" to Action Canada during a trip last week to Vancouver.

Mr. Hellyer was in Simcoe to celebrate his parents' 55th wedding anniversary.

Shake Hands With a Giant

WITH HIS COMMAND OF THE language, and memories of his childhood and later employment in China, Mr. Chester Ronning may be expected to hold particularly warm feelings for the Chinese people, and these feelings would naturally be reflected in his descriptions of life in that country today. But the first report of the former Canadian diplomat which appeared in this newspaper last Friday conveyed a sincerity and matter-of-factness that carried conviction.

His accounts of the temper and attitude of the common people, based on his renewed acquaintance with them during the past month, indicate a vast change in the intangible social and community spirit of China that matches the great changes Mr. Ronning saw in the production facilities of the country.

The West for many years has derived most of its impressions of China from observers-at-a-distance, from reporters who questioned refugees, from anti-Communist commentators and similar sources. Much of this has been Peking's own fault. Favorable reports were usually from suspected Communist sympathizers and assessed in that light. Now, with China opening up to visitors from other countries, we may expect to receive a much wider spectrum of opinions on the Chinese, and somewhere along that band of evidence we may establish an area of reasonable truth. It will be a much better body of factual evidence than we have had before, and the conclusions to be drawn will certainly be much more favorable than those which have heretofore prevailed.

Later articles by Mr. Ronning no doubt will delve into greater detail. But the salient point of his first instalment is that "Chinese, after all, are people, and the sooner people from other countries realize this the better it will be for all the world." He writes of the enthusiasm which he found everywhere, of the pride of the people in what they have accomplished, and of the great reforms that have taken place.

Increased production with correspondingly better-living standards rates high in the list, along with freedom from the hazards of civil war and terrorism by disbanded troops or bandit gangs; distribution of land; and stabilization of food prices and inflation control. These improvements apparently have brought a new security to the common people and a new attitude toward their country. It has traditionally been said that the people of China were not a nation but a collection of separated provinces. Mao Tse-tung appears to have reduced those barriers and coalesced the population into the world's largest single political entity.

It hardly needs to be said that this must have been accomplished with hardship to many people, and many false starts. It must be true, too, that there are many inequalities and hardships still to be found in the vast mass of China. Perhaps the most damning indictment is that they are not like us — and this comparison must be assessed in the light of our own situation.

But regardless of inevitable shortcomings — and what country does not have them — China apparently has made great progress along almost every avenue of nationhood. If that progress is uneven and not yet completed it is no reason for not trying to establish closer contacts with the people in order to gain a clearer body of knowledge as to just what the new situation is. Mr. Ronning can do much to give us that clarification, and he should be one of many who in future days will shed more light on the decreasingly inscrutable East.

China should be brought into the world community as a willing and co-operative nation, if only to gain its support for necessary measures to save the planet from ruination by one means or another. We will have much to gain and little to lose by encouraging better relations.

". . . did we leave the ship because it was sinking or is the ship sinking because we left . . .?"

EGYPTIAN TURMOIL — By JAMES RESTON

Outsiders Wait While Sadat's Dust Settles

FOR the time being the U.S. Government is visibly pleased and the Soviet government is obviously troubled by the political upheaval in Cairo and the emergence of President Anwar el-Sadat as the dominant figure in Egypt, but the struggle for power there is far from over.

Reston

Secretary of State William P. Rogers established a good personal relationship with Sadat during his recent Middle Eastern trip, and would clearly like to see a quick interim settlement of the Suez canal question which would strengthen Sadat's internal position, but Israel is not interested in sudden diplomacy or in making concessions merely to help the Egyptian president.

On the facts of the situation in Cairo, U.S. and Israeli officials here seem to be in general agreement, they agree that Sadat pulled off a major coup or counter-coup against his political antagonists. They do not think the divisions within the Cairo government were between pro and anti-Soviet factions or between those favoring and those opposing an interim Suez agreement with Israel. They see it primarily as a personal fight for control of the Egyptian government with Sadat winning the critical first round.

In the process, however, Sadat was forced to arrest more cabinet members and alienate more opposition factions than he would have preferred. He stirred up considerable anxiety in the Soviet government, whose president is now in Cairo, and he must now hold the loyalty of the armed forces and reassure the Soviets if he is to consolidate his power.

Accordingly, Sadat has recently hardened his diplomatic line on the Suez question, apparently to reassure the restive Egyptian officers, and has been pressing the Nixon administration to use its influence to get Israel to agree to an interim Suez settlement on Cairo's terms.

Israeli officials, however, are not prepared to change their negotiating position in the hope of influencing the internal politics of Cairo. They do not think President Nikolai V. Podgorny and the Soviet delegation has rushed to Cairo to get rid of Sadat, but to avoid a chaotic situation in which their vast investment of men and military equipment would be endangered.

Israelis Pleased

The Israelis are pleased that Sadat survived the conspiracy against him, but the realities of the military and diplomatic situation, as they see them, remain about the same.

That is to say, Soviet power is deeply entrenched in Egypt and is in no danger of being removed. Moscow wants order in Egypt and the canal opened, and therefore will probably be glad to see the negotiations with Israel go forward as before.

U.S. officials are not so sure about this. They are not putting pressure on Israel to give Sadat a quick victory, but the Podgorny visit surprised them, and they are not so confident that Moscow or the Egyptian officer corps will adjust to the new situation in Cairo if Sadat and the Israelis do not reach a Suez compromise fairly soon.

So there is a difference at least of approach between Washington and Tel Aviv in this delicate situation. Israel is opposed to any Egyptian military presence on the east bank of the canal, even if "symbolic." They are opposed further to Sadat's insistence that any interim settlement of the Suez problem should be regarded as merely the first of several steps leading to the eventual withdrawal of all Isroeli troops to the pre-Six-Day-War frontiers. And they want a binding and unlimited cease-fire.

In short, Washington is urging speed in negotiations and is leaning on Israel to settle, though as yet ever so slightly, while Israel is urging caution and a policy of "judicious leaving alone" until things settle down and the new political atmosphere becomes a little clearer.

In this situation, as Rogers discovered in Cairo, the absence of an influential American ambassador in Egypt is undoubtedly a handicap. He has a Foreign Service officer there who is active and well-informed, but Rogers and Sadat discussed the prospects of re-establishing diplomatic relations, though no decision was reached on this during the visit.

Nixon is understood to have been in touch with Sadat since the Cairo crisis and is known to be as eager as Rogers for a Suez settlement, but he cannot force a settlement on Israel and until the Podgorny visit is over, nobody is likely to intervene further in the discussions.

For World Peace

OVER THE PAST 25 YEARS the world's peace has been endangered 50 times by force which has presented the clearest and most pressing challenge to the usefulness of the United Nations. Canadians, though, recognizing the failings of the world organization, have developed a special dedication to Section 1 of Article 43 of the U.N. Charter. It reads: "All Members of the United Nations, in order to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements, armed forces, assistance, and facilities . . . necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security."

On May 21, before the Commons Committee on External Affairs and National Defence, spokesmen for the United Nations Association in Canada referred to the 1970 white paper on foreign policy as being "strangely silent" about the steps to preserve world order. The Association complained about the government's complacency with the existing U.N. machinery.

In short, the Association wants to put life into the peace-keeping capacities of the U.N. in order to cope with "brush fire" wars: It foresees a permanent, specialized role for Canada as an agent of the U.N. and proposes a military college in Canada for that purpose; the college could also instruct its candidates in the arts of mediation. In the words of Dr. J. A. Gibson, vice-president of the association: "This may be a time for novel approaches to the solution of disputes and enforcement of conclusions."

As a practical symbol of Canadian idealism such a college could serve world peace. Under neutral Canadian auspices and with major Canadian participation the college might become a beacon in the stormy international seas.

An Alternative Route?

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT has been looking into possible rail extensions in northern B.C. and the Yukon and there is a suggestion that a northern projection of steel to Prudhoe Bay on the North Slope of Alaska could solve the problem of transportation of the vast oil resources there.

Officials in the United States, including Alaska, however, have made no representations on the subject to Ottawa. This was revealed on May 25 in the Commons by the Minister of Transport, Mr. Donald Jamieson.

If not the sole solution to the oil carrying problem the use of rail might prove at least a partial remedy. A rail network serving the Far North could open up the area to the exploitation of natural resources and the establishment of communities. The building of Canadian rail lines in the Yukon and northern B.C., and American lines in Alaska, could be feasible economic, technological and administrative projects, providing Canadian interests are protected. Prospects in the far northwest are challenging and should be highly rewarding.

FROM REGINA — By JAMES H. GRAY

Twisted Party Lines on the Prairies

THE tone of Premier Thatcher's election call is being widely interpreted as a move toward polarizing prairie politics into parties of the left and right. Signs of similar drifts are increasing in both Manitoba and Alberta. There is only one problem — defining the right and the left. The terms are as difficult to nail down as "a country mile" or the expression "not bad."

Gray

Premier Thatcher's Liberals are making organized labor and economy-paralyzing strikes the issue of the election. He wants a mandate to set up labor courts which will compel settlements of disputes short of strikes. With the Tories putting up only token candidates, Thatcher's only opposition will be the alleged left-leaning New Democratic Party.

With Thatcher drawing his labor legislation straight out of Benito Mussolim's corporate state, and fighting the NDP, he surely seems definable as extreme right. But the NDP has moved so far away from the mild socialism of the Regina Manifesto that left-wing has become a courtesy title.

Courting Farmers

On the other hand, in his attack on big union power, Thatcher will be courting the support of the Saskatchewan farm movement which also has its roots in the far left. The wheat growers have a pathological hatred of Winnipeg Grain Exchange type free enterprise in wheat marketing. The Wheat Board is their baby. The widespread co-operative enterprise of Saskatchewan is regarded by Grain Exchange free enterprisers as unadulterated socialism. And that is Thatcher's power base, just as the NDP relies on urban labor for the bulk of its votes.

There is, however, nothing much left-wing about the trades unions Thatcher is against. Ideologically, the railway unions, which periodically halt the flow of Saskatchewan wheat to market, are about as conservative as they come. And so are the grain handlers who strike with ports loaded with grain boats. And so are the building trades with which Thatcher collided last year.

Despite farm antipathy toward unions, will Thatcher's anti-union campaign have much political relevance for the sod-busting vote? There is room for doubt. Right now the farmers are plagued with fears about the survial of wheat-growing as a viable way of life.

Few of the measures being advanced by the Ottawa Liberals are politically palatable. The task force report from the ivory towers is a federal Liberal political blunder of the first order. The task force urged maintenance of small annual carry-overs even with year-end fire sales of surpluses.

Wheat Surplus Looming

This year the wheat growers have planted near-record acreages to their favorite crop. With any kind of decent weather another huge wheat surplus is in the offing, and one that will find markets only with difficulty. Minor subsidies to tide the growers over pending sales are regarded with contempt.

All this is in the federal jurisdiction. Thatcher is as critical as the NDP. But the latter hope, by branding federal mesures as Liberal measures, to splatter Thatcher with the outfall from their oratorical dead cats.

Meanwhile in Manitoba the Grits and Tories are frantically trying to put a coalition together to present a united front against Ed Schreyer's NDP government for the next election. The flirtation which seemed destined for consummation is opposed by both federal Liberals and Conservatives. It will cut the ground from under both parties in the federal ridings.

At first glance, Manitoba is also dividing into right and left. Again the distinction blurs. Aside from bringing in compulsory car insurance Schreyer has really done very little differently than the Conservatives would have done.

As for Schreyer's car insurance, it has turned out to be somewhat more free-enterprise than that operated by the Thatcher government in Saskatchewan.

In Alberta, the provincial Liberal party is disappearing into the maw of the Strom Socred machine. But what this does to the coloration of the political mix in Alberta is beyond discerning. Under E. C. Manning, the Socreds always talked conservatively while putting their welfare state together.

The Progressive Conservatives are now the only opposition in Alberta. Like the Socred and Liberals, they are talkative free-enterprisers, and free-wheeling advocates of bigger and better and more expensive welfare state measures.

When, as has happened, a card carrying Liberal joins the NDP in Manitoba and his comrades in Alberta opt for Social Credit, Saskatchewan clearly has no monopoly on the spreading of political obfuscation.

Image Distortion

The little bit of Old England image — 1, the London bus, 2, the London barrow people, 3, authentic London taxi, combined with other developments — is giving our Canadian image a terrific beating. Why? ◊

— A question that needs answering — Where does a traditional image end and our Canadian image begin?

Does a traditional image take precedence over Canadian sensibilities? It would be a grave mistake to assume we are devoid of the finer feeling of life, especially our love of country, even though we are a bit reluctant to be heard. — Len Skelton, 4068 Grange Rd.

World Court Support

In the May 26 Times one of your leading articles, entitled "Planetary Pollution," suggested a world court as a help to solving this immense problem. May I suggest that anyone concerned in world affairs join the local branch of the World Federalists? Our aim is to strengthen the United Nations so that a world court could enforce its decisions, but only on questions which affect the whole world. U. Thant pleads with us to strengthen the UN by increased membership in WFC.

Anyone wishing to help in this way should contact me. — Mrs. K. D. Stone, 1573 Wilmot Place.

American Parade

I am writing to you in disgust after having just witnessed my first May Day Parade in many, many years.

During the entire length of the parade I saw but two prominently displayed Canadian flags; one of which was carried by an American high school band. School bands were another sore spot. If it had not been for Mt. Doug there would have been a poor show by Victoria and Greater Victoria school districts in comparison to Vancouver and Washington and Oregon — Oregon, no less, more than 800 miles away. Distances between floats, etc. was of secondary importance.

I might suggest a new name for the parade — American Day or Canadians supporting American Takeover Day Parade. Don't the Yanks control enough of Canada already? — R. F. Bethell, 4971 Cordova Bay.

Sandringham Challenge

I would like to say to your recent letter writer, Mr. Rookwood, that his comments respecting the Sandringham strike were quite in error. I happen to be a union member of recent standing at another private hospital in the city. The advent of the union was a good thing. No one pushed us into joining.

The working conditions in private hospitals should be the concern of the community as they are really community centres for elderly people. The Private Hospital and General Service Employees Union is seeking, though it has not yet achieved, a living wage for its members, which would not only be beneficial to the members and their families but would reflect well on the hospital industry itself.

Instead of attacking this type of program, persons like Mr. Rookwood should get behind it. The way things are now drifting the industry is gradually losing the esteem of the people.—(Mrs.) J. Dodge, 1220 Caledonia.

Taft Vindicated

Thank you for the article on May 25 "Good Grief, Taft Was Right." Why is it so surprising that Mr. Taft could be right?

Mr. Taft has long been a favorite of mine: a much-maligned man by the liberals of that day. Very few people today realized that Mr. Taft was the only member of the U.S. Congress in 1942 who strongly and publicly protested the forced immigration of U.S. citizens of Japanese descent from the Pacific coast. Most present-day liberals of today claim with moral indignation that this was wrong. The liberals of that day like the liberals of today lined themselves up with whatever was popular and currently "hip," lining themselves up with the great F.D.R. cruelly uprooting fine families in the name of freedom and democracy. This had obvious racial overtones. If the same thing had applied to U.S. citizens of German origin, fully one-third of the U.S. population would have been in detention camps.—H. J. Portelance, 1920 Sooke Rd.

Looking Back

From the Times of May 31, 1911:

The first aircraft exhibition to be given in Victoria was seen yesterday by a number of people at the Willows race track, where Aviator C. F. Walsh made a perfect flight in his own biplane, a machine built on similar lines to the Curtis-Farman machines, but having 4,000 square feet of plane canvas and being fitted with a 60 horse power engine. The feature of Walsh's exhibition was his perfect alighitment after a flight in the surrounding country for twenty minutes.

Love Begins in Flower Trap

By AMIT ROY

"Wanted, bride, fair complexion, beautiful graduate, 1.67 metres (5 ft. 6 in.), good health, for Chatterjee officer, Master of Commerce, Central Bank of India, age 30, 1.83 metres (6 ft.), well built. Enquire 33-4366."

This advertisement, strange to Western eyes, is routine in the columns of India's most respectable national newspaper.

It is, moreover, inevitable in a society puritanical by choice, where restrictive practices rule out the possibility of social life as we know it.

Girls tend to stay at home and help mother with the rice in the kitchen. At the most they may invade the local cinema as a formidable group and, if very daring, they might even risk an ice-cream in a public restaurant on the way back.

Such adventures would provide them with a talking point for months afterwards. The lads, on the other hand, spend their evenings in so-called coffee houses where they drink tea and discuss politics with much intensity and great authority.

This insistence on forcing boys and girls to stay good by keeping them apart leads frequently to the adoption of extreme measures. Brabourne College, Calcutta's most virtuous college for women, is surrounded by a grim looking wall decorated lavishly with barbed wire and broken Coca-Cola bottles.

How do people ever marry? Under normal circumstances, a marriage is arranged almost exclusively at parental level. Advertising comes only as a second move, the usual method being to scout around for a prospective candidate from among your own acquaintances.

Friends tend to pool their intellectual resources with a plentiful supply of advice, and help in locating as good a catch as they can find. Early correspondence might flower into an actual meeting between the parents.

It would then be an opportune moment for he bidding o bgin.

From start to finish, the whole operation is carried out with a ruthless, businesslike approach that would not be out of place in, say, an advertising agency.

One ought to remember that a boy or a girl is a saleable product with a definite market value depending on education, income, looks, family background, and so on.

Quite obviously no one is going to look twice at a girl who is known to have had a previous affair. One's reputation, at least, must be impeccable.

The Indian with a British university degree is a highly prized commodity, but there are two catches. If he is known to be fond of the occasional gin and tonic, it would knock his market value down by half. And if (God forbid) his relations with an English girl have been anything more than "not much snow really for this time of summer," the shares would hit rock bottom and the entree to respectable India would be forever lost.

The parents of the girl look for a young man of the right caste who would be able to provide their daughter with financial security. To this end, he may well have to produce evidence by displaying his pay slips, his bank account, his hire purchase agreements, etc. No detail is missed. To rope in the right man can be an expensive business.

But you have to remember than an Indian marriage is not so much a personal thing between two individuals; it is more a family do and the whole show must not only go off with a bang, it must be seen to go off with a bang. Desperate families borrow money they may never be able to pay back.

It is now recognized that young men and women who study together at college run the risk of falling in love and marrying.

But not to worry. Parents will move swiftly and smother the first stirrings of love.

Anyway separate common rooms, separate canteens (ostensibly to prevent overcrowding at lunchtime), and arrangements to sit separately during lectures make the pleasures, such as there may be, of studying together more of an illusion than a reality.

Paradoxically enough, the Indian is by nature romantic. As witness stands the Taj Mahal, the most immortal monument to love built by the Emperor Shah Jehan as a promise to his dying wife Mumtaz. But it has to be love within marriage.

The normal Indian would consider the Western form of marriage frightfully boring — the same old package deal consisting of the courting, the engagement, the marriage, and the bouncing baby — though not necessarily in that order.

Where is the mystery of discovering each other after marriage? And mystery is always an integral part of romance.

On their first night together, the couple sleep on a bed decked with flowers — often irreverently but accurately termed the "flower trap" — and then love is supposed to flourish!

Fighting your way through masses of roses, dahlias, sweetpeas, forget-me-nots, you at last get close enough to the finer points of the subject to inquire delicately, "What's your name, baby?" I am not entirely convinced that I am lapsing into facetiousness here.

The most devastating argument that can be brought in favor of Indian marriages is that they do work. When people marry after spending years of their youth in an emotional wilderness, they are likely to cling fiercely to each other. There is no second chance — divorce is virtually unknown — and it is the realization that rules out sexual experiment.

Democracy Only Works If Its Leaders Lead

"Democracy means government by discussion, but it is only effective if you can stop people talking."

—Clement Attlee

By JOHN NICHOL

The problem with the much-vaunted "participatory democracy" is that it is as difficult to attain as it is to pronounce.

The conventional wisdom of 1971 is that the institutions of government have become increasingly alienated from the wishes of the people, and that through the magic of "participatory democracy" the people will, in fact, "participate" in "democracy."

The irony of this is that the more a government attempts to involve "the people" in the process of government, the more inefficient and therefore the more unresponsive it becomes.

Perhaps this is simply an expression of the conflict between the efficiency of dictatorship and the inefficiencies of freedom. Mussolini made the trains run on time! Hitler built the autobahn! The democracies always seem to be going down for the third time!

Democracy has always been relatively inefficient. But the pace of change is accelerating, and the democratic process has somehow, if it is to survive, to adjust its techniques to cope with this pace of change. If it can't keep up, it becomes increasingly inefficient, in relative terms. As it becomes increasingly inefficient it becomes increasingly irrelevant. And then the cry goes up for "participatory democracy."

"Participatory democracy" implies that a government, once elected, has only a limited mandate to govern. It must use White Papers, committees, Royal Commissions, and plebiscites to find out what the people "really want" on each issue. It must put its toe in each policy bathtub before it climbs in. If the water is too hot, it runs in a little cold — or vice versa.

We have a classic example of this in the unending debate on Tax Reform. We started with the Carter Commission in 1962. Then we had the White Paper. Then we had a landslide of submissions from everyone from the Canadian Manufacturers Association to the Mud Lake Gerbil Breeders Society. The White Paper was gnawed on in the Committees of the House of Commons and the Senate. Their pre-digested output was sent back to the Department of Finance, which ground away for months to produce a document for submission to the cabinet. Hopefully, and with a no doubt mournful sigh, Mr. Benson will give birth to this marvellous infant in his budget speech in June. This is participatory democracy in action!

The alternative would have been for the cabinet to make a decision as to the tax reforms that it felt were sensible and bring in a budget. To do this, of course, it would have to listen to public opinion with a sensitive ear. Any dictatorial or irrational tendencies would be softened by the knowledge that (a) it must carry its own caucus, (b) it must carry public opinion, and (c) it must not give the Opposition an issue.

If we had not been chasing the mirage of "participatory democracy" this is what would have happened. The government might have had a great success, in which case the ministers would all be heroes. Or it might have produced a disaster — in which case the people would be preparing, quite rightly, to turf them all out; or might have done so before this. And in the meantime the people of Canada would at least have known for richer or poorer, in sickness or in health, what in hell was going on.

●

The essence of democracy is that power is delegated, FOR THE TIME BEING, to the elected leaders. The leaders in return must accept the RESPONSIBILITY and govern. The people MUST use their right to torpedo the leaders they don't like. The real "participatory democracy" lies in the vote.

It's an Absurdity in Any Language

By JACQUES TREMBLAY
Montreal La Presse

Following publication of the preliminary report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, the government created an advisory council of bilingual districts . . . The council has made its first recommendations to the Ottawa government . . . which hastened to take its distance, saying that the council's recommendations did not in any way bind the government . . .

Although the federal government can add or subtract, enlarge or make smaller a bilingual district here or there, we are still in a ridiculous situation since the idea of a bilingual district itself is false . . .

The conclusions of the advisory council are useful because they bring to light this basic absurdity.

The former federal policy on the official languages involved making speeches regularly on the theme: "Canada is a bilingual country from one ocean to the other." In fact, outside Quebec Canada is a unilingual country where it is impossible to live in anything but English. That one is able to speak the language of his choice at home changes nothing in business.

Under the new federal policy we shall say: "Quebec and New Brunswick are bilingual districts and in the rest of Canada there are also a few small bilingual zones."

Quebec is not entirely and equally bilingual. The Montreal area is the meeting place of the two Canadian nations, to the point that we do not know which is in the minority . . . To say that Montreal is bilingual makes sense.

With regard to Quebec, speaking concretely, we should say: It's a unilingual Francophone milieu. Of Canada, outside Quebec, we should say: It's a unilingual Anglophone milieu.

In the eyes of the federal advisory council all Quebec will be a bilingual district. It would mean assuring that federal public services be in both languages across this territory.

The federal government has abandoned the idea of considering all of Canada as a bilingual country. Still, the Francophones represent one-third of the Canadian population.

However, the logic has changed and the phenomenon is no longer considered in one block. Very well. But a special case has been made for Quebec and it is considered in one block, making "particular status" appear at a time and place where it was least expected.

Peace Talks Founder on Mistrust

By ANTHONY LEWIS

PARIS — After an interview with Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief negotiator in the Paris peace talks, two impressions are the strongest: He is utterly confident that his side will win the war it has been fighting in Indochina for 25 years. He is deeply suspicious of American policy and motives.

As the Americans who have dealt with him in the talks have found, Mr. Thuy is articulate, informed and usually affable. His manner in the interview was relaxed, his language not markedly rigid; he laughed now and then as he made some rhetorical thrust.

But he gave no indication that his government was prepared to give ground on its aims or its negotiating tactics. And the air of confidence was striking. When he said the outcome of the war was "evident now," he smiled as if he were stating the obvious.

His view of the United States government came out tellingly in the reiterated statement that he did not believe President Nixon intended to withdraw all American forces from Vietnam at anytime. The conditions laid down by the president for setting a withdrawal date, he said, were only "a pretext" to cover a decision against getting out: If North Vietnam gave way on one condition, such as the prisoners, Mr. Nixon would just raise another.

After all that has happened in Vietnam, Hanoi's skepticism about American intentions is not exactly surprising. But its view of the Nixon withdrawal program does indicate how large a gulf still exists between the two sides here in Paris, not only in aims but in understanding of each other.

Most Americans, even some critical of the president's policy, believe that Mr. Nixon has started an irreversible process. The United States is getting out of Indochina; it has no choice in terms of political or military realities. The only real question now is how much more damage will be done to the Indochinese people — and to ourselves — before we finally go.

But Hanoi does not see it that way, and the reason is clear enough. A very wise student of the Vietnam tragedy, and of the talks here, put it as follows:

"It is a matter of trust. They just fundamentally mistrust us."

The continuing deadlock on the most emotional and therefore obstructive issue in the talks, the prisoners, is a result of that mistrust.

The U.S. side in the peace talks cannot see why the North Vietnamese do not make a gesture on the prisoners — provide more complete lists of the Americans held, release some or all at once or make a firm commitment to release them if President Nixon does at last put a terminal date on American military involvement in Indochina.

As the Americans see it, such steps would cost Hanoi nothing. While most unusual in a war — prisoners are normally left till the end of hostilities, as Hanoi points out — it would improve North Vietnam's negotiating leverage to take action now, and put the president under much greater pressure.

That is logical thinking, but it does not take account of the mistrust in Hanoi. There, it appears, the prisoners are seen as protection against an American re-escalation of the war. If the card is given up, the Communist side fears, the United States might feel more free to go on bombing indefinitely all over Indochina, including North Vietnam.

Mistrust and misunderstanding are also factors in Washington. President Nixon knows that the Communists returned French prisoners after France settled at the Geneva conference in 1954 and withdrew her forces, yet he continues to tell the American public that the only way to get our prisoners out is to refuse to fix a time for final withdrawal — the reverse of logic.

And so the prisoner issue remains in its paradoxical position: We refuse to set a date for total withdrawal until they make a commitment to release the prisoners; they refuse to make any commitments until we set a date.

Because of such a difference, men have to go on killing and being killed, brutalizing themselves and others for no convincing cause. Is it possible? How will it look to history? Against the fact of mistrust, one feels the hope of sanity.

One side or the other may still change its tactics and make a gesture of faith. Xuan Thuy may get fresh instructions and at some point this summer offer a commitment on the prisoners. Or President Nixon may find reason to change his policy of open ended war.

ATTEND THE OPENING OF BRITISH COLUMBIA'S GREATEST TRADE FAIR EVER

June 2-12, Exhibition Park, Vancouver

AND HEAR THE CLAREMONT SENIOR SECONDARY SCHOOL CHOIR FROM SAANICH

At 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 2, the fifth British Columbia International Trade Fair will be officially opened by the Honourable W. A. C. Bennett, Premier of British Columbia. Just preceding this ceremony, at 4:00 p.m., a special concert will be held, featuring the B.C. Beefeater Band . . . and the Claremont Senior Secondary School Choir from Saanich. This group, under choirmaster D. L. Kyle, was chosen from among the many fine school choirs in British Columbia because of its high record of achievement in regional and national musical competitions. The Choir will perform "This is British Columbia," with lyrics and music written by the group's own Richard Margison (guitar) and Greg Davidson (organ).

This latest British Columbia Trade Fair, June 2-12, brings together the newest products from around the world . . . in a dazzling array of exhibits by industries and nations from many lands. It's also a festive event, with special entertainment each evening and valuable daily attendance prizes.

Plan now to attend the official opening on June 2 . . . and stay for many hours of fun and fascination during British Columbia's greatest Trade Fair ever.

Open to the public from 3:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. Monday to Friday. Saturday and Sunday from 12 noon to 10:00 p.m.

Special buyer's hours: 12 noon to 3:00 p.m. Monday to Friday; 10:00 a.m. to 12 noon Saturday.

ADMISSION:
Adults $1.50 Students and children 6-12 75c

4 Million Flee From Pakistan

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — India announced today that more than four million East Pakistanis have fled into its territory since the martial law crackdown in their province.

Labor and Rehabilitation Minister S. K. Khadilkar added in a statement: "What the eventual figure will be is anybody's guess. It may be five or even eight million."

He said the government had decided to move the refugees a short distance into the interior to relieve pressure on the border areas and 20 large camps would be built to house about one million.

Reports have said that living conditions in overcrowded temporary border camps led to 300 deaths from cholera and gastro-enteritis, although Khadilkar said a cholera epidemic was raging across the border and the disease was spread by the fleeing East Pakistanis.

Commenting on reports that 150 refugees died from cholera in a camp at Karimpur 70 miles north of Calcutta, the minister said at least 100,000 refugees have crossed into the area in the last two days, some arriving with bullet wounds.

EPIDEMICS FEARED

Khadilkar, in charge of refugee relief, said the coming monsoon season would bring greater danger from epidemics and the government would make every possible effort to prevent them. He said the World Health Organisation had been asked for help.

He said his department estimated that the Indian government would have to spend $24 million on relief operations in the next six months, based on a figure of only 3.75 million refugees.

International relief organizations and foreign governments had so far contributed cash and material aid worth $15.4 million, he said.

Khadilkar, who last week expressed disappointment at the "inadequate response" of the international community to the growing refugee problem, said Sunday "there is growing awareness of the magnitude and poignancy of the problem and an acceptance of responsibility amongst the international community."

Father Charged

TORONTO (CP) — A 30-year-old Toronto man was charged with criminal negligence Sunday after police stopped a car which had a child riding on its roof.

Police said a caretaker in a school near the child's home saw a man place a four-year-old boy in a wooden box, strap the box on top of the car and drive off.

Charged was the boy's father, Ronald Marshall Floyd.

Woodward's Food News

A lot of people are aware of the fresher flavour and convenience of frozen foods, but perhaps not as many consider that a lot of frozen foods offer a real saving. The biggest reason, of course, is that you can use just what you need and leave the rest in your freezer compartment ready for next time. That way you don't end up with a third of a can of peas and a quarter can of corn, and if you're the only one in the family that likes carrots, you can cook yourself a few without having most of a can left over. We've got a great selection of frozen foods and this week in particular they're very attractively priced.

STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM PIE

1¼ cups flaked coconut
1 quart vanilla ice cream
6 frozen Cream Toppers

Toast coconut in moderate oven 350 degrees about 10 minutes, stirring often to brown evenly. Cool. Lightly press onto bottom and sides of well buttered 9-inch pie plate. Stir ice cream only to soften slightly; Spoon into shell; smooth top. Freeze Firm. To serve, spoon strawberries over ice cream. Trim with frozen Cream Toppers.

Frozen Cream Toppers. Whip ½ cup heavy cream. Stir in 2 tablespoons sifted icing sugar. Place 6 heaping spoonsful on chilled baking sheet. Freeze Firm.

FOUNDATIONS TO BUILD ON

Women Can Work Together

By ELIZABETH FORBES

I do not know Pat Blakeman, other than she is a member of a women's liberation group, Victoria Women's Caucus. I've no idea what she looks like nor whether she is young, in her middle years or older. However, from one of her statements in an article on the family pages of this newspaper last Friday, I believe she must be very casually informed.

Forbes

In the article headed Women Fight Media Image, Mrs. Blakeman said (speaking of Victoria Women's Caucus organization troubles) "If it was any other group, I would have quit . . . but women have troubles working together because they have never done it before without a man running the show."

That women have troubles working together (just as men have troubles working together) I will not deny. What I do take exception to is the statement that women have never done it (worked together) before without a man running the show.

Someone should direct Mrs. Blakeman's attention to a number of responsible Canadian women's organizations that have worked together with no man running the show for well over half a century, and in that time have succeeded in bettering any number of conditions for women and children.

She should be given a copy of Modern Pioneers, the story of British Columbia's women's institutes formed back in 1909. Today many of those first institutes are still flourishing, quietly adapting themselves to changing conditions, proving an inspiration to the new institutes forming not only on the frontiers of our province but also in more urban centres.

ALL-WOMEN

Mrs. Blakeman should also be shown a copy of Proud Heritage, the story of the National Council of Women of Canada, formed back in 1893. This book includes short histories of provincial and local councils in every province, organized and headed by women and with all-women memberships.

Other books could be provided on the histories of such organizations as the Business and Professional Women's Clubs and the University Women's Clubs throughout Canada.

In every instance records show that a woman (or women) started each movement and that women have worked together within these organizations for many years.

Through their efforts, as individual organizations and co-operatvely, they won the franchise for women and the right to sit in the Senate. Medical inspection in schools, safe water and milk supplies and departments of public health and consumers affairs were created through their persuasion.

It is no exaggeration to say that all our laws for the protection of women and children are owed to their insistence nor that after obtaining the laws they went on to work for reforms and safeguards for the benefit of the community and country as a whole.

These are only a few of the activities in which women, working together with no man running the show, have been successful.

Certainly there is still more to be done if women are to achieve equality and take their rightful place in the affairs of this country. Certainly there is a place for new women's groups and organizations, including the Victoria Women's Caucus.

These new groups will not succeed however, nor will they celebrate either a silver or golden anniversary if women like Mrs. Blakeman do not acknowledge the work that has gone before and the need to build on foundations created and strengthened by women over the past 70 or 80 years.

No Reason for More Concessions To Re-Open Canal, Says Israel

By the Associated Press

Israel says it sees no reason to make any more concessions to Egypt for an agreement to reopen the Suez Canal.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Israel is still awaiting Cairo's response to its proposals for reopening the waterway that the Egyptians closed during the 1967 Middle East war.

"I see no reason why we should commit ourselves to further concessions, since the entire balance of concessions, so far, is one of concessions made by Israel," Eban told a radio interviewer Sunday.

"Egypt is not asked to give up anything—not the ceasefire line nor anything under her control. In my opinion, Egypt therefore has an obligation to respond to our proposals."

These proposals are understood to be that Israel forces will withdraw from the east bank of the canal if Egypt guarantees an end to hostilities and does not send its troops across the waterway into the positions vacated by the Israelis.

Eban said more than the reopening of the canal is at stake. "This is a test, an experimental station for the very feasibility of peace."

SEEKS AGREEMENT

U.S. State Secretary William P. Rogers has been pressing Israel and Egypt to reach an agreement on the canal, hoping that it will give a boost to negotiations for a general peace settlement.

But the Egyptians insist that before reopening the canal their troops must reoccupy any tertory that Israel vacates on the east bank and also that the Israeli withdrawal must be the first step in a phased withdrawal from all territory seized in the 1967 war.

Meanwhile, Palestinian guerrillas and the Jordanian army battled Sunday for the second day in a row in northern Jordan. Each side accused the other of starting the fighting.

A guerrilla communique issued in Beirut claimed the army was trying to wipe out the guerrillas' last stronghold in Jordan, at Jerash, 25 miles north of Amman. But it said the guerrillas held on despite a six-hour battle.

RACING WITH 2 SOVIET PROBES

U.S. Rocket Streaks for Mars

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — "Looks like we'll be at Mars in 5½ months," a U.S. space agency official said as the Mariner IX spacecraft joined two Russian probes hurtling toward the red planet to search for life and to unravel scientific mysteries.

Mariner IX rode the flawless performance of an Atlas-Centaur rocket into space Sunday to start a 247 million-mile voyage to the planet.

Within hours after launch, the payload's navigation equipment locked on to guide points, the sun and Canopus, brightest star in the southern hemisphere. This stabilized the craft for its outward journey.

If all goes well, Mariner IX will fire into Martian orbit Nov. 14 and begin an extensive photographic and scientific mission expected to last three months. More than 6,500 pictures of the surface are to be transmitted as the craft sweeps as close as 750 miles to the planet.

U.S. COURSE SHORTER

Two Russian probes, Mars II and Mars III, were launched earlier this month, but U.S. tracking experts believe the American satellite, travelling a slightly different and shorter course, has a chance to beat the Soviet vehicles to the target.

They estimate Mars II will arrive in mid-November and Mars III later that month.

The Russian payloads each weight more than 10,000 pounds, considerably more than Mariner's 2,200 pounds. There is speculation they may attempt to land on Mars.

Whatever happens, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration express confidence that data obtained by the three missions will be shared.

"We're optimistic about this," Dr. George Low, NASA deputy administrator, said after the Mariner launch.

"Last January we and the Soviets established a framework for an agreement on exchange of data from our planetary programs, from all our science programs," Low said. "We agreed to exchange samples from the moon and we're to the point where we're arranging the dates when we'll exchange some of our Apollo samples for some of the lunar samples obtained by their Luna 16.

"So that's a first step," he added. "We'll have groups meeting during the summer to arrange for detailed planetary science exchange and I expect we'll carry it out."

Instant Coffee Ads Up Before Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Charges of misleading advertising in connection with cents-off labels on Nescafe, Chase and Sanborn and Maxwell House instant coffee jars have gone to court here.

The charges, adjourned Friday until July 2 for election and plea, are against:

Nestle Canada Ltd., Toronto, for a label on six-ounce jars of Nescafe Instant Coffee saying 14 cents off and another on 10-ounce jars saying 24 cents off.

—Standard Brands Ltd., Montreal, for a label on six-ounce jars of Chase and Sanborn Instant Coffee saying 14 cents off and another on 10-ounce jars saying 24 cents off.

—General Foods Ltd., Toronto, for a label on six-ounce jars of Maxwell House Instant Coffee saying 10 cents off and another on 10-ounce jars saying 20 cents off.

Misleading advertising is an indictable offence under the Combines Investigation Act punishable by up to five years in prison. Where corporations have been prosecuted, the penalty has been a fine.

The informations were sworn by James P. McConnery, an investigator with the consumer affairs department.

Nudists Ban 'Hair' Cast

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — The cast of the nude musical Hair have been banned from this south coast resort's exclusive nudist camp.

Members of the show on tour asked to join the club after a girl dancer was told off for sunbathing topless on the beach.

"At the moment there is nowhere else we can be naked and free except on stage," the cast said in a letter to the club.

Nudist camp officials said no and explained: "To get into the club people have to be properly vetted with their clothes on at first. It takes about a month for the committee to examine applications."

Said one: "Stage nudity is a form of striptease. It is exhibitionist and controversial. I would have thought it unnecessary."

Oneida

Quarterly net income of $415,224 (29 cents a share) is reported by Oneida Inc., considerably under the same period a year ago when income was $520,585 (37 cents), although sales were about equal at $15.99 million vs. $15.6 million.

But for the first six months last year, sales were only $29 million, producing $500,800 net income or 32 cents a share.

Toyo Kogyo

Toyo Kogyo, the Japanese maker of Mazda cars, reports net earnings for the last six month period equal to $11.2 million compared with $14 million a year ago on sales of $360 million and $296 million.

The company is still in negotiations with Ford Motor Co., which wants a minority interest in the foreign car maker.

Standard NJ

Appreciable improvement over 1970 earnings is expected by financial vice-president David S. Jones for Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey in the balance of 1971.

He told the Denver society of financial analysts conditions point toward profits in excess of $1.3 billion, which the company earned last year on $18.7 billion revenue. The earnings figure is equal to $5.90 a share.

Voyager

Up to 36 exploratory wells will be drilled this summer on nearly 200,000 acres of land in the Wavy Lake area of Alberta, held by Voyager Petroleums Ltd., of Calgary.

At least 26 wells will be used to test formations down to and including the upper Paleozoic, ranging between 3,000 and 3,500 feet.

Cablesystems

Net earnings of $1.4 million (21 cents a share) before an extraordinary item compare with 19 cents a share in the three months ended March 31, reports Canadian Cablesystems Ltd. and its subsidiaries.

A full comparison was not provided because reorganization of the company made figures unmeaningful," president W. Z. Estey said.

The extraordinary gain, from the sale of interest in Powell River Television Co. Ltd. and 60 per cent interest in Television de Quebec (Canada) Ltee., raised total earnings to 39 cents a share. Total revenue in the period was $1.95 million, with capital gains worth $646,000.

Hawker

Directors of Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. have approved payment of three back dividends for the company's preferred stock.

The company was behind in payment of seven dividends a year ago and now is only two behind.

Sir Arnold Hall, chairman of the board, heard complaints from shareholders at the annual meeting about lack of dividends for 12 years on common shares. He said the company is equally concerned, but these cannot be paid until dividends on the preferred are paid up.

He is also chairman and managing director of Hawker Siddeley Group Ltd., London, which owns 56.4 per cent of the Canadian company, plus about 40 per cent of the preferred stock.

Bombardier

Net earnings dropped nearly $800,000 to $16 million ($1.00 a share) in the year ended Jan. 31, against $16.82 million ($1.12) a year ago, reports Bombardier Ltd., which had substantially higher sales.

Grossing $164.9 million vs. $141.78 million, Bombardier had about $21 million more in expenses and $2.4 million higher taxes.

RC Ventures

Royal Canadian Ventures Ltd. turned a net loss a year ago into a small profit in the six months ended March 31.

The company had gross revenue of $48,150 vs. $45,580 and reports net profit of $3,261 against a $33,000 loss last year.

Crude oil and natural gas sales were worth an almost identical amount, $39,400 vs. $39,200 after production expenses.

There was a gain on property sale amounting to $1,000 in place of a loss of $12,000 in 1970. Meanwhile, RCV is participating in a diversified exploration program in three western provinces and Northwest Territories.

Let's Talk Real Estate By Jack Mears

Following my recent article on Condominium homes I received a call from a client of mine who said, "I don't wish to tell you how to run your business, but why don't you show people the economics of Condominium Living."

Let's suppose you have a home worth $30,000 and that you are tired of gardening, maintenance and the cost of upkeep and you decide to sell and go into an apartment. You sell for all cash and invest the $30,000 at 7%. This brings you in an income of $2,100 per annum, BEFORE TAX. In addition you will have the money you would normally have spent on taxes, heat, insurances etc. Combined together these two will probably pay today's rent on a modern two-bedroom apartment, but will make no allowance either for increasing taxation, increasing rents or general inflation.

Now let's assume that you buy a two bedroom Condominium apartment for $25,000 and invest $5,000 at 7%. First of all taxation will be removed on $1,400 of income (7% on $2,500) and this should be reckoned at your highest rate of tax. This goes directly INTO YOUR POCKET. The interest on the $5,000 invested at 7% plus the money saved on upkeep and taxes of your previous home will more than meet all charges of Condominium living. In addition, you will have the security of tenure, and the knowledge that you still own a piece of real estate as a hedge against further inflation.

We have sold individual apartments for over 12 years including one to the lady who called me. During that period they have increased in value equally if not better than single homes. If we can give you any more information please call 598-3321.

Susquehanna

Its second quarter 25-cent dividend on class A cumulative convertible preferred stock has been cancelled, reports Susquehanna Corp.

The move is attributed to a clause in a current refinancing agreement which restricts the payment of dividends. It has the effect of blocking common dividends, which cannot be paid until cumulative preferred payout has been made.

Lancer

Lancer of Canada Limited, Vancouver-based clothing firm, reports net earnings for the six-months ended March 31 were $94,822 or 16.4 cents a share compared with $81,413 (14.1 cents).

The company said sales more than doubled to $2.14 million during the period from just over $1 million in the six months ended March 31, 1970.

Capital Div.

Revenues for the first quarter rose $280,000 while final performance turned into a loss compared with a net profit in the period a year ago, reports Capital Diversified Industries Ltd.

The company had drastically reduced earnings in the year ended Dec. 31, declining from 12 cents a share ($514,700) to two cents ($170,000).

For the quarter gross revenue was $4.7 million vs. $4.4 million, producing a loss of $245,200. Net profit a year ago was $22,300.

Part of its plan to reduce costs is the company's sale of Priceguard division ware-

Opposes State Insurance

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Barlow, first Canadian to occupy one of the top North American insurance industry posts, says any spreading of the Manitoba-style automobile insurance to a province like Ontario will run into stiff opposition.

Barlow says the group he represents would oppose "any prospect, even a remote one" of a state-run insurance scheme in Ontario along the lines of that to be introduced in Manitoba Nov. 1.

The 64-year-old president of the New York-based American Society of Insurance Management Inc., a 1,900-member organization of North American insurance buyers, says most of the problems of the society are continental in nature, but the question of government-controlled insurance is one Canadian peculiarity that is closely watched.

"Our members view with disfavor the Manitoba experiment" in government-administered insurance. But the society has not adopted a financial position on the issue.

"The informed buyer of insurance wants to deal with an insurance market that is financially sound, free and skilled."

There is some concern among corporate insurance buyers that, should government begin insurance administration, it would not be able to provide the variety of experience offered by private companies, he said.

Buyers must have freedom in this field "because the risks are endlessly varied."

As well, buyers must be free to negotiate rates "so that we can get the rate that is applicable for a particular client."

Ontario NDP Leader Stephen Lewis has pledged to institute a government-run auto insurance program if his party is elected to power.

Pin-Rattling Cox Better Than Ever

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Bob Cox remembers 1969 as a good year but the good folk who watched him coast to a solid victory in the annual Cedar Hill Open golf tournament wouldn't be surprised if 1971 turns out infinitely better.

His Cedar Hill triumph, coming off a 63 round Saturday and a 62 Sunday, has him off and running.

Cox' five-under-par 125 total was four strokes better than the runnerup sum posted by Victoria's Vaughan Trapp in the province's third-richest tournament.

Trapp earned $325 by blazing in with Sunday's best round, a sparkling 61 that was just one strike off the course record of 60 set a few years ago by Point Grey professional Dick Munn.

A Cedar Hill player, nine-handicapper Norm Haskell won handicap honors and the John Merriman Memorial Trophy after a three-hole playoff with Nanaimo's John Hall. Both finished the 36-hole test with net 120s, 10 under par.

Haskell fired three straight pars to claim the trophy from the 18-handicapper from Nanaimo.

The 25-year-old Richmond professional picked up $375 Sunday. That's a far cry and a good deal of change away from the $22,000 he earned two years ago.

But don't go away. It's early.

NORM HASKELL
. . . handicap champion

Hopes to Qualify for U.S. Open

In 1969, Cox won four provincial opens, the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association title and Canada's lone berth in the Alcan "golfer-of-the-year" championship. He managed all that despite a back problem that wasn't publicized until the end of the season.

In 1970, he picked up "some change" but was content to treat his back ailment.

The back feels fine and Sunday Cox said, without hesitation, that he is hitting golf balls "far better and straighter" than he did in 1969.

Cox' accuracy off the tees and approaching greens was truly astounding.

In his Saturday round, for example, he twice hit the flagstick on a pair of par-three holes. Within the past week, Bobby also hit a pair of flagsticks at Point Grey (in the B.C. PGA tournament) and holed out a wedge shot.

Earlier in the month, the "good signs" also flashed at Seattle where Cox cleared the first hurdle in his attempt to qualify for the U.S. Open. There is one more qualifying hurdle — next Sunday's sectional playoff at Seattle's Inglewood course.

Mike Metcalfe Scores Hole-in-One

Doug Reid, an unattached Vancouver pro, and Cowichan's Bill Wakeham tied for third with 131 totals. Each won $250 out of the $1,700 prize pot.

Saturday's action, played in winds that gave the big field plenty of problems, was highlighted by a hole-in-one.

Mike Metcalfe of Gorge Vale, a six-handicapper who recently became an assistant to pro Earl Davies, scored the ace on the 145-yard fourth hole. It was Metcalfe's fist hole-in-one and earned him a new suit!

City Junior Crown Won By Murdoch

Sid Murdoch snapped a deadlock on the final hole at Victoria Golf Club Saturday and won the city junior championship as he negotiated the par-four finishing hole in regulation figures.

The 18-year-old golfer from Royal Colwood shot an afternoon round of 74, five over par but the best score of the windy day, to finish the 36-hole test with 151, one stroke better than Keith Burrel of Uplands.

Murdoch, Burrell and Dunc Conrad of Gorge Vale were tied after the first 18 holes with 77s. Conrad faltered to 81 on the final round, for 158 and a third-place tie with clubmate Bob Beauchemin, who came in with a final-round 77.

Murdoch and Burrell were tied going into the 36th hole.

LOST IN PLAYOFF

Murdoch, who is a Grade 12 student at Belmont high school, was the runner-up in the Mid-Island Open last Monday, losing to Gary Ferguson of Gorge Vale on the fifth hole of sudden-death at the Nanaimo Golf Club.

One of the 83 entries was defending champion Robbie Ferguson of Gorge Vale, who withdrew after 18 holes without turning in his scorecard.

Tim Howard of Gorge Vale had a three-stroke margin in the handicap division with a two-round net total of 138. Defending champion Brad McLeod of Gorge Vale finished at 151.

Top eight scorers in the championship division:

Sid Murdoch (RC)	77-74—151
Keith Burrell (U)	77-75—152
Bob Beauchemin (GV)	81-77—158
Dunc Conrad (GV)	77-81—158

Mike Belkin's Service Flubs Aid Mexicans

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — The service failure of Mike Belkin of Vancouver was the undoing of Canada in Sunday's doubles match of the Davis Cup tennis series against Mexico.

Belkin, 25, so good in his singles against Joaquin Loyo Mayo Saturday, dropped his service six times in the match and the Mexican pair of Mayo and Marcelo Lara won 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2 in a little under two hours.

So Mexico leads 2-1 in this second-round North American zone tie, with two singles remaining today. Saturday Belkin beat Mayo 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4 after his doubles partner Sunday, John Sharpe of Toronto, had lost to Lara 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

Sharpe, uncertain and out-of-touch Saturday, was the more reliable Sunday. Belkin may have been more disturbed by a brief incident at the end of the first set than captain Laurie Strong of Toronto was prepared to admit afterwards.

CANUCKS RECOVER

Belkin dropped his service in the third game of the set, but the Canadians recovered by breaking Mayo's service in the sixth game. Then in the 11th game Belkin failed again after two doubtful line calls. After the first the referee stood up to inspect the point where he thought the ball fell.

Mayo held his serve in the next game to give Mexico the set 7-5. But in the second game of the second set he dropped his service for the second time. Belkin lost his service for the third time only for Lara to lose his and Canada took the set 6-3.

TWO MORE FAILURES

Sharpe and Belkin both dropped their services once in the third set, which Mexico took comfortably 6-1. Belkin failed twice more in the fourth set and Mexico won it 6-2 and the match.

Canadian captain Strong, 31, said after the match: "The Mexicans returned Belkin's service well and he was not upset by the shouting. It will be tough tomorrow, but we haven't thrown in the towel."

Belkin faced Lara in the first match today and Sharpe met Mayo. The winners of the tie will play New Zealand in the third round of the zone. The winners of that match will meet Brazil, winners of the South American Zone, for the right to represent the Western Hemisphere against Europe.

Ross Whiffs 16 As Labatts Fall

Brilliant one-hit pitching by Steve Ross of Bell's Men's Wear not only blanked Labatt's 6-0 Sunday at Heywood Ave. Park, but enabled Bell's to maintain a share of second spot in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

Ross set down Lzbatt's in order until, with none out in the seventh, Terry Karpiuk doubled. Ross then struck out the side to bring the total number of strikeouts to 16.

In other gamws, first place Langford Drywall and Colwood Inn, tied with Bell's in second spot, took advantage of last-place William Head by blasting the team 11-2 and 8-3 respectively. Rescheduling forced William Head, with only one victory this season, to play two games in one day at Heywood Ave. Park.

INOUYE WINS JUDO CROWN

NEW WESTMINSTER — Greg Inouye of Victoria was gold medal winner in the 150-pounds-and-under class here Saturday in the Canadian schoolboy judo championships.

With more than 100 competitors taking part in the one-day meet, B.C. judokans took four firsts in seven weight classes.

In the 180-pounds-and-under class Wally Smallwood of Victoria tied for a bronze medal with Gunther Laube of Prince George. Ken Turamoto of Richmond took a first in the 120-pounds-and-under, Steveston's Allen Sakai won a gold in the 135-pound event and John Morimoto, also of Steveston, won the 180-pound class.

Yakima Dash Win For Macmurchie

Victoria drivers Joe Macmuchie and Dave Cooper had third and fifth fast times in NASCAR automobile races at Evergreen Speedway in Monroe, Wash. Sunday.

Macmurchie also finished fourth in the fast heat, while Cooper came in sixth. On Saturday at Yakima, Macmurchie won the "A" trophy dash and came in fifth in the main event behind the same two drivers who finished first and second in the main event Sunday — Don Dowdy of Yakima and Jack Jeffries.

SOVIET GIRLS REPEAT AS HOOP QUEENS

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — The Soviet Union won the world women's basketball championship for the forth straight time by defeating Brazil, 82-49, Saturday night.

The victory was the ninth straight for the Russian women as they swept through the tournament unbeaen. Czechoslovakia finished second and Brazil third.

Cup Triumph By Vancouver

Jack Hasting scored the first three goals Sunday and sparked Vancouver to a 5-1 victory over Okanagan All-Stars in the final match of the Russell Cup soccer tournament at Royal Athletic Park.

In the consolation final, Victoria jumped to a 3-0 half-time lead and then went on to defeat Nanaimo, 6-3.

Okanagan never managed to make the scoresheet until Hasting had rammed home his trio. Ewan McInnes counted the lone Okangan tally before Colin Barry and Roger Bella each scored for Vancouver.

The defending-champion Victoria squad appreared determined to make amends for a defensive lapse Saturday against Okanagan which cost them a trip to the final.

THREE-GOAL LEAD

John Blissitt, Rubi Kurively and Robbie Williams scored to make the first-half score 3-0, the same opening-frame margin they had spotted Okanagan the night before in the semi-finals.

Unlike Saturday, however, when a 3-3 comeback was foiled by a mix-up between the goaltender and a defender which resulted in Okanagan's winning goal, Victoria managed to maintain at least a two-goal margin throughout.

After Dale Baver of Nanaimo scored to lead off the second half, Darryl Hooker and Robbie Williams widened the margin with single goals. Tallies by Peter Bateman and John Rogers closed the gap again until Kurively's second goal ended scoring.

First Game Ends in Tie

VANCOUVER (CP) — Columbus and Croatia battled to a 1-1 tie Sunday in the first game of a two-game, total-goals series to determine the Pacific Coast Soccer League championship.

Croatia opened the scoring in the eighth minute of the second half when a mixup in the Columbus defence left Johnny Dias with a clear road to goal. He let go with a blistering shot from the 14-yard line to place the ball in the right-hand corner of net.

The teams meet in Vancouver again next Sunday.

CALIFORNIAN SIGNED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Paul Williams, an 185-pound offensive halfback from the University of California has been signed by Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference.

Penny May Captures Western Pentathlon

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — British Columbia sent two athletes to the Western Canada pentathlon and decathlon championnships here Saturday and Sunday and they both came away winners.

Penny May of Victoria won the penthathlon with 4,538 points. Tony Putzi of Richmond captured the decathlon with 6,377 points.

Competing in cold, rainy conditions both days, Miss May scored her points this way:

100 metres, 14.2, seconds, 1,018 points; shot put, 37 feet 10¾ inches, 824 points; high jumo, five feet, 858 points; long jump, 18 feet 7¾ inches, 915 points; 220 yards, 25.1 seconds, 923 points.

100 metres, 11.5 seconds, 687 points; long jump, 19 feet 4¾ inches, 584 points; shot put, 41 feet 3¼ inches, 638 points; high jump, five feet 8½ inches, 625 points; 400 metres, 54.2 seconds, 633 points; 110-metre hurdles, 17.2 seconds, 645 points; discus, 126 feet 11 inches, 659 points; pole vault, 13 feet, 796 points; javelin, 182 feet 2½ inches, 705 points; 1,500 metres, 5:00.6, 405 points.

Both Miss May and Putzi will attend the Canadian championships in their events in two weeks time.

Burnham's Boots Trip Californians

VANCOUVER — British Columbia's representative side, with Barry Burnham scoring all the points on kicks, defeated the touring California state squad 9-3 Saturday at Thunderbird Stadium in the final match of a three-game rugby tour.

Prop-forward Jack Alustiza opened scoring for California after five minutes but Burnham tied it up 15 minutes later with a spectacular 40-yard drop goal.

Burnham, who plays for Vancouver's Meraloms in the regular season, gave B.C. the lead 10 minutes from half-time with a penalty goal and added another penalty 15 minutes from the final whistle.

California was pressing and held an edge in play most of the match and only some bad luck in the kicking department prevented a victory.

Mickey Ording, the California captain, missed the conversion attempt on Alustiza's try as well as three penalty shots.

Bodnar Inherits Oshawa Juniors

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Generals announced Friday the signing of Gus Bodnar as general manager and coach of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A team.

Bodnar, 48, of Toronto, guided Toronto Marlboros to the OHA title and the Memorial Cup national juniors championship in 1967.

Close Shave For Bonallack

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Defending champion Michael Bonallack narrowly squeaked through the first round of the British amateur golf championship today, but had to go to the 19th hole to do it.

The 36-year-old captain of the Victorious British Walker Cup team was two down with four to go against Philip Cobley, a 22-year-old comparative unknown from England, but rallied to sqaure the match at the 18th.

On the 389-yard extra hole, Bonallack fired a great drive, a seven iron to within three feet, and holed the putt for a winning birdie three.

Kiniski Keeps Coast Crown

Pacific Coast wrestling championship laurels remained in the powerful hands of Gene Kiniski as he defeated Dean Higuchi two falls to one at Memorial Arena Saturday night.

In other matches on the professional card, Detroit's Skull Brothers bested Roy McClarty and Eric Froelich in a tag-team affair, Pancho Lopez took Ray Steel and a bout between Soldat Gorky and Fred Baron ended in a draw.

Memorial Arena's next wrestling night will be Tuesday, June 8.

GRECO SPARKLES . . . . . AGAINST BERMUDA

Canadians Open With Shutout

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — Canada's amateur soccer team defeated Bermuda 3-0 Sunday in the opening game of the Olympic Games preliminary series.

The score gave no indication of the run of play. Canadian goalkeeper Peter Greco came up with brilliant saves against what looked to be unstoppable shots.

The only scoring in the first half came in the eighth minute of play when Sergio Zanatta hit after a poor defensive display by Bermuda backs.

After the half-time break, Bermuda went to the attack and within 90 seconds sent the ball crashing against the sidebar and then skimming over it.

Seven minutes into the second half, Buzz Parsons scored from a Canadian throw-in.

Neither side displayed much imagination until the final minute when Zanatta passed to John Schepers who beat Bermuda goalkeeper Sam Nusom to make the final score 3-0.

The crowd numbered only about 300.

Mays Keeps Giants Hot —Sets New Run Record

Passes Musial Mark As Club Increases Lead

By The Associated Press

Willie Mays' homing instincts are rubbing off on the rest of the San Francisco Giants.

Mays socked a two-run homer in the opener of a Sunday doubleheader to become the National League's all-time scoring leader and give the explosive Giants the first leg of a 5-4, 8-7 sweep over Montreal Expos.

The San Francisco superstar, whose seventh-inning homer capped a three-run comeback, crossed the plate again in the second game won by the Giants with a three-run salvo in the ninth—for a career total of 1,951 runs.

He passed Stan Musial (1,949) on the all-time list headed by American League Hall of Famers Ty Cobb (2,244) and Babe Ruth (2,174).

In other games, Pittsburgh Pirates blasted Chicago Cubs 10-0, San Diego Padres upended New York Mets 4-2, St. Louis Cardinals whipped Atlanta Braves 8-3, Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 in 12 innings and Cincinnati Reds shaded Houston Astros 2-1.

In Saturday's action, Pittsburgh clipped Chicago 9-4, San Francisco downed Montreal 8-3, Houston edged Cincinnati 2-1, St. Louis took Atlanta 8-7, New York swept a doubleheader from San Diego, 5-1 and 2-1, and Los Angeles slugged Philadelphia 9-3.

The Giants trailed 4-2 in the first game when Jimmy Rosario opened the seventh with a single and Bobby Bonds was hit by a Bill Stoneman pitch. Chris Speier forced Bonds at second, but Rosario scored when second baseman Gary Sutherland threw away the relay for an error.

638TH HOMER

Mays then walloped his 638th career homer and 10th of the season, sending Speier home with the tying run and scoring the winner—and record-breaker—himself.

A five-run burst in the fourth inning of the second-game gave Montreal a 6-3 lead and Bob Bailey homered for the Expos in the seventh. But Bonds slammed a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh and singled, his fourth hit of the game.

Mike Marshall wild-pitched one run home with two out, walked Allan Gallagher on a 3-2 count to refill the bases and was tagged for a two-run single by Tito Fuentes that gave the Giants their fourth consecutive victory and seventh in eight games.

They lead the NL West by 10½ games.

PITCHER GETS SUPPORT

Bob Moose, backed by an eight-run uprising in the fourth, pitched a three-hitter for the Pirates against the Cubs.

Roberto Clemente drilled a three-run homer, Willie Stargell followed with a tape measure blast and Bob Robertson hit a two-run homer in the fourth, which also was marked by Ken Holtzman's three wild pitches.

Ivan Murrell smashed a tie-breaking two-run homer in the fifth that carried the Padres past the Mets. Clay Kirby checked New York on seven hits.

Willie Davis lifted the Dodgers into a 1-1 tie with a run-scoring single in the sixth, extending his hitting streak through 22 games, and Los Angeles pushed over the tie-breaker on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Willie Crawfoord in the 12th.

Johnny Bench scored the winning run for Cincinnati on a seventh-inning error by first baseman John Mayberry, who had homered for the Astros in the fifth.

Orioles Begin To Chirp Again

By The Associated Press

"We're rolling again and getting the right amount of runs," said Baltimore manager Earl Weaver after his Orioles continued their habit of beating Minnesota Twins with a 6-5 triumph Sunday to move within 2½ games of Boston Red Sox in the American League East Division.

The defending world champion Orioles, who whipped the Twins without a loss in playoff series in 1969 and 1970, thus won the rubber match of the three-game set.

The Red Sox lost a half game to the Orioles when their contest Sunday with Oakland Athletics was postponed by rain. In other Sunday action, Chicago White Sox stopped Cleveland Indians 3-2, Detroit Tigers whacked Milwaukee Brewers 9-5 and New York Yankees clouted California Angels 7-4. Rain washed out the Kansas City - Washington games.

In Saturday's games, Baltimore overcame Minnesota 11-8, New York dumped California 6-1, Milwaukee clobbered Detroit 9-2, Oakland outlasted Boston 12-8 and Cleveland nipped Chicago 2-1. Kansas City and Washington were rained out.

"I'm very pleased about the weekend," said Weaver, who has been beleagured with questions about the Orioles' start.

Weaver should be pleased. The Orioles winged back from a 7-6 loss Friday night that shoved them four games behind the Red Sox, then bombed Minnesota Saturday before scoring the winning runs Sunday with the aid of three walks and a wild pitch.

The Orioles led only by 3-2 before putting the game away with their three-run eighth that helped winner Mike Cuellar withstand home runs by Tony Oliva and Steve Braun with relief help.

Baltimore loaded the bases against reliever Ron Perranoski with two walks and Brooks Robinson's bunt single. The first run scored on Ellie Hendricks' ground-out and another came in on Mark Belanger's single.

Jim Strickland relieved Perranoski at this point and struck out Cuellar before throwing a wild pitch that allowed Robinson to race home with the clincher.

WALK WINS GAME

The winners filled the bases in the 10th on two walks and an infield single by pinch-hitter Tom Egan before Hennigan walked Johnstone.

Rich McKinney's two-run double in the seventh lifted Chicago into a 2-2 tie.

Dick McAuliffe singled home the go-ahead run and Al Kaline capped a five-run explosion in the ninth with a three-run homer for Detroit.

Milwaukee had tied it 4-4 in the eighth inning on pinch-hitter Andy Kosco's run-scoring single.

Mel Stottlemyre continued his career mastery over California, pitching a five-hitter to beat the Angels for the 13th time in 16 decisions. The Yankees managed only two runs in the first five innings despite nine hits but broke through for four runs in the sixth to give their ace right-hander his sixth victory of the year.

Roy White's third single tied the score and Bobby Murcer's third hit put the Yanks ahead to stay at 4-3.

Trevino Gives $5,000 Of Purse to Charity

LEE TREVINO
... wins by four

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Lee Trevino put a sober expression on his usually-grinning face Sunday after winning the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

"The game of golf has been good to me and I want to put back into it something that I'm taking out," the normally happy-go-lucky guy said.

He announced he was donating $5,000 from his $35,000 purse to St. Jude's Hospital, the charitable beneficiary of this event.

"I want to do something for the game," he continued. "That's why I play in some of those little tournaments. The sponsors like to have me. They think I help them at the gate."

Trevino cut out a final-round 67, three under par, that nailed down his seventh career-tour triumph by four strokes. He led all the way and was never really in danger. He finished with a 268 total, 12 under par.

Tied for second at 272 were four non-winning tour regulars, Jerry Heard, Randy Wolff, Lee Elder and Hale Irwin. Heard and Wolff closed with 64s, six under par on the 6,466-yard layout at the Colonial Country Club course. Elder had a 66 and Irwin a 68.

Dave Hill, who filed a $1 million damage suit against the Professional Golfers Association and the tournament players division earlier in the tournament, finished well back with a 68 for 278. Hill had taken the title in this event three of the four previous years.

Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg, the only Canadian entered, failed to make the cut Friday after shooting a 36-hole score of 145.

Salmonbellies Move to Front

COQUITLAM — New Westminster Salmonbellies pulled out of a three-way tie with Victoria Shamrocks and Coquitlam in the Western Lacrosse Association here Saturday night with a 19-6 victory over the Adanacs.

With New Westminster scheduled to play Vancouver on Tuesday, the defending Canadian champions now have a two-point lead on the other two teams.

Karl Fawthorpe Takes Bike Event

Karl Fawthorpe won the 45-mile Victoria Wheelers bicycle club road race on Sunday with a time of one hour, 54 minutes and 46 seconds.

Ken Daver and Pat Ferris tied for second with 1:55.15 clockings while Karl's father, Don, placed fourth in 1:56.02.

DEBBIE WINS AT MODESTO

MODESTO, Calif. (CP-AP) — Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., won the women's high jump event with a mark of five feet 10 inches Saturday at the 30th California relays.

Rod Milburn of Southern University in Louisiana set a meet record in the trials in the 120-yard hurdles with a time of 13.4. In the final, he defeated veterans Tommy Lee White and Willie Davenport with a time of 13.5.

World record holder Chi Cheng was scheduled to compete but was unable to make the meet.

CYCLING COACH DIES

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — August J. Husse, 61, who had been named to coach the United States cycling team in the 1972 Olympics in Munich, died Monday. Husse, 1928 German junior cycling champion, coached the American cycling teams for the 1963 Pan American Games in Brazil and the 1967 Games in Winnipeg.

England's Youth Side Wins Tourney

PRAGUE (CP) — England blasted three goals in the first 20 minutes to beat Portugal 3-0 Sunday and win the international youth soccer tournament.

England, who last won the title eight years ago, ended the goal famine which had marked their earlier displays as they tore into Portugal from the kickoff.

Paduano Loses Battle of Bulge

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Donato Paduano has lost the battle of the bulge.

The Italian-born Paduano has definitely decided to give up his battle to stay below the 147-pound welterweight limit and move up to the heavier middleweight division.

Paduano, in Kingston Friday night as a spectator at the Canadian Amateur Boxing Association championships, won his first 22 pro fights before losing two straight decisions to Ken Buchanan of Scotland and Clyde Gray of Toronto, the latter taking Paduano's Canadian welterweight title.

"In those last two fights I lose because I have to get down 10 or 12 pounds in a hurry and I was weak," he said.

He stepped up to the middleweight division earlier this month and won a 10-round decision from Bobby O'Brien in New York's Madison Square Gardens.

Lawn Bowling

Inter-club lawn bowling competition begins tonight and Tuesday at Beacon Hill Park. Men's doubles battles for the Wilkerson Shield start at 6:30 tonight while women's triples competition for the Simmons Cup open at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Grimshaw's Four Topple Tycoons

In inter-club competition at Victoria Polo Club Sunday, Bill Grimshaw scored all four goals as "The Rest" defeated "The Tycoons" 4-0.

Next weekend, the Victoria club will host a Spokane squad.

French Player Wrecks Hopes of Grand Slam

PARIS (AP) — Gail Chanfreau of France ruined Margaret Court's bid for a second consecutive tennis grand slam when she stopped the Australian 6-3, 6-4 Sunday in the third round of the French Open.

In men's play, Cliff Richey and Bob Lutz won their third-round matches after rain delays and gave the United States six players among the final 16.

Mrs. Court, seeking her fifth French title, was never in the match with Mrs. Chanfreau.

Only in the ninth game of the second set, when she won her service at love, did Mrs. Court show the form that won her the Australian, French, Wimbledon and Forest Hills championships last year. She already had won the Australian title this year in her quest for another slam.

Mrs. Chanfreau, an Australian who married Jean Baptiste Chanfreau, one of France's top players, had Mrs. Court on the run throughout the match with drives deep to the baseline.

HELD UP BY RAIN

Richey, seeded fourth, was leading Colin Dibley of Australia 5-1 in their fist set and Lutz was ahead of June Kuki of Japan 4-0 when the rains came.

When play resumed, Richey closed out his match 6-1, 6-3, 8-6 and Lutz staggered to a 6-1, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4 victory.

Richey's sister, Nancy Richey Gunter, who is seeded No. 4 among the women, won her third-round match from Laura Rossouw of South Africa 7-5, 6-2.

In fourth-round doubles play, Richey teamed with Alex Metreveli of Russia, to defeat Terry Addison of Australia and Milan Holecek of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 2-6, 9-11, 6-1, 6-2.

Stan Smith and Gorman eliminated Jean-Baptiste Chanfreau and Pierre Barthes of France, 6-4, 6-3, 8-6.

Detroit Forward Quits Pro Hockey

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Jim Krulicki, 23-year-old Detroit Red Wings forward, says he's "not prepared to make the sacrifice required" and is retiring from the National Hockey League.

"My decision to quit professional hockey was not a hasty one," Krulicki said. "I've done much thinking about it."

He told the Red Wings 10 days ago he was quitting for personal reasons.

Incogs Bolster Cricket Lead

Incogs strengthened a hold on first place while helping to create a three-way deadlock for second spot with a 36-run victory over Castaways in a Victoria and District Cricket Association match Sunday at University School.

In other matches played the same day, Albions and Cowichan moved up to share second place with Castaways by playing to a draw at Beacon Hill Park and Oak Bay notched its first victory of the season with a 32-run margin over Alcos at Windsor Park.

Incogs ran up a 94-run total behind the batting of Tim Bale (28) and Jeff Rooper (21) despite a strong performance by Castaway bowler Dave Auld, who took four wickets for 14 runs.

Castaways could manage only 58 runs.

Peter Clarke scored 32 runs to pace Cowichan to 130 while Albions could only reach 107 for seven wickets before time ran out. Allen Carter toppled four Cowichan wickets for 45 while Kim Lord captured four Albion wickets for 23.

LARRY WALKER . . . won trophy dash

Larry Walker Charges To Main-Event Victory

Larry Walker came from well back in the pack to win the 30-lap super-stock main event in automobile-racing at Western Speedway Saturday night.

Walker sped from 14th place on the second lap to first on the eight as he overtook Mike Armstrong and then opened up a lead of his own that left only second place in doubt.

Behind Walker, who also won the trophy dash and finished third in the fast heat, Rick O'Dell spun out on the opening circuit but managed to make up the distance in finishing second ahead of Ross Surgenor and Neil Montgomery.

O'Dell started pulling away from the other two drivers with five laps to go after catching them on the 19th lap. During the time trials he set a super-stock record time of 18.59 seconds, lowering Surgenor's Sept. 12, 1970, mark by .08 seconds.

ROY PASSMORE WINS

In foreign stock competition, Roy Passmore won the fast heat and the 20-lap main event but lost the trophy dash (and a clean sweep) to Ross McIntyre by half a car length.

Cold weather resulted in a crowd count of only 2,172 fans, smallest attendance at the speedway this season.

One-Year Climb To Rowing Title

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — West Park, a new St. Catharines secondary school, boated its first crew last year. Today, the young oarsmen rule the Canadian schoolboy rowing scene.

Scoring four firsts at the 25th Canadian scholastic rowing championships Sunday, West Park won the Cosgrave Trophy, emblematic of the regatta points title.

West Park's 157 points were 71 better than Ridley College of St. Catharines, which scored its only victory in the premier event, the open eight. Grantham high school of St. Catharines was third on 82 points.

Shawnigan Lake School from Vancouver Island stood 21st with five points among the 217 entries. The rowing team placed fourth in the open cox four. Ian Johnston from Shawnigan Lake took sixth place in the open single.

Sentinel High School from Vancouver was 31st with two points.

Ridley took the feature event on a sun-dappled Henley course before an overflow crowd with its 2½-length decision over a field of six in the big eight. Covering the 1,500-metre distance in a sizzling 4:29, the rangy eight-oared crew (which averaged 195 pounds) set itself up for a return to the English Henley in July.

WON U.S. TITLE

Ridley won the U.S. schoolboy title for the third consecutive year last weekend at Syracuse, N.Y. Sunday's win was the second in a row for a Canadian crown and the trip to England next month will be in defence of the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup. Ridley last year was the first Canadian eight-oared crew ever to capture a Henley title.

St. Joseph's collegiate of Buffalo, N.Y., was second with Mount Herman, Mass., the 1971 New England champions, a deck back in third.

West Park won the 135-pound eight, 145-pound cox four, the novice 135-pound eight and novice open cox four to take the regatta title. Grantham came through in the 145-pound eight and novice 135-pound cox four.

SINGLES CHAMPION

Robert Fries of Sweet Home high school, Buffalo, was the open single champion in 5:44.2 for a three-length decision over Tony Novotny of Toronto's Lawrence Park collegiate.

Frank Pisani brought Blessed Sacrament high school of New Rochelle, N.Y., the lightweight single while schoolmates Angelo Bergamini and Dan Rooney combined to win the open double.

Reds Sign Pact With New York

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Providence Reds of the American Hockey League have announced the signing of a five-year agreement to affiliate with the National Hockey League New York Rangers, beginning with the 1971-72 season.

Net Final Delayed As Champ Injured

Men's singles finals at the annual Victoria zone tennis tournament are rescheduled for Wednesday or Thursday this week after an ankle sprain to the defending champion during warm-up activity Saturday.

The injury to Eddie Cockayne of the Racquet Club of Victoria, prior to his final against 18-year-old Ted Davis of Oak Bay, was the second such accident to occur at the tournament in three days.

WON JUNIOR TITLE

If Cockayne's ankle does not improve in time to play the rescheduled match, Davis will win by default. He has already won the junior singles competition.

In women's competition Saturday at Oak Bay Tennis Club, Sally Wood and Wendy Cuppage combined to defeat Ruth Trelawney and Nancy Hill in doubles action, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5. Mrs. Wood also won the singles final over Mrs. Trelawney by identical 6-2 scores.

Top seeds Ivor Goodmanson and Tim Cummings combined to win the men's doubles with a 7-5, 4-6, 6-3 victory over John Nicol and Bob Hutton.

President's Side Captures Shield

President's XI defeated a vice-president's side by 21 runs Saturday in the inaugural competition between two Victoria and District Cricket Association teams for the Chamber of Commerce Shield at Beacon Hill Park.

Dick Beal scored 22 runs to lead Presidents to a 95, all out, total while Dave Auld (21, not out) led Vice-president batsmen, who were dismissed at 74 runs.

Alec Porter led President bowlers by toppling five wickets for five runs while Alistair Murray of the losing side took two wickets for four runs.

City Side Keeps Cricket Trophy

VANCOUVER — Victoria cricketers retained the Cameron Cup by defeating Vancouver by four wickets in annual competition between under-18 representative sides.

After dismissing the mainlanders for 82 runs, the Victorians replied with 83 for six wickets as Peter McDonald set the scoring pace with 30 runs and John Courtney added 27.

Cordova Bay, Keatings Lead

Youngsters from Cordova Bay and Keatings dominated the Saanich school district elementary schools track and field meet recently at Centennial Stadium.

Each school had eight athletes finish first. Cordova Bay won the girls' relay trophy and Keatings captured the boys' relay award.

Cordova Bay had four second-place finishers as well as nine thirds while Keatings earned six seconds and six thirds.

BOMBER ROOKIES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers have announced the signing of two import rookies — defensive back Charles Olson and tight end Ron Carothers — for the coming Western Football Conference season.

Canadian-Owned Deceit Also Triple Crown Hope

(Times News Services)

An invader from the south and one from the north are making this the Year of the Triple Crown.

Venezuelan-owned Canonero II has won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, and hopes to wrap up horse racing's coveted "triple crown" with a victory in the Belmont next Saturday.

Deceit took the lead with about a sixteenth of a mile to go Saturday and won the $89,925 Mother Goose Stakes at Belmont Park. Ridden by John Rotz, the Canadian-owned filly got home three-quarters of a length in front of Grafitti. Favored Forward Gal finished third.

Deceit, who won the Acorn Stakes earlier this year, now needs only a victory in the American Oaks on June 19 to become the third winner of the "triple crown" for fillies.

The Canadian horse, which completed the 1⅛ miles in 1:50 1-5, boosted her 1971 record to two wins, three seconds and a third in six starts. The purse of $53,955 ran Deceit's career earnings to $223,727 on a record of nine victories, five seconds and three thirds in 17 starts.

Meanwhile, Canonero II hit the headlines at the weekend with the announcement that he is suffering a slight infection in his right hind foot. In addition, the "triple crown" hopeful is being treated for a skin rash.

"The skin rash is of no consequence and is clearing up," said the colt's Venezuelan veterinarian. "The foot infection is minor and has responded to treatment," added Dr. Jose Jernandez-Rosal.

RIVER BUOY WINS

Also with the sport of kings, Ranch Hand Stables' River Buoy scored his second straight stakes victory at Vancouver's Exhibition Park when he scored a neck decision over Alandian in the $9,050 Lieutenant-Governor's Handicap.

In Inglewood, Calif., French-bred Violonor, competing in stakes company for the first time, got in first in a blanket finish to beat the best in the West in the $54,850 Argonaut Stakes at Hollywood Park.

The French colt win the 1 1-16-mile test on a turf course in 1:41 and paid $14, $6 and $3.60.

Field Avenue, a 30-to-1 outsider, put on a rousing stretch run on the extreme outside and won the $29,275 Colonial Handicap at Garden State Park in Cherry Hill, N.Y.

Ridden by Buck Thornburg, the five-year-old mare beat Director by half a length in the 1 1-16-mile event for fillies and mares.

In Stanton, Del., Walter D. Fletcher's Foggy Road, one of the outsiders in a field of 10 crack sprinters, equalled the stakes record of 1:10 for six furlongs in the $28,900 Wilmington Handicap at Delaware Park.

They said someone should brew a beer like this:

So we did.

Unser Quick to Credit Crew In Wreck-Studded Indy Win

INDIANAPOLIS (CP-AP) — Al Unser, Peter Revson and A. J. Foyt packed up their money-bags today with more than $400,000 in prize money they won for their one-two-three finish in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Saturday.

Behind them were the wrecks of nine cars wiped out in violent accidents. Only a dozen of the 33 starters were around at the end of the 200-lap race, which also was marred by the crash of the pace car into a temporary photographers- stand, injuring 23 of 45 cameramen.

Unser, subdued but happy, accepted a cheque for $238,454.31 at the victory dinner Sunday night for his second 500 win in a row, considerably less than the $271,697.72 he earned in 1970.

Driving a Colt-Ford, Unser set a record average speed of 157.735 miles an hour, breaking Mario Andretti's 156.982 in 1969. Unser's time was three hours one minute and 14.02 seconds.

Three-time winner Foyt, of Houston, Tex., was two minutes 1.34 seconds behind Unser, or more than two laps, to nail down third place with an average speed of 157.068, good for $64,759.24 in prize money.

Exceptional pit work helped Unser to his victory and he noted it in his speech accepting first prize.

"I owe a lot to everyone and I can hardly believe this," he said.

The younger brother of the 1968 winner, Bobby Unser, had to dodge a burning pileup of cars midway in the race among them his brother's. But Al found a hole somehow and was on his way.

Speeds Up and Down Like Yoyo

The Albuquerque, N.M., native reserved special praise for his chief mechanic, George Bignotti, who has been chief mechanic for five Indy 500 winners.

"This was a difficult month for all of us," said Unser "My speeds went up and down like a yoyo. There were times when George couldn't figure out what I was doing wrong and there were times when I couldn't figure out what George was doing wrong. But we were able to pull it out and I have to thank George for it."

Then he saw four cars, one his brother Bobby's, shattered and burning inside the fourth corner. Gary Bettenhausen, who was out of contention, stopped to give any help he could to the crash crews.

Al, who lost a brother and an uncle in the auto speed business, isn't sure whether he would have stopped.

He didn't have to make the decision because the next time around he saw the unmistakable figure of his tall brother striding toward the pits.

"Thank God, Bobby's OK," Al said on his one-way radio, then charged on to victory.

The total prize money for the Indy 500 was $1,001,604.22, the second straight year the cheques have totalled more than 1 million.

The over-all total for this year's race, which attracted a gate of about 300,000, was a record payoff.

Malloy Fourth in Revised Finish

Richard E. Sauer, chief timer and scorer of the race, said Malloy was 1.12 seconds ahead of Vukovich, the son of a two-time Indy winner, the late Billy Vukovich. Malloy was given back a lap that was overlooked in the preliminary scoring.

Donohue dominated the race for the 66 laps in his McLaren off his high speed transmission gear. The 34-year-old graduate engineer, whose practice speeds were the talk of the speedway the whole month, set a lap record of 174.961 miles an hour on the lap before he lost his high gear. The previous record was 168.666 by Lloyd Ruby in the 1968 race.

Donohue's car, parked in the infield in the fourth corner, was later involved in the crash in which Mike Mosley of Brownsburg, Ind., was injured. Mosley, 24, suffered a broken elbow and leg and burns on his left arm and his face. He was the only driver seriously injured in a race marred by three major crashes.

Also involved in that wreck was Steve Krisiloff's McNamara-Ford which had blown its engine earlier in the race and was also parked in the infield.

Follmer, of Arcadia, Calif., was placed 15th after retiring after 147 laps because of a broken piston and won $18,281.24.

Dickson, of Marietta, Ohio, placed 28th after pulling out after 33 laps becaus of turbocharger trouble But won $13,600.24.

Al Bloemer, public relations director of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, said the management would take a hard look at the whole safety picture in view of the crash involving the parked cars and the crash involving the pace car.

Porsches Romp To Third Title

ADENAU, West Germany (AP) — Porsche clinched the world manufacturers' title for the third straight year Sunday with a one-two-three finish and a fifth consecutive victory in the 600-mile sports-car race on the Nuerburgring circuit.

Gerard Larousse and Vic Elford drove the winning Martini car, a Porsche 908-03 prototype, finishing in five hours 51 minutes 49.3 seconds for an average speed of 102.84 miles an hour.

Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico and Jo Siffert of Switzerland were second in a Gulf Porsche 908-03 in 5:51.59.3, and Helmut Marko of Austria and Gijis van Lennep of The Netherlands were third in another Martini 908.03.

Alfa Romeo 33.3 prototypes took fourth and fifth, costing the Italian factory its last chance of taking the title from Porsche. Henri Pescarolo of France and Italian Andrea de Adamich were fourth and Toine Hezemans of The Netherlands and Nino Vacarella of Italy fifth.

Porsches also took sixth, seventh, eighth and 10th places, with a Ferrari ninth.

Belgian Grand Prix driver Jackie Ickx, who had the pole position in the lone Ferrari works 312P for the gruelling 44 laps, held the lead most of the way until the car was forced out on the 21st lap. The engine apparently blew.

Elford took the lead on the 23rd lap and he and Larousse were never headed as they gave Porsche its sixth victory in eight races this season.

Vic West Bowlers Win Doubles Event

Family Affair For Allisons

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bobby Allison outgunned Donnie Allison in a brotherly battle of speedy Mercurys Sunday to win the $200,000 World 600 race at a record 140.442 miles an hour.

Chevrolet's heralded return to big-time stock car competition came to a smoking, grinding halt after 350 miles when Charlie Glotzbach crashed into a grandstand retaining wall to destroy the pole-winning car.

Bob Allison, winner by more than a mile, led for 309 of the 400 laps on the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway before a crowd of 78,000.

It was the 33-year-old veteran's first 1971 victory but the $29,400 payoff pushed his earnings to more than $70,000. Allison led six times in the world's longest stock car grind, but was unmolested for the final 261 miles.

His speed wiped out the record of 135.823 m.p.m. established by Jim Paschal in a Plymouth four years ago.

WINS $30,000

Donnie earned an estimated $30,000 for a sixth-place finish in Saturday's Indianapolis 500 and then crawled into the Wood Brothers Mercury to challenge the entire 600 miles although never capturing the lead.

Plymouth drivers Pete Hamilton and Richard Petty finished third and fourth, but both were more than a lap behind the pace-setting Allison.

Donnie Allison completed his wealthy weekend by grabbing a $15,000 cheque for a second-place finish. He completed the entire distance in both the 500-miler at Indy and the 600-miler at Charlotte.

Stricter Ski Rules Set for Amateurs

OPATIJA, Yugoslavia (AP) The question of whether skiing will be permitted in next year's Winter Olympic Games at Sapporo, Japan, may bring a showdown between the International Ski Federation (FIS) and the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

The FIS Congress, which ended here Sunday, revised its rules for amateur skiers, making them strickter than before, but still, perhaps, not strict enough to conform to the tough demands of IOC President Avery Brundage.

Brundage said this month in Vienna he had no intention of changing his strict stand on Alpine skiers in the Olympics. He declared that if the FIS did not step into line with IOC requirements there would be no skiing at Sapporo.

If the IOC does not accept the new FIS rules then it seems certain that the skiers, the majority of whom are in the FIS, will take part in a world championship event, completely divorced from the Winter Olympics.

The main area of contention between the skiing body and Brundage concerns expenses. The FIS holds that skiers be paid compensation for lost income each season for 60 days of training and 3½ months of competition.

Mainland Rivals Trim Host Teams

Rivals from the mainland made short work of their Greater Victoria hosts in three B.C. Intermediate Lacrosse League games Sunday.

Al Benson notched three goals to lead Salmonbellies while Roger Hill sparked Victoria with three and clubmates Rick Sylvester, Stu Thompson and Brian Gibson each scored twice.

Coquitlam was led by a four-goal production from George Musseau and Rick LaPointe fired three Esquimalt goals.

Bakers Romp Past Legion, Saanich Wins

Victoria McDonald's Bread players had a field day in B.C. Junior "B" Lacrosse League action Sunday in downing South Vancouver Legion, 36-5, at Memorial Arena.

All but the goaltender and Roger Dubyna; with one goal and six assists, managed at least two goals.

Kevin Alexander, with seven goals and three assists, led Saanich scoring and Kurt Robb tallied five goals and six assists. Steve Spooner of the Saints scored three goals.

Victoria Veterans Take Island Final

Victoria Oldtimers won the final of the Vancouver Island centennial oldtimers' soccer competition Sunday by defeating Duncan Oldtimers 5-1 at Naden field.

Ian Harris scored a goal in each half to lead Victoria's scoring while Victor Skinner, Len Scott and Bill Dobson added single tallies. The lone Duncan scorer was Bob Martin.

'Fantastic' Tea Party Turnout

Oak Bay's annual Tea Party drew 20,000 people over two days this weekend, not to mention two skydivers who got an unexpected bath.

Organizer Fred Usher called the turnout "fantastic." Spectators watched events on land, sea and in the air.

One of the airborne events, the skydiving exhibition, saw two participants end up in the sea. They were carried past their beach target by the wind.

Roger Foley of Victoria and Dave Hong of Calgary emerged wet and cold from their dunking but were otherwise unharmed.

Members of the Departure Bay fire department made a clean sweep in the Tea Party bathtub race Sunday afternoon, the first race of its kind in Oak Bay.

Peter Legg of 2580 Departure Bay completed the course first in 33 minutes and 20 seconds. Second was N. Neave, 34 minutes, 28 seconds, and third was Robert Pedersen of 2825 Departure Bay, 34 minutes, 58 seconds.

★ ★ ★

The Oak Bay police department bathtub had engine problems and was towed in last.

"We strongly suspect sabotage by the firemen," said a police representative.

The charges were emphatically denied by the Oak Bay firemen.

Six swimmers competed in the ninth annual third-of-a-mile swim from Mary Tod Island Saturday.

Fastest man was Ross Bruce, 950 St. Patrick, with a time of six minutes, 13 seconds. The fastest girl at seven minutes, 43.2 seconds was Judy Thompson, 2880 Phyllis.

The tea party began Saturday morning with a parade from Windsor Park, "the largest yet" according to Usher.

The title of Lord Mayor of the Loyal Order of Victoria Enthusiasts was bestowed on Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford at a special ceremony at 1 p.m. Saturday. Oak Bay aldermen were named barons.

Other tea party events included a dog obedience show, a demonstration of radio-controlled model planes, gymnastic demonstrations and a concert by the Oak Bay Junior Secondary band.

Young and old danced to the nostalgic strains of the Big Band Saturday night at the Tea and Crumpet Ball at Oak Bay Senior Secondary.

Most successful treasure hunters were Gordon Murphy, 2053 Renfrew, winner of $350; Colin Rutherford of 2570 Nottingham, winner of $250, and Mrs. Craig Galley of 1175 Lugrin, winner of $200.

Tomorrow Toils Begin, Clutesi Tells Students

Those who prefer a traditional approach to a university convocation ceremony were rewarded Saturday.

For up to the last speech — the valedictory by Denis Johnston — the University of Victoria's convocation was a traditional, predictable affair.

The highlight of the afternoon — before valedictorian Johnston's attack on president Bruce J. Partridge — was the convocation address given by noted Indian author George Clutesi. (See also Page 19).

Clutesi, author of Son of Raven, Son of Deer, and Potlatch, made a heart-felt plea for compassion among men. He told the assembled graduates that when the day came for them to go out into the world, what they would need most was compassion.

BEST YEARS

"You have had the best years of your life for the last 16 or more," he said. "Your environment has been secure and protected.

"Tomorrow nothing will be there to protect you. Tomorrow your toil will begin."

He related the story of a seminar he had given at the University of British Columbia at which he had asked the 70 students what they would do if they found they had a little Indian child in their classroom.

"Only two of over 70 students answered my question," Clutesi said, "and one said, 'I would wonder how far behind he was in his classes.' "

"This is not compassion."

"Should you find a little Indian child in your class, say: 'I will make friends with this little boy,' " Clutesi said.

"This is compassion."

CLUTESI HONORED

Earlier, the university had honored Clutesi and former Victoria mayor R. B. Wilson by conferring honorary doctorates of law on each man.

Wilson was honored for his years of service to Uvic, notably during the struggle for trasition from the old Victoria College to a full-fledged university. He had served as chancellor of the university for three years from 1967.

Lieutenat-Governor John Nicholson presented Ralph W. Saronak with the Governor-General's medal for the highest grade-point average of the graduating class. Sarkonak's average was 8.8 points out of a possible 9.0.

Kathrine A. Golobic was presented with the Maxwell Cameron award, (primary division) as the leading student in the faculty of education, and the secondary division award went to Sister Trudy-Anne Richardson.

Czech 'Fight' Goes On

PRAGUE (AP) — The long crisis has been overcome. Czechoslovakia is locked firmly in the Soviet bloc again, but the struggle must continue against rightists and Western influence.

That message to the public from the Communist party, offering little prospect of early relaxation, came today in the final unanimous resolution of the 14th party congress.

The five-day congress ended on Saturday after confirming Gustav Husak as party chief and announcing a new 115-member, drastically reshuffled central committe. Husak succeeded popular reformer Alexander Dubeck eight months after the Soviet invasion in August, 1968.

"The grave crisis in the party and society has been overcome," the policy resolution said, but "right-wing opportunism and revisionism" continue to be "the main danger we must fight against."

"The politically defeated right-wing forces are adjusting their tactics to new conditions, they are trying to influence the thinking of part of the people to misuse our mistakes.

The defeat of rightists is an "especially important task," but along with that fight the party will "overcome rigid, dogmatic interpretations of Marx Leninism," meaning the extreme left.

The resolution demanded strengthening of "class conscious discipline" and "struggle against all expressions of petty bourgeois thinking, survival of religious thinking, nationalism, anti-Sovietism and all forms of bourgeois ideology."

Body Search Spreads

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — The search for more grave sites in a case already involving the slaying of 23 transient fruit workers spread today to a neighboring ranch, while Yuba City residents prepared for Memorial Day services for the victims, many of them still unidentified.

Archivist Honored At SFU Ceremony

Provincial archivist Willard Ireland was honored Saturday by Simon Fraser University when he received an honorary degree at the university's convocation ceremonies.

Ireland is the chairman of the board of governors of the University of Victoria and has served on the board for nine years, as well as 21 years of service in other areas of university administration.

He was one of five persons honored by SFU Saturday. Indian Chief Dan George, weekly newspaper editor Margaret (Ma) Murray of Lillooet, Dr. Gordon Shrum, B.C. Hydro chairman, and Dr. Margaret Ormsby, head of the UBC history department, also received degrees.

About 10 sign-waving demonstrators disrupted the ceremonies briefly, thouting "We want jobs." Only about half of the 740 graduates attended convocation.

Ford Lists Problems

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Henry Ford II rates the environment as No. 5 on the country's list of problems. The board chairman of Ford Motor Co. says the first four are poverty, education, housing and crime. "To me it seems incredible that the wealthiest nation in history should still have substantial numbers of its citizens living . . . in absolute poverty . . . unable to obtain the food the, shelter and medical care required to maintain physical health and life itself," Ford told a dinner.

From Start to Race Rocks It Was the Ride of a Lifetime

By PAT DUFOUR

For this sailor, Juan de Fuca '71 turned out to be the ride of a lifetime.

Although we won no laurels—the race was won by Gypsy G of West Vancouver—the ride out to Race Rocks Saturday morning, in our seventh consecutive Juan de Fuca, made all the effort worthwhile.

It was like sliding down a ski slope as our Columbia 26 Galenaia II was lifted up on the big waves, surfing along the top with her bow wave steaming along her sides.

The thrill of reaching speeds above those that could be recorded on our instruments more than made up for the punishment Galenaia II took as she pounded through the angry tide rips off the Race.

As we headed up the Strait we began to hope that this would be the year to taste the tang of victory.

This was not to be.

Heading over to the American side, our strategy was to be inshore when the tide changed in order to pick up the favorable back eddies.

Our tactics proved wrong. The boats that stayed out in mid-channel picked up on us, blown along by good winds while we chased less powerful ones.

We knew that unless we could reach Race on the home leg before the tide changed—and unless there was wind to get us through — our chances of winning would be over.

This was not to be.

As in so many other years we flopped around at Race—no wind, bad tide.

We tried going outside for hours and eventually were forced to inch our way over and go through the inside passage, hugging the shore as close as we could to use the back eddy.

It was a slow ride home from there—but a pleasant one. As we stood our watch we reminisced—mostly about that exhilerating ride on the outward passage.

Finally, off the Victoria shoreline the wind quickened and we were able to fly over the line in style, reacher and staysail full with wind. It was a cheery finish, first our gun and then a friendly, "Glad to see you home" from onshore.

D. S. Gibberd's Gypsy G of the West Vancouver Yacht Club was first boat home and winner in IOR Division 1. Next in her division were Joe Golberg's Cirrus of the Corinthian Yacht Club, D. R. West's Skilfish of WVYC, and Guy Screech's Morgan of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

Vancouver sailmaker Gordie Hill of West Van. sailed his Ariki IV to victory in IOR, Division II. After him came Don Miller's High Life of CYC and Frank Musson's Meltmi of WVYC.

The only entry from the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association won herself top honors in the PHRF division. Roger Oldham's Te-Pah beat out 37 boats in her class.

After her were Bob Carere's Auquila of RVYV, John Sprouse's Sirocco of Portland, and two more RVYC boats, Denny Coverdale's Melee and Tom Loney's Hammerhead.

New Court to Be Proclaimed

At a special sitting at 10 a.m. Tuesday in courtroom D of the Law Courts here the Exchequer Court of Canada will cease to exist and the new Federal Court of Canada will be proclaimed.

Similar sittings will be held in Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax to proclaim the new court.

★ ★ ★

The Hon. Jacues Dumoulin of the Exchequer Court will preside at the Victoria sitting.

The Exchequer Court, Judge Dumoulin explained today, was instituted in 1887, and had exclusive jurisdiction in cases made against the Crown.

However, appeals of Exchequer Court decisions had to go to the Supereme Court of Canada, but the Supreme Court has been so overloaded many appeals never get heard.

The Federal Court of Canada will have two divisions, a trials division of eight judges headed by Associate Chief Justice Camil Noel, and an appeals division of four judges headed by Chief Justice Wilbur Jackett.

Judge Dumoulin, oldest member of the Exchequer Court will be a member of the appeals division.

One feature of the new court is that judges will travel to hear cases. In the past, the Exchequer Court heard all cases in Ottawa, and so the extra expense of travelling to Ottawa discouraged citizens or groups from seeking relief through the court.

Under the bill setting up the Federal Court the statute of limitations will now apply to the Crown. In the past the government could pursue a case no matter how much time had elapsed, but everyone else was bound by time limitations.

LADYSMITH ALDERMAN BIG BOOSTER

Archery . . . Scientific Challenge

By DONNA CLEMENTS

LADYSMITH — Pat O'Brien of Ladysmith is not going to let a slight but permanent disability to his left shoulder interfere with his favorite hobby — archery.

Last year O'Brien and his family were in a serious car accident in Vernon where he received a crushed chest.

At that time he was the current champion of Vancouver Island outdoor archery. This year when he entered the competition he found that he wasn't very competitive because of his injury. But O'Brien isn't going to let that defeat him. He plans to undergo thorough and intense practice sessions to regain his skill so that one day he may win the championship again.

ALDERMAN

O'Brien, 43, a Ladysmith alderman and a maintenance engineer at Crofton pulp mill, said that although he wants the title once again, his main objective is to help train other archers because he wants to share the excitement and challenge he has enjoyed since he took up the sport two years ago.

His interest in the sport was sparked at that time when his co-worker George Pierce, 34, also of Ladysmith, arrived on a visit with a bow and they tried shooting it. O'Brien then purchased his own bow and then "we just started plunking away." Pierce is the current champion of the Vancouver Island indoor and outdoor archery competitions.

CERTIFICATES

Although the men have been assisting many young archers to learn the sport, in June they will be writing for their instructor's certificates to add to their credibility as teachers.

Following their initiation to the challenging sport O'Brien and Pierce formed the Ladysmith Golden Arrow Archery Club. The club's facilities include 20 acres immediately south of Ladysmith at Holland Creek Park where they have 80 yards of archery range and a 15-target field course nestled in the woods with crisscrosses on a creek. They also have indoor facilities to practice on during the winter.

"We move outside just as soon as the snow is gone, though, because shooting indoors is so boring," O'Brien said. "It is only 20 yards and the targets are constantly the same distance and same size because of the amount of room. I like the regulation field course because periodically we can change the targets to add interest."

CHALLENGE

O'Brien said he finds archery both challenging and scientific. "No one gets good without understanding why both in terms of technique and equipment. I also find it relaxing. When I first started I used to practice sometimes up to four hours a day. I enjoyed it so much I never thought of it that way, though."

Within his first year of shooting O'Brien, secretary-treasurer of the Vancouver Island Archery Association, shot a Robin Hood. "That's one arrow into the shaft of another," he explained. He compared it to a hole in one for a golfer. "It was the first Robin Hood recorded in Canada. It was probably done before but no one bothered recording them, I guess. They do now."

SON REPEATS

A month after his Robin Hood, O'Brien's 17-year-old son Bob did the same thing. O'Brien shot a second Robin Hood last winter. In his archery career the enthusiast said he has shot thousands of bullseyes. "A person shoots hundreds just in a day of indoor shooting."

O'Brien said Vancouver Island is one of the most active areas in British Columbia and probably Canada per capita for archery. There are 12 clubs on the island.

Cowichan Arena Vote 78% Yes

LAKE COWICHAN — The $155,000 equipment and capital construction referendum for the new Cowichan Lake Sports Arena was passed with 78 per cent voter support from Cowichan Lake residents Saturday.

The referendum had to receive 60 per cent support in Honeymoon Bay, Youbou and Lake Cowichan to be passed. Honeymoon voted 88 yes and 18 no; Youbou 112 yes and 23 no; Lake Cowichan 308 yes and 126 no.

Only 30 per cent of the 2,451 eligible voters turned out.

$557,800 School Referendum Passes

DUNCAN — Cowichan School Board Chairman David Haywood looks at the passing of the $557,800 school building referendum Saturday by taxpayers as a "shot in the arm for the area."

"Everybody in organizations concerned with education, recreation and health were getting concerned with the attitude of people here because of recent defeated referendums" Haywood said.

"The passing of this referendum is like a shot of adrenalin in everybody's arm because it shows that the taxpayers aren't prepared to have facilities and services decrease at the expense of a few additional dollars. It is a real uplift."

THIRD TIME

This was the third time that the building referendum for 17 essential classrooms had been presented. It was defeated last year in April and December.

Of the 2,550 Cowichan School District taxpayers that went to the polls 65.65 per cent supported the referendum. There were 1,674 yes votes and 876 no.

Haywood expressed his concern at the apathy of taxpayers who didn't bother to turn out to vote on a money bylaw. Of the 10,000 eligible voters only 25 per cent turned out.

SHIFTS

Although construction on the new facilities will commence as soon as possible Haywood said they won't be ready for September.

"We will try everything possible to overcome the lost time suffered because of the defeated referendum in December and hope to have them ready by December."

Haywood said several elementary schools and Quamichan Junior Secondary will be on shift until construction is completed.

Nanaimo Man Killed in Crash

NANAIMO—A 24-year-old Nanaimo man, Jules Nepper, died when his truck went out of control on Nanaimo Lakes Road south of here about 6 a.m. Sunday.

His passengers, who have not been identified, suffered only minor injuries.

Skipper Undecided

The only real problem Kim Chow, a 40-foot sloop from Vancouver, had Sunday night was deciding whether or not she wanted a tow to safer waters.

Her skipper reported to shore authorities she was having trouble bucking the tide near Discovery after her auxiliary engines failed earlier in the day.

At first the skipper refused a commercial tow but then apparently changed his mind and wanted a tow. When it arrived, it was decided there was no need but shortly after the skipper radioed for a tow again.

Finally the vessel was taken to Cordova Bay where she dropped anchor for the night.

Rig Demonstrated

SASKATOON (CP) — To show the public what an oil service rig does, a 40-foot shaft was drilled at Index '71, a trade fair, and a pump inserted. The rig demonstrated its usefulness every two hours, pulling the pump from the shaft, cleaning it and returning it to the shaft.

A 20-year-old Langford man flown to Victoria following a motorcycle accident at Tofino Saturday remains in fair condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital with back injuries.

Michael Bushby, of 2768 Grainger, RCMP said, was flown by Canadian Forces helicopter after emergency treatment at Tofino hospital.

Police said Bushby was the only person on a motorcycle that went off the road near Tofino about 5 p.m.

Magnavox of Canada is presently celebrating its first anniversary in Canada. Yes, we have been a little quiet about it up to now but we think this is the time to make just a little noise.

From the invention of the electro-dynamic loudspeaker (the grand-daddy of all loudspeakers) in 1915 through its many electronic firsts—amplified radio phonograph in 1922—stereophonic high fidelity radio phonographs in 1958—solid state stereo in 1962—right up to total automated TV color systems, TAC another Magnavox milestone in super-improved television viewing, Magnavox has maintained its spirit of inventiveness in Consumer Electronics.

You'll agree when you see our Spanish, Mediterranean, Colonial or other fine style reproductions at your Magnavox Dealer.

Magnavox have a complete series of products from color and black and white TV with various screen sizes, to console stereo phonograph and high specification component systems.

Q. AND A.

If a Mini-Skirt Why Not a Beard?

Being our Questions and Answers Department to begin the week's work:

Question: "Would you please write an indignant column on the double standard that employers apply to young men and young women? My son was refused a position in the firm of (name withheld) because he would not shave his beard, cut his hair and wear the more conservative clothes the manager insisted upon. But when I went to complain I found the office filled with girls in mini-skirts so ridiculously short and revealing that they would surely offend any older customer. How can a man accept the current styles for girls and yet not for boys?"

Answer: I'm for everybody wearing exactly what they want to wear or nothing at all if that's their choice, but in this case the manager has a strong case for what you call the double standard. Your son would be in a selling role meeting people who could be turned off by his appearance. If a girl were to be taken on in a similar capacity, rather than just in the office, he says, he wouldn't accept the mini-skirt either. Rightly or wrongly, it's his privilege to insist on conformity and your son's privilege to tell him where to go.

Question: "How many readers of your paper, I wonder, are aware of the preferential treatment given to Americans by the Canadian Pacific ferry system? A Victorian going to Seattle by CP ferry is forced to pay out for two nights at a hotel or motel while the American visitor may enjoy a day trip to Victoria. Why can't they alternate the schedule to give us Canadians a break?"

Answer: You have a point there. The ferry to Seattle leaves here at 5:30 p.m., gets there at 9:30 p.m. Unless you plan to return the next morning at 8:30 it does, indeed, mean two nights in Seattle. The U.S. visitor, on the other hand, may have five hours in Victoria and be back in Seattle the same night. But it would seem to be entirely a matter of economics since U.S. tourists vastly outnumber the Victorian visitors to Seattle and we want to be nice to them to get their lovely money. Your best bet would be Pacific Western's direct, 35-minute flight to Seattle leaving here at 8:45 a.m. and leaving Seattle at 8:45 p.m.

Question: My wife and I were recently guests aboard HMCS Provider, the supply vessel. We were surprised that all orders were given in English though many of the crew are French-Canadians. As one who espouses the cause of bilingualism would you not think that the armed forces would be the first to adopt such a policy?"

Answer: In fact, the navy does have a policy of bilingualism that seems reasonable and realistic. I'm told that most daily messages are now written in English and French, but that the number of Quebecois serving on this coast wouldn't justify having both languages used in verbal orders. It would be impractical, for example, in emergency situations. The situation is reversed aboard the Halifax-based destroyer-escort HMCS Ottawa. Aboard Ottawa all verbal commands are given in French, even by those whose first language is English. Where it really counts—in menus—all navy ships are using both languages.

Question: "As potential foster parents my husband and I found your two recent articles alternately inviting and frightening. How can we learn more about it?"

Answer: You can start with a call to Mrs. B. Leyitz Packford, supervisor of the Family and Children's Service in Victoria, who will doubtless invite you to the regular "open house" meetings held for prospective foster parents. There you'll hear all about it, the good and the bad, from social workers, foster parents and, occasionally, parents whose children are in foster homes. The starting-point requirement is that you be a married couple of any age over 25, preferably with at least one child of your own.

If you go on from there—and many do not—social workers within the agency may spend up to six or eight weeks of pre-placement "home study," sizing up your home life and other qualifications. The decision on the age and sex of a foster child will be made mutually by you and the social worker. You'll know everything about the history of the child and he or she, in turn, will make visits to your home before any kind of decision is made.

Question: "In one of your recent articles you talk of Torontonians 'crouched in their miserable apartments in the concrete canyons of the terrible city.' As a former Torontonian I must object to this unflattering and unfair picture. What turned you against that exciting, cosmopolitan city?"

Answer: And why, dear sir, are you a former Torontonian if not for the same reasons that impelled my own escape? For many years, off and on, I worked in Toronto. My best friends live there. Culturally it makes Victoria seem like Podunk Junction. But the city itself is built where no city should properly be built. It is an enormous, rogue-elephant sprawl of unmitigated ugliness. Its winters are as unbearably cold as its summers are unbearably hot. Only a man in single-minded search of fame or fortune could possibly endure it. I offer a little prayer each morning to whatever gods gave me the courage to leave.

Question: "Just to settle a little bet between my husband and me would you tell us if that was really you near Clover Point at noon the other day flying a kite? I say it was. My husband says it is something no newspaperman would ever do. Your answer can win me a dinner out."

Answer: Bon appetit, my dear. I keep a kite in the back seat of my car and fly it whenever breeze and time will allow. It cost 49 cents and is the best escape I know from life's little irritations. You can't beat Clover Point on a brisk day.

The point was nicely made not long ago by some anonymous, middle-aged editorial writer for the Ottawa Journal who put it this way:

"Kites are like the human spirit, trying to surmount this world of care and strife. They soar into the blue sky, they dip and they glide. They are free. Or so they seem. But kites also falter, and even plunge in precipitous fall. Some get entangled in trees and overhead wires. Even when they return safely, it is to this terribly real world. For they must return. So it is with even the freest human spirit, and fortunate is he who can avoid the entanglements when returning. Anyone who flew a kite when young always felt this subconsciously. The kite at the end of that string in hand was yourself, flying free and high. With this in mind we overtiflties hesitantly offer this advice to youngsters: 'Make some adult happy today. If you see one watching your fly a kite, let him hold it for a minute.'"

CRITICISM OF PARTRIDGE RESENTED

Uvic Grads Desert Valedictorian

Faculty Member Leads Exodus

By BRIAN BUTTERS

A valedictory address critical of University of Victoria president Bruce J. Partridge and his policies caused about half of the graduates and spectators at Saturday's convocation ceremonies to walk out in protest.

★

The valedictory, given by Denis Johnston, a graduating mathematics student, criticized the university's decision to not renew the contracts of three popular professors.

And when he finished, the remaining graduates gave him a standing ovation.

At first, it appeared that the contract dispute, which has disrupted the campus for the last year, would not be mentioned at the convocation, except for a passing reference by Chancellor Roderick Haig-Brown in his welcoming address.

But as the ceremonies neared an end — the valedictory was the last scheduled event — the issue was raised by Johnston.

He spoke of the "anger and frustration" which students felt at the forcing-out of the three teachers — Dr. William Goede, Dr. Tikam Jain and Toby Graff.

"Most students don't give a damn who is playing political games in the Student Union building," Johnston said, "but they do care who is standing in front of their classrooms."

"It is the very essence of our university experience."

"Anyone who thinks that Goede, Graff and Jain can be easily replaced has been misled," he said. "Anyone who thinks they have been treated with respect has been misled."

The mass exodus from Memorial Arena, where convocation was held, was started by associate professor Kathleen Christie, who rose from her seat on the guest platform and walked down the centre aisle past the seated graduates and out of the building. A smattering of applause followed her.

Mrs. Christie was the mace-bearer of the convocation.

Johnston, who had paused in his speech to let Mrs. Christie leave, resumed speaking.

ONE QUESTION

He said he had one question to ask of arts and science dean John Climenhaga, whose field of study is physics, and Partridge, who studied physics and law.

"What do either of you know about the teaching of English?" he asked.

He was referring to the case of Goede, an English professor, whose recommendation for tenure had been denied first by Climenhaga and then by Partridge.

Johnson said there were "several dozen faculty members who could have been treated in this way" without anyone minding and said that of the 13 professors who earlier this year faced non-renewal of contracts, most were outstanding teachers in terms of teaching effectiveness and scholarship.

Johnston said students now "doubted the competence of an administration which would make them leave."

He outlined the history of the cases of Graff, Goede and Jain amid murmers and shuffling from many of the spectators, who numbered about 2,500.

'WE MOURN'

He said, "Bill Goede is out, and we mourn, not for Bill Goede but for the university because a man like this had to go when he did not want to."

At this point several graduates rose and walked out and were followed by more, as well as some of the spectators. Johnston continued speaking until more graduates, in dozens now, walked out with proportionate numbers of spectators.

Finally only about 300 of the 550 graduates remained in the arena with about 2,000 spectators. Of those graduates who stayed, the majority were from the faculty of arts, while science and education students made up most of the group who walked out.

Johnston, who had resolutely stuck to his speech through the mass exit, finally said:

"But I'm afraid I've gotten off the track. I'm sorry that people thought my comments were not germane to a university convocation."

Johnston said after the ceremonies his speech had been taken in a manner in which it was not intended.

VISIBLY SHAKEN

Visible shaken by the walkout, he said, "If it was taken that way I could be accused of a breach of taste. But it wasn't intended that way."

Johnston said he had cut out the most offensive parts of his speech because of the occasion.

"Didn't you see me doodling up on the stage?" he asked. So he was even more surprised when the graduates and spectators walked out.

Partridge said after the convocation:

"I feel it would be discreet not to comment at this time."

He said the actions of the students who walked out were sufficient comment for him.

Several students came by to congratulate Johnston.

"Way to go, Denis," said one, and another: "You were great!"

But one student commented that convocation was not the time for the remarks Johnston made.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing for too many people to do that," he said.

As if the experience of the walkout was not enough for Johnston, he found he had to make a return trip to the arena. He had left his diploma on the platform.

Speaker Deplores 'Shut-Off Minds'

"I said in my speech, 'A university is to teach people to think.' In view of this belief, it seemed sadly inappropriate that so many graduates could shut off their minds at a ceremony commemorating their university experience," Johnston said.

"It shocked me that so many graduates reacted when they should have thought.

"They were, in effect, demonstrating that they had brains, but didn't have the backbone to use them."

Johnston said, "I am idealistic enough to believe that one's convictions shouldn't change with the time of day. For me to have stood up there and pretended that the whole tenure controversy hadn't happened would have been terribly hypocritical and dishonest."

'NON-POLITICAL'

"If the people who walked out had listened to and thought about what I was saying, they would have realized that I didn't say anything that hasn't been thoroughly established as fact. I made no personal remarks, except in praising certain teachers; in my opinion, the text of my speech was almost entirely non-political and non-controversial," he said.

"When I was elected valedictorian, the hassle was in its embryonic stages, and I had no way of knowing it would develop the way it did, with CAUT censure and all. Having assumed the responsibility of valedictorian, however, I couldn't cop out when my turn came to speak up."

Johnston had a comment on the action of associate professor Kathleen Christie, who initiated the mass walkout.

REPUDIATION

Johnston said, "I think that if she hadn't made such a production of leaving, the students would not have acted the way they did. It points up the effects of students looking up to their teachers. She was the leader."

Prof. Christie said today the only regret she had about her action was that she did not fulfill her role as mace-bearer in the ceremonies. She walked out before the official procession of dignitaries filed out of the arena.

The honor of mace-bearer was conferred on her because she is retiring this year after 21 years on the faculty.

"Someone had to express a repudiation of an action which was completely out of place. To me the convocation is a very significant and solemn ceremony and no place for a political forum, especially of that vicious nature," she said.

NOT THE FIRST

"By sitting still, even impassively, I felt I would condone what this young man was doing. I did it without any premeditation. It was an action which just seemed to be necessary," she said.

"I didn't expect anyone to follow me."

Mrs. Christie pointed out that she was not in fact the first person to walk out in protest. She said that Professor Sidney Pettit and Dr. Herta Hartmanshenn had been the first to leave the faculty platform, but that they went out a side exit.

"I was the first visible one to walk out," she said.

The Alma Mater Society steering committee had this comment on the convocation walkout:

"It is probably true that for as long as Partridge remains at Uvic this sort of thing will continue to happen. Neither Partridge nor the board can get away from the fact that the University Act requires that first among the duties of the president is that he be 'the senior academic and administrative officer of the university'."

"It is now quite evident that the majority of faculty and students have no confidence in his performance in either role."

Partridge said today he was sorry the valedictory may have ruined the occasion for some of the graduates and their families.

"But I was interested to see the depth of feeling students, faculty and members of the audience exhibited by their walkout," he said.

Campsite Bid In Royal Oak Sparks Protest

A petition objecting to rezoning of 58 acres at Royal Oak for camper and trailer use charges that provisions of a 1965 Pollution Control Board permit have not been complied with.

The charges were denied by two of the owners of the Royal Oak Motel property, Joseph Isherwood and Saanich Ald. Foster Isherwood.

A rezoning application submitted by Joseph Isherwood to change the land use to include campers and trailers with hotel, motel and ancillary uses will be considered by Saanich council at a public hearing tonight at 7:30 in the municipal hall.

The petition said spray irrigation facilities have not been constructed and for at least a month this year the lower drains of each holding pond were open, allowing virtually untreated sewage to drain off towards Colquitz Creek.

Foster Isherwood, who has excused himself from council consideration of the issue because he and his brothers own the land, said today it is true the spray irrigation has not been constructed. But this was a requirement for a 100-room hotel "and we only have a 30-room motel." He said the facilities will be built when they have to be.

On the open drains, Joseph Isherwood said "we had a broken line" and it was not a month but a week and a half which was involved. He also said there was a "slight sloughing" in the system which was cleared out "but there was only rain water there."

He said that adding camper and trailer use to the sewage system would have to be cleared with the Pollution Control Board and the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, the two principal agencies involved in these matters.

He also said the campers and trailers would be a summer-time use only, there would be no permanent installations such as mobile homes, the area to be used is screened by trees and would not be seen from the road.

Sewer Inadequacy Hinted

The petition also states:

● The Pollution Control Board permit "implies" that the authorized sewage system has sufficient capacity for the motel complex, and is not designed for additional camper and trailer area.

(Isherwood replied that once additional facilities are put in, extra capacity will be built; "It can be done.").

● The rezoning application appears to include the 12 acres required by the pollution permit to be set aside for spray irrigation.

(Isherwood said there would be no trailers on the 12 acres because the permit would not allow this.)

● The camper and trailer site involves a larger sewage system and priority should be given to areas which will have residential buildings rather than "to areas for transients."

● There is a "probability" that an access driveway will be constructed to Pipeline Road.

(Isherwood said "no one says so.")

● Construction of a camper and trailer area next door to Beaver Lake Park will increase the already extensive use of the park.

"I thought parks were to be used. That's what we have them for," replied Foster Isherwood.)

● The proposed use will increase police and traffic problems and involve the municipality in more expense.

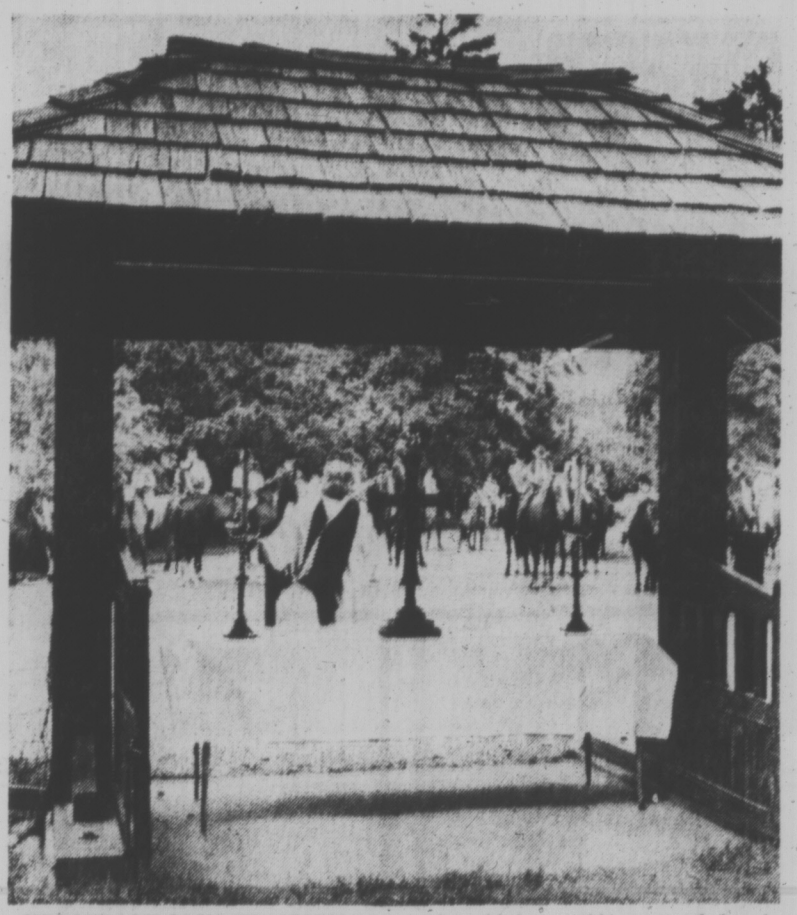
One of the petition organizers, Dr. Marc Bell, 4651 Pipeline, said he hopes many questions will be answered at the public hearing "and hopefully council will refer it to committee for further study and/or preferably to the Capital Regional District for detailed study and recommendation."

The regional district owns Elk-Beaver Lake park.

"None of us is against encouraging tourists to come to Victoria for pleasure. We all benefit from this.

"The question is where to put them and how best to encourage them without making local residents suffer in the process of have to give up some of their own potentially valuable recreational and greenbelt area to accommodate them," he said.

Saanich council agreed to hold a public hearing after favorable recommendations from its Advisory Planning Commission and planning department.



HORSEBACK CONGREGATION listens to Rev. Ian Futter at St. Stephen's Church in Saanichton Sunday in unique horseman's service. The service was conducted for people who said they could not attend church because they had to exercise their horses. Lectern and organ were moved outside for the service.

BEAVER LAKE PARK

Access to Be Examined

This was confirmed today by a spokesman for the department, which is rebuilding Patricia Bay Highway along the Saanich Peninsula.

The problem which confronts motorists proceeding from the urban area to the park is that a double white line makes it illegal to turn left into the park. Even if it were legal, such a turn from the one north-bound lane at that point would pose problems of potential traffic delays and rear-end collisions.

The alternative for motorists is to drive further north, turn on to a residential street, turn around and come south on the highway.

The existing problem is a temporary one until the new highway is completed just to the east. This is expected to be in two months, when the present highway will become a frontage road.

Alf Petersen, owner of Wooded Wonderland at the park entrance, said today there will be a serious accident or a traffic pileup "or both" unless something is done.

BUSIEST PERIOD

The coming two months, he said, will be in the busiest period of the year. Seventy per cent of Wooded Wonderland's traffic comes from the south and "only one of every 10 people going to Beaver Lake Park" goes to Wooded Wonderland.

He suggested warning sings of an approaching left-hand turn be posted and carry the double north-bound lanes an extra 300 to 400 feet to allow a car to have a left-turn bay.

Ask The Times

Q. Who pays for the transportation and housing of the American bands that participate in the May 24th parade? L.D.

A. The bands pay all costs themselves. Members raise money through fund-raising campaigns such as car washes, pancake bakes.

Q. Is there an organization in Canada which handles complaints about defective automobiles?—E. G.

A. Yes. Write to the Automobile Protection Association, 292 St. Joseph's Boulevard West, Montreal.

Q. Could you please give me the personal mailing address of Bob Dylan and Joan Baez?

A. The only available mailing addresses are their offices. Bob Dylan's may be reached in care of Albert B. Grossman, 75 E. 55th N.Y., 1022; Joan Baez in care of Folklore Productions, 176 Federal Street, Boston, 02110.

Record Youth Invasion Due to Start Soon...

As summer days and temporary surcease from their studies approach, students across Canada are shouldering their knapsacks, ready to join the nation's permanent transients on highways from coast to coast.

Predictions are that the number of young people on the road, most of them with little or no money and no specific destination, will be greater than ever this year.

Across Canada, civic officials, social agencies and police departments are girding for the influx of transients and the inevitable confrontations which will result.

Victoria will greet more than its share of these casual tourists. However, this city's attitude toward the situation is in marked contrast to those of other areas.

Some of the reasons for this contrast were revealed recently, when two workers from Cool Aid, the city's youth self-help organization, and four police officers sat down for a frank discussion of youth, particularly transient youth, in this area.

Following are excerpts from the discussion, involving Inspector John Post and Staff Sergeant Charles Trueit of the Saanich force, Constables Dale Melin and Douglas Wilson of the Victoria department, Cool Aid workers Rick Stamford and Laurie Smith, and Victoria Daily Times reporter Neill Gaddes.

Melin: When we go to Cool Aid house, they're not trying to sneak us into one room or keep us in the hall . . . they take you anwhere you want to go. Anybody who wants to see the place they'll take you through . . .

Smith: We feel the relationships are excellent. We don't have any trouble at all. We tell that to a lot of like groups across Canada and they're usually fairly astounded at that. They say you don't have any trouble with police? They don't come around? They don's hassle you in the middle of the night? Occasionally they come around to look for a runaway but they never come to cause any trouble because we are open. That's really an important thing.

Wilson: What happens today if a 15-year-old kid comes in there?

Smith: Well, the first thing if a kid comes and is 15 . . .

Wilson: They don't say they're 15 but you believe they're 15. And it turns out they're 15.

Smith: I have seen so many people through there I seem to be a fairly good judge of it . . . I think Charles (Barber) and Rick and the other people are . . . They say I'm 18 and you say wait a minute I don't believe that you're 18. Then generally if you talk to them usually you can explain . . . the reason for it if we get charged with harboring then we're going to get into a lot of trouble. And they're going to get into a lot of trouble, too.

Wilson: You send them on their way or what?

Smith: No. So he finally says I am 15 and a runaway from Moose Jaw. Okay, obviously we're not going to get him back to Moose Jaw right that instant. He's got to have a place to stay that night. So, you phone Children's Aid Society and talk to a worker there and get their approval . . . permission to stay overnight with us.

Wilson: So they know it?

Smith: They know he's there. And we set an appointment up in the morning and try to arrange some repatriation of whatever the service wants to do with him . . . or the kid wants to do. But, you know, we don't throw him in the back of a car and take him up there. We just say in the morning the Family and Children's Service is there if you want a ride okay if you don't okay. What they do then is up to them.

Melin: Family and Children's Service don't come down and get them?

Smith: No.

Times: So you alert the Family and Children's Service, they can stay there one night and they're not obligated to go to the appointment. You say it is there and you can speak to them if you want. What if they say I don't want to go? I want to stay another night? Or we want to stay three nights in Victoria?

Smith: Well, they can't.

Times: So you deal with them?

Smith: Yeah, you're here for the night with the blessings of the Family and Children's Service and if you want something else to happen, if you want to go home or you want to stay here another night, then you better get out there and go for your appointment tomorrow morning or forget it.

Post: Do you feel, for instance, when a kid knocks on your door at Cool Aid . . . is he more or less surrendering? He knocks at your door and say look I'm 15 . . . are you sort of the last resort?

Smith: Yeah, sometimes . . . You run out of places to crash, you don't have any money anymore, you're tired, you don't want to do it anymore . . . it's over, it's not fun and you want to go home . . . I remember when I ran away from home it was a lot easier for me to go and get my brother who was older and wasn't living at home and we went and it was just an easier thing to get back into the situation . . . sort of like the mediator. It's just an easier way to go home.

Post: So, in other words, if a kid wants to stay on the road Cool Aid should be the last place he comes to if he is a runaway?

Wilson: Some kids go there, I think, because they can get two or three nights lodging.

Smith: I'm sure we have kids that are only 15 but look 20.

Smith: People ask us all the time why can't you find my kid? Why can't you find this? And I usually show them the stack like that of runaways that have been reported in the last two years just through us alone.

Wilson: I'll bet you have got a lot of missing juveniles on your outstanding file. . . .

Smith: We do.

Post: It seems whenever parents talk to us there is always one question that comes up. That is "When they are in your establishment, is it the same as what it was in the armouries in Vancouver?" For instance one big happy family, boys and girls together, sleeping together and using of drugs. What is the stand of Cool Aid on that?

Smith: People always remember bad things so the thing they remember out of the newspapers . . . not any good hostel reports . . . all they remember is the fiasco at Jericho. The way we operate now and we always have is the boys and girls are segregated. Right now when we move into the new church it'll be boys in the gymnasium, girls in the old part of the church.

No access at all . . . and completely separate toilet facilities in the same building.

The way we are running now the boys stay at St. John which is the corner of Balmoral and Quadra and the girls stay at our house which is 953 Balmoral, a third of the way up the block. The only time any of them mix is during dinnertime . . . lunch or dinner.

Smith: About the dope. We have three rules; we won't tolerate drugs, alcohol or sex. And sex is pretty hard because the boys and girls are half a block away.

Stamford: One time — remember that time we had a couple of faggots in there . . . only time . . . slip of the rules . . . they snuck in.

Wilson: Do they have a worker staying with the girls?

Smith: At the house there are three of us — Charles Barber lives there, I live there on the top floor with an office and downstairs we have a girl working for us, Kathy Sharkey, a university student. She lives there and the girls sleep in the front part of the house . . . She sleeps right down there and so she answers the door and sort of is there and keeps control.

Smith: It's only happened once that we know of.

Merlin: Did you take it away from him or what did you do?

Smith: It happened during a free clinic and it's the only time in three years. We just threw him out. Those three rules are unbreakable . . . once they're broken that's out forever. Middle of the night, 10 feet of snow, it's goodbye. If we tolerated that for one second we'd close down like that.

Stamford: We got these signs up all over the place and they know why we don't want to allow it. Therefore, if they are breaking it, they don't have much respect for us.

Wilson: How old will you accept people?

Smith: Anybody.

Wilson: In other words, if a 50-year-old guy wanders in he can stay there overnight? It's not limited to young people?

Smith: It's just anybody that needs help. A lot of times the Salvation Army refer people right to us. A guy will go there who is a little under the weather or for reasons they won't let him in . . . in some cases they have a certain program and they have to stick to it. Sometimes they come at dinnertime and they'll notice that most of the people are fairly young and feel uncomfortable. They'll eat something and go away.

Merlin: I imagine you get people in there who are anti-police.

Smith: Yeah, a lot of them are anti-Cood Aid never mind anti-police. I mean they're anti-us.

Merlin: What would happen if Doug or I or the inspector or the staff-sergeant popped in one day? And I assume a few of your guests are performing . . . telling you . . . pig.

Stamford: I don't know what you'd do. You can't make rules . . .

Smith: It happened once . . . this young kid came late at night and we said how did you get here. Oh, the pigs drove me here. Here's this kid and he didn't even stop to think. It was just something that came out of him. And Charles (Barber) said well did the guy take you to jail.

Hospital Locals Merge

NEW WESTMINSTE R — Essondale and Woodlands School employees who belong to the B.C. Government Employees' Union have merged into one local with a membership of 1,600.

The merger was approved during May at separate branch meetings. A statement issued by the union said it didn't make sense to have separate union groups representing large numbers of psychiatric aides, tradesmen and culinary staff doing the same work for the same employer in institutions so close together.

The Woodlands branch represented about 450 members who worked in the school for retarded children. The Essondale branch represented some 1,150 members working at the Riverview and Valleyview mental hospitals.

FAMILY SECTION

beat you up, handcuff you or anything like that? No. Well, what did he do? He brought me here . . . he just doesn't think . . . it comes flowing out. Instead of all these bad things happening to him, some good things were happening to him.

Post: Are we really justified in patting ourselves on the back in this city . . . we're doing a pretty nice job? Is our problem maybe, not as big? If our problem were to increase would we be able to keep the same attitude as what we have now?

Stamford: I wanted to talk about this a little more. I have been very interested . . . I talked to a fellow, a city police officer, yesterday . . . about the course they are taking . . . police psychology, I think it's called. To me that sounds terrific . . . getting into the reasons why these confrontations are happening and dealing with them.

Post: It's all very good from a policy point of view. It looks good when we sit around this table. But assuming now that there was from Vancouver or some big city . . . 50 or 60 militants were to come over to this town. 'I don't care what they represent, whether they're motorcycle gangs or hippies . . . or drug addicts, it doesn't matter . . . we have got to cope with them. Now we're going to say how come these characters have this problem?

Stamford: What is their problem?

Post: How am I going to deal with them in the meantime if they go around to a shopping centre and terrorize people? I've got to deal with them. What kind of attitude am I going to adopt? If I deal with them, I meet fire with fire, is the environment here completely ruined, destroyed, because of it?

I mean — what sort of press coverage are we going to get, which is very important? If the press is going to blame the police or the people that set policy and make big headlines and then leave it dangling. You know this is what happens also and this is what has happened in Vancouver . . . Can we pat ourselves on the back?

Stamford: I don't think you can ever stop and start patting yourself . . . because you'll lose contact.

Post: Right. But what are we going to do when the problem does come here, when we do have a problem? How are we going to react to it?

Stamford: Well, I say deal with it, but deal with it wisely. Also understand why the problem is there . . . Vancouver . . . I was there two weeks ago and to me there's a lot of people going around completely lost and completely disenchanted with everything about, I suppose, society and just looking for some sort of answers. I don't know how to deal with that myself.

Post: . . . I think we've got to keep on working on what could be . . . You tell me what a person who is responsible for law enforcement is going to do if there is, for instance, a riot . . .

Smith: Yeah, some things there's no way you can predict them. So setting up how we would react . . . how can we speculate on that? There are certain conditions that can be anticipated and worked on beforehand. There are certain things that have been neglected in other places until they get to such a point . . . there is no way you can deal with them but violence.

Post: Let's take it over the last decade, since 1960. I think that is what you call police psychology. In the Greater Victoria area, the police have gone into schools. This was never done before.

As soon as there was a fad or a problem where there could be a conflict we went, we recognized it, we talked to the kids about it. I think that is where we can say we have worked on it from both sides and that is why we have got this environment. But don't ever forget that it can be spoiled.

Stamford: In seconds.

Wilson: It takes one action.

Post: There is a very thin line between those two groups.

Post: That is the worse thing we can do. That is what we have done this morning, more or less. We've said there is no problem, we have no problem with you and you have no problem with us. We are patting ourselves on the back and I think we have to be very careful.

Wilson: The old question used to come up when Cool Aid first started. Well, look we got along without Cool Aid for five or 10 years.

Now if Cool Aid wasn't here would we have any problems? Would we have any runaways? This gets asked a lot.

Stamford: But who would know what the kids's situation . . .?

Post: This is wrong.

Wilson: This is the thing they throw at you all the time.

Smith: The situation must be pretty bad at home if they're willing to come to Cool Aid where it is more stringent, probably, than what they have at home. One thing they have to eat the cooking. The regulations governing their lives are probably a lot more stringent than what they are complaining at home . . .

Smith: That's one of the things why Cool Aid does appeal to a certain group of young people . . . the fact of its informality.

They are sort of afraid of the Family and Children's Service. They got the big doors and you have to get an appointment. You have to wait. A kid of 14 is pretty impatient. They want someone to talk to, generally they want to talk right now. And at Cool Aid that can happen. You can sit down and talk.

Whereas if you go to the Family and Children's Service, it's a pretty long and drawn out process. You have to sit and wait and there's frustration.

And it's very intimidating . . . to a 14-year-old who is not feeling pretty good and right away he's confronted by this massive electronic equipment. And the guy is answering telephones and going for coffee and issuing memorandums. That turns a lot of kids off and they're afraid of it.

Heart Patient 'Left' His Body

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto man who suffered a heart attack last year says he saw himself leave his body and had strange tranquil sensations during a critical period when his heart stopped.

B. Leslie Sharpe, 68, says during the period his heart was not beating he was able to observe himself "face to face."

Mr. Sharpe describes his experience in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal as part of a report by Dr. R. L. MacMillan and Dr. K. W. G. Brown, co-directors of the coronary care unit of Toronto General Hospital.

In the report, the doctors said: "This could be the concept of the soul leaving the body."

The morning after he was taken to hospital, Mr. Sharpe says he remembers glancing at his watch while lying in bed hooked to the wires of a cardiograph machine and intravenous tubes.

"Just then I gave a very, very deep sigh and my head flopped over to the right. I thought 'Why did my head flop over?—I didn't move it—I must be going to sleep.'

"Then I am looking at my own body from the waist up, face to face (as though from a mirror in which I appear to be in the lower left corner). Almost immediately I saw myself leaving my body, coming out through my head and shoulders (I did not see my lower limbs).

"The body leaving me was not exactly in vapor form, yet it seemed to expand very slightly once it was clear of me," says Mr. Sharpe.

"Suddenly I am sitting on a very small object travelling at great speed, out and up into a dull blue-gray sky at a 45-degree angle.

"My next sensation was of floating in a bright, pale yellow light—a very delightful feeling.

"I continued to float, enjoying the most beautiful, tranquil sensation.

"Then there were sledge-hammer blows to my left side. They created no actual pain, but jarred me so much that I had difficulty in retaining my balance. I began to count them and when I got to six I said aloud 'What the . . . are you doing to me?' and opened my eyes."

He said he recognized doctors and nurses around his bed who told him he had suffered a cardiac arrest and he had been defibrillated — shocked by electrical pulses to start his heart beating normally.

The doctors said it was unusual for a heart attack patient to remember events surrounding the attack and that usually there was a period of amnesia before and after an attack.

FATHER OF THE BRIDE, President Nixon, above with daughter Tricia, says his hopes for his daughter's future include being "out of the glare of merciless publicity." The president, who made the statement today in the current issue of Look Magazine, said of his daughter, "She has a great sense of privacy; she does not seek or like the public eye." Tricia Nixon is to marry Edward F. Cox June 12, in a White House ceremony. (AP Wirephoto)

18 Persons Baptized

As a culmination of a period of personal Bible study and ministerial training, 18 persons from local Jehovah's Witness congregations were baptized Saturday at the Kingdom Hall on Joan Crescent.

Robert Jackson, circuit supervisor of Jehovah's Witnesses told the candidates that immersion in water symbolizes one's death to his former way of life and coming out of the water means the beginning of a life of service to God.

Do not lift the feet from the floor. Drag legs and arms out and in.

SUCCESS ENCOURAGING

Readers Report on Diet Gains

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

This is the seventh week of my Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan, and I am already beginning to receive exciting letters from readers who have been following this course. There is nothing quite so encouraging as hearing about the success of someone else. We think, "if they can do it so can I."

I am printing a couple of these letters today, hoping that they will inspire you to continue until you reach your goal and may also cause others who have procrastinated to join the gang for rapid self improvement. Here is the first one.

Dear Josephine Lowman,

"I can't wait to write you about my success. I began your course when the first article appeared in my newspaper six weeks ago. I had planned to lose weight so many times but only made a few stabs at it. I hesitated about trying, but you made it sound so possible that I started. I cannot tell you how glad I am that I did.

"I was 30 pounds overweight and those pounds made me feel like an old woman instead of the young one I am (29 years old). I was timid because I was self-conscious about my figure, and I had lost all interest in clothes, just wore something loose and comfortable. I had not realized how much my personality had changed until I began to lose those pounds.

"It has truly made me feel like a new person. I have lost 18 pounds and will continue now until I lose all of that blubber. Nothing can stop me now! If overweight women could just know how different they would feel, there would not be any fat women left in the world.

"My husband never said anything about my overweight, but he is so happy about my losing weight. He took me shopping for a whole new outfit and is so proud of me that he wants us to invite all of our friends to a party to celebrate. It's wonderful!"

Dear Mrs. Lowman,

"I did not join Bip to lose weight, but my pounds were so out of proportion. Therefore, I did not diet but I did do the exercises you recommend very faithfully. I am really amazed at the results. I have reduced my waist and abdominal measurements and increased my bust measurement. Just what the tape measure prescribed!

"I have also had some happy surprises. I used to be tired much of the time. I have so much energy now and the stiffness has gone out of my arm that had been giving me trouble. I just feel more youthful. I would not have belived it if I had not tried it!"

There is nothing I can add to that, except, it is true. You won't believe it until you try it!

It is not too late to join my Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP for short). If you started late or missed some of the series which has been published in this newspaper, or if you wish to begin now, you can have my BIP Kit, to guide you. It gives you complete directions, includes a calorie chart, champion exercises, a height and weight chart, menus with calories counted for two weeks, and a wall chart on which you can plot your progress. If you want the BIP Kit, send 25 cents plus 15 cents for postage and handling and your printed name and address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Hobbs Principal To Be Honored

J. R. "Jack" Hayes, principal of Frank Hobbs elementary school for the past 19 years, will be honored Thursday, June 10, by area parents and former students.

The get-together will take place in the school's activity room. Organizer Mrs. A. B. Hall, 3720 Crestview, is inviting former pupils to bring old class photos and other mementoes.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Forced Mistake

DEAR ABBY: I respected your answers until you gave a put-down to that person who was all for forced marriages.

It doesn't make one bit of difference what kind of husband or father the boy will be. He can be a rotten husband and a lousy father, but at least the children will have a legal name. That is all that is important. It doesn't even matter if he lives with the girl after he marries her. If he's no good, let him clear out.

A boy should be forced by law to give his name to any children he fathers. That's the trouble with the world today, nobody is made to live up to their responsibilities. — Old-Fashioned.

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: You are entitled to your point of view, but please read on.

DEAR ABBY: Those who think the best solution to an unmarried girl's pregnancy is to force the guy to marry her might like to hear my story.

When I was 14 years old, I "fell in love" and became pregnant. The boy was 16. Our parents decided it would be best for all concerned if we got married. You can't know the horrible disaster it was. When my baby was three months old I got pregnant again, and my child-husband went home to his mama. There I was, not yet 16, with two babies!

I was supposed to get support checks, but none came, so no organization would help me. I couldn't pay my rent or buy food. We nearly starved to death. We lived on mayonnaise and bread for two weeks. Then eviction.

My own parents turned their backs on me so I took my two babies to my husband's parents where at least they would be fed. These "kind" people refused to let me see my children after that. It has been eight years now and I am grateful that my children have a good home even though I am not allowed to see them.

I am not blaming my parents. At the time they did what they thought was best for me, but I tell other parents: Please don't push two kids into marriage just to give a baby a name. I would have been much better off with one baby and no husband. — Old At 22.

DEAR ABBY: One of your readers thought shotgun weddings were the only answer when a girl gets into trouble. Let me tell you my experience as a shotgun bride.

I married because I was pregnant, and my husband really had a gun in his back. Before my fifth anniversary I had five babies, three of which were in diapers at one time. I had no running water, no toilet facilities, inside or out, and we all lived in three small rooms. I never got to go out, with or without my children. Yes, my children have a legal name, but I don't know if you would call them legal or not. You see, their father never paid the doctor's delivery fees. A marriage doesn't mean your husband will support you, or love you, or take care of you.

I'm now separated, not divorced, because he claims he "loves" me and the children and he won't give us up. But he hasn't visited us or paid me any support in two years.

If my unmarried daughter ever gets pregnant I will never insist on a shotgun wedding. What's in a "name"? I have two names, but what good are they when I have five children and no husband?—Stuck.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to tell HATES PIANO who is 13 years old something. I'm 15, and I've taken piano for 10 years. My parents forced me to take lessons, too, and I hated it and begged to quit. I really didn't hate piano, I hated my teacher. She made me sit on a hard bench and kept saying, "Don't watch your hands — watch the music!"

After fighting with my folks and crying a lot for six years I changed teachers. That was the turning point of my musical education. I loved my new teacher, and I realized I loved music, too. Now I could kick myself for ever wanting to quit.

I keep hearing older people say, "I'm sorry I didn't stick with my piano lessons." Now I know what they mean because I'm glad I did. — Loves Piano...And Chopin And Beethoven, And Mrs. Harris.

Adrian Mitchum says:
Don't despair about ugly age spots. Fade them away.

Happy day! Now your hands can become clear, smooth, youthful-looking again. ESOTERICA has worked for thousands of grateful women. You see, those spots of pigment are in the surface skin, and ESOTERICA has a medication to penetrate, to reach, to break up those spots . . . and help fade them away. It tightens up enlarged pores and leaves your skin soft and dewy. In fact, you'll see a noticeable improvement in less than six weeks. You'll like ESOTERICA'S greaseless, absorbent cosmetic texture, too. Excellent as a powder base or fragrant hand cream. $2.25 for 90-day supply. At the fine stores you would expect.

Reversal Needed

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Ray Perrault, Liberal MP for Burnaby-Seymour, said Saturday it is time "to stop acting as if we are ashamed of spiritual involvement."

He told 550 persons at a convention of the Knights of Columbus that man will destroy himself unless his moral sickness is reversed by spiritual involvement.

"In the presence of great technology in scientific achievement there is the greatest deterioration in moral values the world has ever known. . ."

Strom Concerned

BOW ISLAND, Alta. (CP) — Premier Harry Strom said Saturday night his government is concerned about the possibility of a renewal of inflation as a major problem.

He told 50 supporters that the measure used by the federal government to hamper inflation were misguided and unproductive.

Partial and temporary controls of wages and prices may be necessary to combat inflation, the premier said.

"The solution does not lie in withdrawing credit as the federal government did. In withdrawing credit the federal government restricted the development, thus deliberately increasing unemployment."

Milestone Reached

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's Provincial Museum and Achives welcomed its one millionth visitor in April, Glen Wiley of Fraser Lake, B.C. He was given several books on Alberta and a set of museum publications to mark the event. The museum opened Dec. 6, 1967.

Reassessment Urged

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dr. W. C. Lockhart, retiring president of the University of Winnipeg, told graduates Sunday society overlooks the aspects of higher education "which add quality to our living and must not be evaluated entirely by placing a dollar sign beside them."

Dr. Lockhart said the current over-supply of university graduates is a repeat of the situation which existed during "the dirty 30s and the great depression."

"Surely the events of the present moment are forcing all of us to reassess what the true purposes of education are," he told the university convocation.

New Equipment

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP) — A new piece of farm equipment designed specifically for seeding of research plots is being marketed by a Swift Current firm. The machine, which includes a four-wheel tractor, also can be used for cultivating.

Fires Rage

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Nineteen forest fires continue to burn in the Fort St. John district Sunday, despite scattered showers and cool temperatures. The largest blaze, dubbed the Buck Fire, covers about 3,000 acres of mature spruce at the junction of the Bucking Horse and Sikanni rivers, 120 miles north of this community. Forty men, using nine bulldozers finally got the fire in check.

THE WEATHER

A strong ridge of high pressure just off the B.C. coast will build very slowly eastward across the province today and Tuesday as a trough of low pressure in the interior gradually weakens. The outer coast will remain clear during the next 48 hours. Skies will clear over the southern mainland this afternoon and it will be sunny and a little warmer on Tuesday. Inland areas will be mostly cloudy with a few afternoon showers today and tomorrow. However a clearing trend will develop over the western interior late tonight on Tuesday morning as the ridge of high pressure builds from the west.

Pedal Power

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 100 cyclists helped raise $1,524 Sunday as the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control brought pedal power to Stanley Park. The money will be divided between the Vancouver Parks Board and SPEC for a boulevard tree-planting program and the groups' general work against air pollution. Among the cyclists was Fisheries Minister Jack Davies, who turned a few 4½-mile laps on a borrowed bike.

Couple Identified

REVELSTOKE (CP) — Police released the names Saturday of a Manitoba couple killed when their car left the Trans-Canada Highway and plunged down a 100-foot cliff.

Dead are Mr. and Mrs. James Patrick O'Grady of Winnipeg, who were in the process of moving to Victoria.

Bright Future Seen

BURNABY (CP) — Education Minister Donald Brothers told the closing session of the first meeting of British Columbia Community College Councils in Burnaby Saturday that the future of colleges in the province is bright.

While Brothers gave no indication of where or when any new colleges are to be started in the province he said student population at regional colleges has grown to 12,000 from 2,500 five years ago. The minister said he expects this growth to continue.

LONDON—"Jennifer and I only met about four weeks ago," said financier-art collector Norton Simon. "I fell in love straight away. We decided to come to Europe, and it was in Paris that I proposed." The 64-year-old Californian who put together a billion-dollar conglomerate and a $100 million art collection married veteran film actress Jennifer Jones, 52, aboard a chartered launch at 4 a.m. Sunday in the English Channel. Friends said Simon and Miss Jones decided while visiting London to get married but needed 15 days' residence for a ceremony in England. So Saturday night they hired the launch, took along a London clergyman, three friends and a customs officer as witnesses, and the 10-minute ceremony took place just outside British territorial waters.

MARRIED AT SEA were 64-year-old California financier Norton Simon and film actress Jennifer Jones, 52.

TORONTO—Churchmen in South Africa are tempted to believe that the commandments of the state and the commandments of God are the same thing, Alan Paton, the South African novelist, said Sunday. Paton, speaking at a packed congregation of a United Church gathering, said: "There is a great danger that the church is not aware it is being corrupted by the society in which it finds itself." Paton said there are a few brave and notable exceptions in the church who oppose the South African state on its racialist doctrine of apartheid, but he linked many South African churchmen to the German Christians who acquiesced to the Nazi regime.

OLEAN, N.Y.—"There's nothing terrible about being square," comedian Bob Hope has assured the graduating seniors of St. Bonaventure University. "The squares are the ones who make the clothes, bake the bread, build houses, and even make the motorcycles," he said. Dressed in academic robes for the school's 111th commencement Sunday, the entertainer reminded the graduates they would be the establishment of tomorrow.

EASTMANVILLE, Mich.—Monroe Rutty, who was known as Joe Steel for 58 years, died Sunday at the age of 111. He was given the name of Joe Steel back in 1907 when he wandered into the Ottawa county poor farm and said he didn't know who he was or where he came from. Fifty-eight years later, he was recognized by a nephew who spotted a newspaper article about the unidentified man. But the name of Joe Steel stuck.

SAN FRANCISCO—It was a moving marriage aboard one of San Francisco's famous cable cars. Linda Ann Linstrom and Phillip Burns Abbott, students at Humboldt State College at Arcata, exchanged vows in the first 10 blocks of their ride on the little car which clicked and clacked up and down the hills.

CANADIAN SHOW IN LONDON

No Nudity and No Bad Words

LONDON (CP) — The latest production at the Roundhouse, a suburban theatre, may break the chain of nudity and obscenity which has become part of that particular stage where the highly controversial sex comedy Oh! Calcutta! had its British premiere.

Maybe That's Your Problem, written and directed by two young Canadians, is a contemporary musical about a middle-class American who finds himself sexually inadequate.

"Despite the theme, there's no nudity or four-letter words," stressed Charles Dennis, Toronto-born director, in an interview.

At 26, Dennis has been "in the business" for 18 years. "I was a child actor in the Canadian radio series Peter and The Dwarf during the early '50s," he said.

Boy-faced Dennis reckons that his new production, which opens June 8, is "a musical therapy."

"I think it will be a terrific show because it's frank and helpful without being in any way dirty," he said.

Chetwynd, now an assistant managing director of Columbia Pictures, finds that his job "gives a terrific involvement in all areas of the contemporary theatre and cinema."

This is his first attempt at serious writing and he is unsure of success: "I don't expect to win a Nobel Prize for the work—it hasn't got that sort of profundity."

HOME GARDEN

Facing the Spring Backlog

By HILDA BEASTALL

The spring months come to an end with gardeners still facing a backlong of jobs, most of them quite small in average sized gardens. What we need is a list in brief form that we can check off as we go, so that we know that progress is being made.

Hilda

Do first the essentials for good plant culture; next year's display depends on the jobs being done now — today.

Snap off seedpods from tulip stems; remove the tiny seedpods from rhododendrons (azaleas) as blossoms fade. Do not take any leaves or plant stem, only the slender stalk bearing each little pod. Only necessary on small or young shrubs.

Camellias have a larger seedpod — remove those on small shrubs to conserve energy.

Rockery plants — aubrieta, arabis; iberis and alyssum sheer these hard to make a lot of new tight growth this summer.

Sow seed of whatever biennials you would like to have in flower next spring and early summer — wallflowers, Canterbury-bells, foxgloves, hollyhocks (try the full doubles).

Newly-planted trees and shrubs must have sufficient moisture in root area to encourage new roots to form. Do not flood the soil; neither let it dry out.

Small succession sowings of all quick growing vegetables should be maintained. Carrots, lettuce, radish, onions are much better flavored when young and crisp.

As spaces occur, sow more. Aim for quality, not size and quantity.

Hand pick insects. Most infestations commence as a few isolated specimens. Watch your plants each day to deal promptly with those which appear.

Last chance to sow sweet corn, though dwarf varieties will still give an August crop.

Cut stems of thyme and sage if wanted for drying to use in winter.

Sow annuals herbs outdoors if not already started.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Every once in a while, as I am lecturing to a class of bridge pupils, I feel the urge to blurt out: "How could you forget so quickly when I remember so well?"

This urge is usually evoked by the forgetfulness that is characteristic of some pupils. A few weeks ago this urge came to the fore, and was inspired by what happened at one of the dozen tables where today's deal was being played simultaneously.

At the outset of the session, I had given a brief lecture on the subject of the opening lead. I had pointed out that, against suit contracts, the top card of a three-card sequence is an excellent lead to make (K Q J; Q J 10 x, etc.). But one pupil forgot. Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

♡ K J 10
◇ K 8 4
♣ A K Q 10

WEST	EAST
♠ A 6 3	♠ Q J 10 5
♡ 8 2	♡ 7 5
◇ Q J 10 9	◇ A 7 6 3 2

SOUTH
♠ K 7 4
♡ A Q 9 6 4 3
◇ 5
♣ J 9 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♠.

West's opening lead should have been the diamond queen. The theme of the deal was that South was not to play the king from dummy, for if he bid East would win it with his ace. A spade return by East (if he guessed to lead a spade), would then enable the opponents to trap South's king and make three spade tricks. South was supposed to be aware of his position — and his play was to be geared towards keeping East out of the lead.

Thus, on the opening lead of the diamond queen, a low diamond was to be played from dummy, to keep west in the lead (no East player could be that clairvoyant that he would overtake his partner's queen, to return the queen of spades). South would then ruff the continuation of the diamond jack, pick up the four outstanding trumps, and cash the board's four high clubs. On the fourth club, he would discard one of his losing spades and fulfill his contract.

But, at one of the tables, West opened the nine of diamonds. A low diamond was played from dummy, and East, quite naturally, took the trick with his ace. Since it was futile to return either diamond or a heart, East played back the queen of spades. Declarer now had to lose three spade tricks, and his contract was defeated.

What did I say to the West defender? Not a thing. I couldn't in a million years have convinced him that he had made a "losing" lead.

Hoo Hoos Plan Woodwork Contest

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Valley Hoo Hoo Club is sponsoring a woodworking competition in the four senior secondary schools in the Cowichan Valley this week.

Local contractors, Pat Milino and Ivan Thornton, will travel to Lake Cowichan, Ladysmith, Chemainus and Cowichan high schools Wednesday and Thursday to judge woodwork completed by Grade 11 and 12 students.

Prizes, which will be power tools, will be awarded for the top piece of work at each school. The winning projects will then be judged at a final competition on June 13 where a more expensive piece of power equipment and a Hoo Hoo Club trophy will be awarded to the successful person.

fun with figures

By J A H HUNTER

"You know Magic Squares?" said Joan. "They gave Jeff a very easy one at school."

"Numbers in a square, something like a checker board," replied Bob. "The rows, the columns, and the diagonals all add up to the same magic total."

"That's right," Joan told him. "But for his square there are only three different numbers, all one digit, and only three of each. And the magic total is 24."

You try.

Thanks for idea to W. J. Rayner, Barrie, Ontario.

BEN FRANKLIN'S
UNUSUAL COPY

"TAKEN OUT OF A PEW IN the Church some months since, a Common Prayer Book, bound in red gilt, and lettered D.F (Deborah Franklin) on each cover. The who took it is desired to open it and read the eighth Commandment, and afterwards return it into the same Pew again, upon which no further Notice will be taken."

Tonight's Top Television Shows

CABLEVISION 10 LISTINGS. 7 p.m., Ladies First; 7:30 p.m., Project Travel; 8 p.m., Music Victoria—Conservatory of Music; 8:30 p.m., Victoria Outdoorsmen—sailing edition; 9 p.m., Canadian Forces Pacific; 9:30 p.m., Connections.

MUSIC ALBUM. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Singers Julie Amato and Ed Evanko join host Wally Koster in a special salute to Cole Porter. Songs include C'est Magnifique, Love for Sale, My Heart Belongs to Daddy, What is This Thing Called Love? Easy to Love and Everytime We Say Good-Bye.

GUNSMOKE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 7 (rerun). "Blood Money" guest-stars Nehemiah Persoff. It is a gripping drama in which Persoff plays the distraught father of a gunslinger. The father decides the only way to end his off-spring's shooting career is to wound him in his drawing hand.

FROM A BIRD'S EYE VIEW. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). Stewardesses Millie and Maggie (Millicent Martin and Patte Finley) get fired because efforts to boost their work rating position get fouled up and they are accused of hanky-panky with the system. Uncle Bert comes to their rescue, enlisting the aid of the International Order of Good Fellows to recover their jobs.

ROWAN AND MARTIN'S LAUGH-IN. 8 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). Cast members turn up as animal impersonators—including actor Richard Crenna as a lion—in one production, "People Do the Craziest Things." Crenna also is featured as a minister in a Mod World look at religion and a Welfare Department official explaining how recipients are put up in plush Manhattan hotels.

IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. Mel Torme calls the year 1933, when "Brother Can You Spare a Dime" was a hit song. Hitler and Mussolini were beginning to emerge, Bonnie and Clyde went on their killing rampage, and Sally Rand got the country in a tizzy by dancing with fans—and nothing else—at the Chicago World's Fair. Sally is 67 now and she'll be Mel's guest to talk about her "daring" act. It seems so tame now.

MONDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 4. "Sergeant Deadhead." Frankie Avalon is Sgt. O. K. Deadhead, a shy, bungling non-com who accidentally gets launched in a spaceship, transforming him from a timid soul into an arrogant astronaut. A fair comedy, unmemorable songs, but some good performances from veteran actors César Romero, Fred Clark, Gale Gordon, Reginald Gardner and Eve Arden, which make it enjoyable.

WORLD PREMIERE MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 5. "Breakout," starring James Drury, Kathryn Hays, Woody Strode, Sean Garrison and comedian-actor Red Buttons. A different role for those accustomed to watching Drury as The Virginian. Drury plays a convict who plans an escape so he can retrieve $50,000 stashed away from a bank robbery, and also be reunited with his wife (Kathryn Hays). Red Buttons, as Pipes, becomes the advisor and Woody Strode plays a cellmate who joins the escape effort. Fairly good prison drama, with prison scenes filmed inside Folsom Prison in California.

BLACK JOURNAL. 9 p.m., Channel 9 (rerun). "The Black Woman" is the subject of this sometimes brutally frank, incisive conversations with a number of black women who have achieved measures of success in a white society. Lena Horne, beautiful and wonderful singer, offers the most penetrating interview as she discusses her career, her two husbands—one black, the second white—and her feelings about the black revolution which enabled her to recover her image as black singer. In another segment, six black women of prominence discuss the black's role in today's society. They include authoress Verta Mae Grosvenor ("Vibration Cooking"), Jean Fairfax, NAACP legal defence lawyer; Mrs. Martha Davis of the Harlem Drug Fighters Union; Marion-Etoile Watson, a TV producer; Mrs. LeRoi Jones, and Joan Harris, hostess of a TV show, "Positively Black" in New York.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30: Channel 12: The Golden Horde (1951 adventure). Ann Blyth, David Farrar. Epic about the barbaric sweep of Genghis Khan out of Asia.

7:30: Channel 12: O.S.S. (1946 drama). Alan Ladd, Gerladine Fitzgerald. Fairly exciting drama about a mission by some WW II officers of O.S.S. who prepare to move into Nazi-occupied France to help the underground.

9:00: Channel 4: Sergeant Deadhead (1965 comedy). Frankie Avalon, Deborah Walley. Story about a shy lad who after an accidental space trip is transformed into an arrogant extrovert.

9:00: Channel 5: Breakout (1970 drama). James Drury, Kathryn Hays. Filmed at California's Folsom Prison and in the High Sierras.

11:00: Channel 13: Hold That Woman (1940 comedy). James Dunn, Frances Gifford. Hectic comedy concerning the troubles of two bill collectors.

11:30: Channel 7: I'd Climb the Highest Mountain (1951 drama). Susan Hayward, William Lundigan. Story centres around a young minister and his bride who tries to adjust to her new life and responsibilities.

THE BISHOP CRIDGE CENTRE FOR THE FAMILY

The Society is pleased to announce expansion of its program to assist disadvantaged families from Victoria and surrounding areas. Twenty nine town houses with 2, 3 and 4 bedrooms are expected to become available for tenancy during July and August, 1971, which together with supportive care of pre-school and schoolage children are intended (predominantly) to serve families dependent on mother's income. The program is of particular interest to mothers who would prefer to seek or continue employment. Income qualifications are imposed, under low-rental housing requirements. Without any obligation, the initial form of application will be provided in response to telephoned or written requests to:

THE MOST SPECTACULAR VIEWS
IN THE UPLANDS

Are yours from practically any point in the fully sprinklered grounds of this modern bungalow or from most of the rooms in the house. Main floor accommodation consists of: sunken living room, dining room and kitchen with full house-length sundeck overlooking the Yacht Club, plus master bedroom, bathroom and small den. An open stairway leads down to the lower level with recreation room and three bedrooms, all facing the water and having ground level access. This is not a large home and may well be on the small side, but the setting is such and the site so superb and beautifully landscaped that the value has to be in excess of the asking price of only $55,000. For a personal tour, call JACK MEARS, 598-3321.

Ceylon Rebels Achieve Part Of Their Goal

COLOMBO (AP) — Ceylon's rebels failed in their attempt to overthrow Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike's government, and security forces are mopping up holdouts in remote mountain areas, but they have achieved part of their goal.

The government is preparing to carry out the radical Socialist reforms it promised in its successful 1970 election campaign. It realizes that its failure to fulfil its promises set off the insurrection in April.

Mrs. Bandaranaike is reported to have cleared a radical package with cabinet members from her own Sri Lanka party and presented it to the full cabinet. It is said to include land reforms, control of the economy and restructuring of education.

There was North Korean involvement in the rebellion and suspicions of Chinese Communists also having a hand in it, but Mrs. Bandaranaike has cleared the Chinese and news of a $30-million, interest-free, long-term Chinese loan, announced Thursday, was warmly received.

SOME REBELS FREED

Nearly 13,000 rebels captured by government forces have been detained for screaming at Vidyodaya and Vidyalankara universities. About 200 have been released because it was felt that their part in the uprising was minimal.

The MiG-117 planes sent by the Soviet Union have been in the hands of Ceylonese pilots for some time. All but a few of the Soviet pilots and technicians brought in at the height of the trouble have left the country, and this Soviet presence is expected to be eliminated by mid June.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew continues through the island. Much of the tension that marked the turbulent weeks of the insurrection has disappeared.

Ex-Victorian Gets Doctorate

A former Victorian Saturday became the first woman to be granted a doctorate from Simon Fraser University.

Gael H. Huntley, 34, who graduated from University of British Columbia as Governor-General's Gold Medalist after leading her class in the first and second years at Victoria College, was awarded a doctor of philosophy degree in biological sciences.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stott, 1949 Crescent.

Wreckage Spotted

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Wreckage of a light plane was spotted today on Brush Mountail, 20 miles west of here, and a Civil Air Patrol spokesman said it appeared to be the missing craft carrying the United States' most-decorated Second World War hero, Audie Murphy.

Chicken, Egg War In Court

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The full nine-man bench of the Supreme Court of Canada today began hearing the arguments from eight provincial governments, the federal government and eight commercial associations involved in the controversial "chicken and egg war."

At stake is a constitutional definition of how much power the provinces have to regulate trade over imported products within their borders.

The actual case before the bench is an appeal launched by the Manitoba governments against a March 12 decision of the Manitoba Court of Appeal which declared ultra vires the province's proposed egg producers marketing plan.

Some 19 lawyers and about 35 observers crowded the courtroom for the hearing which is expected to run at least two days.

CHAIN REACTIONS

It will directly affect the spate of egg and chicken marketing regulations thrown up by several provinces in recent months to protect their producers from outside competition.

These developed in a chain reaction retaliation against Quebec's decision last year to implement a producer marketing board governing all egg and chicken sales within its borders.

Opposition MPs have argued the "war" could balkanize all internal trade within Canada and possibly lead to break-up of confederation.

The federal government maintains that its national agricultural marketing board's bill, still hung up in parliament, would solve the problem if adopted.

The Ontario government, which is locked in an actual fight with Quebec over egg and chicken shipments across their common boundary, put a preliminary motion before the current hearings arguing the Manitoba's appeal is an academic issue.

4 Killed On Mainland

By the Canadian Press

At least four persons died accidentally in mainland British Columbia during the weekend, including a man who drowned when his mobile home plunged into Kootenay Lake near Nelson.

Edward W. Hansome, 54, of Winfield, and his wife were riding in the converted bus when it apparently lost its brakes near a ferry landing. The couple escaped through a window, but Hansome died before reaching shore.

Traffic accidents early Sunday took the lives of two men.

Lawrence Gardner, 61, of Cranbrook, was killed when his truck and a bus side-swiped each other near Fernie in the east Kootenay.

Nelson Crites, 24, of New Westminster was killed when the car in which he was riding hit a pole in Vancouver.

Thirteen-year-old Cynthia Lee Moore of Williams Lake was killed Sunday afternoon near the Interior community when a car in which she was a passenger failed to negotiate a curve and crashed.

DRAFT-DODGERS TOLD DON'T COME TO CANADA

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto group formed four years ago to aid United States draft-dodgers is advising potential dodgers to stay away from Canada because of "unemployment" and a "backlash of nationalism" among Canadian employers.

The Toronto Anti-Draft Program spells out its new policy in a revised edition of a manual for draft-age imigrants from the United States.

Airport Firefighters At Edmonton Strike

Times News Services

EDMONTON — Firefighters at the International Airport here Sunday ignored a federal transport department order to begin a three-shift system and five supervisors took over their jobs.

A union official in Vancouver said firefighters at the airport there will halt work if the federal government does not intervene in the Edmonton dispute.

Syd J. Sillett, president of the Vancouver local, said Sunday night that the firefighters' action could close down operations at six airports in Canada: Winnipeg, London, Toronto, Montreal, Goose Bay, Nfld., in addition to Vancouver.

TRY THREE SHIFTS

Firefighters have traditionally worked shifts of 10 or 14 hours, a pattern established by the International Association of Firefighters. The transport department aims to try for six months a three-shift system on which each man works eight hours a day.

Firefighting duties at Victoria International Airport are handled by Department of National Defence Fire Services under Chief Patrick Kennedy.

Kennedy says strike by firemen at the other airports would not affect Victoria. However in the event of a total shutdown of Canadian airports, the DND guys would honor a picket line here.

Man Nearly Drowns

A 29-year-old city man who was thought to have been practising holding his breath at a local health spa swimming pool Saturday is in poor condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital after being pulled from the water.

James Gordon Shepherd, 1727 Denman, was swimming at the Palm Springs and European Health Spa, 1570 Hillside, shortly after noon Saturday.

Spa district manager, Keith Innes, told police that he saw Shepherd face down in the water and thought at first the man was practising holding his breath as he was in the habit of doing.

Innes motioned another man in the pool over to check on Shepherd and the man signalled he was alright.

Innes told investigating officers he sent the man over to check a second time a short time later and he was pulled from the pool and given artificial respiration.

City Jaycees Sweep Awards At Convention

The Victoria chapter and the Jaycee-ettes, women's division of the local branch, were both named outstanding unit in B.C.

The Victoria unit was also awarded top honors in five committee categories: internation relations, ways and means, unit publication, community development and entertainment.

Three MLAs Expelled In Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Three opposition members were expelled from the legislature today for three days after they accused Speaker George Clarke of favoring the government.

John C. Crosbie (Ind. Liberal — St. John's West), William Marshall (PC—St. John's East) and T. R. V. Earle (PC—Fortune) all declared they did not recognize the Speaker as being impartial.

The accusations were made after Mr. Clarke ruled there was no breach of privilege in statements made outside the house Friday by Premier Joseph Smallwood.

The premier said in interviews Friday on two St. John's radio stations that his son William was defending his mother when he punched Mr. Marshall in the face in the legislature Thursday night.

RULING CALED A SHAM

Mr. Crosbie said Mr. Clarke was a "tool" of the government and he described the ruling as a "bluff and a sham."

He was asked to retract the statement but refused.

The speaker then asked him to leave the chamber.

A motion by Health Minister Edward Roberts that Mr. Crosbie be expelled for three days was passed by the government majority.

Mr. Earle said "I feel the Speaker is not partial." He refused to withdraw the statement.

A motion by Premier Smallwood that Mr. Earle be expelled for three days also was passed by the government majority.

Mr. Marshall stood next and said the Speaker was not being partial.

He also refused to retract.

Again Mr. Smallwood's motion that Mr. Marshall be expelled for three days was passed.

Opposition Leader A. J. (Hank) Murphy and other nongovernment members then walked out.

Mr. Murphy said outside the house he would not return to his seat "for the time being."

With opposition seats vacant, the government passed the last $6.5 million in estimates in 6½ minutes.

Campaign Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress is urging all its affiliated unions, provincial federations and local labor councils to bombard the federal government with demands for a "full employment budget."

Four Seasons Site an 'Instant Park'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A barren patch of land at the entrance to Stanley Park was turned into an instant park during the weekend by about 100 demonstrators protesting a planned $40 million apartment-hotel project.

Nine of them were arrested Saturday in a scuffle with police after a 40-foot section of the eight-foot wooden fence surrounding the project site was ripped down.

Bob McKay, manager of the project for Four Seasons Hotels Ltd. of Toronto, said Sunday his company hasn't decided what action to take, if any, against the occupation.

PARK RENAMED

About 50 of the demonstrators camped overnight and one of them said they planned to stay until "there is some sort of definite statement that this area won't be commercially developed."

Another said Sunday it is impossible to tell how long the renamed "all seasons park" will exist.

"It may be largely a symbolic thing, but we hope to get more people interested in helping to build their own park," she said.

A suit in British Columbia Supreme Court, backed by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, is challenging four city bylaws passed in the years since the project site was first assembled in 1963.

The bylaws allowed a higher population density for the Four Seasons development than was previously permitted in the city.

Four Seasons hoped to start this summer on putting up three 33-storey apartment buildings, several smaller ones and a hotel. They would house between 5,000 and 6,000 persons.

Mayor Tom Campbell said the occupation of the site was planned by a group "that was looking for trouble." He said they wanted the police to try to oust them to force a riot.

The mayor suggested that if young people feel something should be done about the Four Seasons plan they should campaign for it, but they should respect the rights of others in the process.

Fraser Berry Crop Hit Hard by Weather

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Picking of this year's estimated 13 million pound Fraser Valley strawberry crop will start in about five days, but a hard winter and cool spring appear to have taken their toll.

The crop is expected to be down by one million pounds from last year because of winter injury and a long, cool spring which has also delayed the harvest by about 10 days.

Bill Peters, the provincial government's small fruit horticulturist here, said Sunday the plants came through the winter in poor shape and many farmers have been foliage feeding in an attempt to bring them back to normal.

There are little more than 2,000 acres in strawberries in the valley and this number is expected to decrease by next year as a result of imported processed fruit from Mexico and consequent low prices to growers.

"Certainly the Mexican imported fruit has brought about a change in thinking by many of our growers," Mr. Peters said.

Traditionally, the Fraser Valley strawberry harvest goes to the processing trade. Of the 14.5 million pounds harvested last pear, only 800,000 pounds was sold on the fresh market.

Mr. Peters also said the prospects for the 1971 raspberry crop do not look good.

Hydro Strike 'Unavoidable'

2,200 Linemen Poised

VANCOUVER (CP) —A strike by 2,200 B.C. Hydro linemen is unavoidable and it could be a long one, an official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said Sunday.

Labor Minister James Chabot said today that while he "views the situation with alarm," he would not use Bill 33 "at the present time" against the 2,000 members of the electrical workers' union.

The government's action will depend on whether the IBEW initiates a total walkout, Chabot said. He also said the labor department has no further plans to find a way of getting Hydro and the union back to the bargaining table.

Though he would set no time for a strike start, union negotiator Doug Cronk said:

STRIKE PLANS

"We have no choice now but to strike, and we're looking at one soon. When we start, our actions will be predicated on the support we have behind us (from other labor organizations)".

He said the electrician's union has strike plans all set

Barrett Firmly In Saddle

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

"The unity of this convention indicates that this party for the first time in 35 years is united both psychologically and politically in a way that it represents a positive alternative to those foolish, wasteful and uneconomic policies centred around a small group of men whose homes are in Victoria," Barrett said following his re-election by acclamation as NDP leader.

Not only was Barrett re-elected without a fight, but he also won firm control of the party's executive, taking 12 out of 19 positions. The three-day convention ended Sunday at the University of British Columbia.

HAYNES DEFEATED

Several federation-backed candidates did win executive posts, but Haynes' defeat surprised even Barrett's supporters and left the labor leader solidly in the background of NDP internal politics for at least another year.

Haynes issued a repeated string of "no comments" when asked by reporters to discuss his defeat. The Waffle decided to censure Barrett, but this had more of a "sour grapes" tone than a policy statement against his views.

TWO SPEECHES

Barrett talked about the convention in political, rather than policy language. Like Haynes, he too stayed mostly in the background, speaking to the 430 delegates only twice, and then only for brief periods.

From a strictly political viewpoint, it was Barrett's convention. Now that the Waffle has censured him, no one will be able to call Barrett a radical. With Haynes in the background and a pro-Barrett slate running the executive, Barrett will be able to continue his task of

FORNAZZO, Sicily (AP)—Angry farmers on the slopes of Mount Etna complained today that the thousands of sightseers watching the eruption were doing more damage than the lava.

Crowds trampled the vineyards and climbed to vantage perches in the fruit trees to see the fiery spectacle.

The lava still was pouring down the mountain side on the 56th day of Etna's second worst eruption this century.

Census Called Sexist Oppression

MONTREAL (CP)—The federal government's 1971 census form is an insult to women and a prime example of "sexist oppression," says the Women's Action Movement of Montreal.

The movement is urging women and sympathetic men not to complete the form and to return it blank to Ottawa.

In a statement released today, the movement criticizes the section of the census form which defines the husband as head of the household.

Noting that the census does not include housework in unpaid hours worked "in the operation of a family business or farm," the statement said:

By PAT DUFOUR

In the toughest race since the first Swiftsure was sailed in 1930, one of the smallest boats has won the biggest trophy of them all.

On handicap, Tom O'Brien's Cal 2-30 Hooligan of the Seattle Yacht Club today was named over-all winner, taking the Swiftsure Trophy and the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club Trophy for Division IV.

In the first hours of the race Saturday morning more than a quarter of the 1971 vessels were forced to quit.

Mauled by gale-force winds that whipped up angry tide rips, at least six boats lost their masts shortly after the race began, others suffered gear failure or were crippled with seasick crews.

Of the 44 boats that retired, 35 were in Swiftsure and the others, the 75½-mile Juan de Fuca.

LOSING SPARS

Among those losing their spars were two Buchan-built boats, John Buchan's Warrior and Lawrence Robinson's Gamin, both of Corinthian Yacht Club.

Swiftsure veteran, Joseph Williams' Norwester broke her water tank, George Clark's Nubian was damaged in a collision and Don Lawson's Cubara of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, her halyards.

Survivors of the punishing first hours of the race went on to face the usual ordeal in the night and early hours of Sunday. They flogged around in long, heavy swells, made sloppier by the lack of wind.

The first boat to reach the Swiftsure Bank and round the mark vessel, HMCS Fundy, was George Schubert's Pemaquid of the Seattle Yacht Club. She wins the Royal Canadian Trophy for the first boat rounding the outward mark and the Ocean Cement Co. Trophy for winner of Division 1.

It was a long haul home for the Swiftsure boats. Lack of wind altered the positions of the leaders continously, giving a decided advantage to the smaller, light-displacement boats.

She went over the line at 8:39 p.m. Sunday, being followed by Joe Pollack's Min-Sette of Rose City, Ore. and Pemaquid.

Veteran Royal Vancouver Yacht Club sailor Bonar Davis sailed a spectacular race in his Discovery 32 Hyak, designed by Vancouver marine architect Peter Hatfield, the man chosen to create Canada's entry in the next America's Cup.

He narrowly lost out to Hooligan for top place, coming second over-all and winning the Seattle Yacht Club Trophy for Division III.

Adventure In Juan de Fuca Race —See Page 17

Per Christoferseh, also of Royal Vancouver, repeated his trophy win of 1966, when he won his division in a Discovery 32. Sailing a C and C 45 this year, he ended fifth over-all and won the T. Eaton Company Trophy for Division II.

Winner of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club Trophy for Division IV was Don Brink's Tonic of the CYC, who came third over-all.

The first boat home and winner of IOR, Division I, in Juan de Fuca was D. S. Gibberd's Gypsy G of the West Vancouver Yacht Club. Gordie Hill's Ariki IV of the same club won the IOR, Division II trophy and the first boat in PHRF racing was Te-Pah, skippered by Roger Oldham of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association.

Preliminary Session Held For Victoria BNA Talks

A spokesman for Mr. Turner's office said the discussions were private and no communique should be expected at the conclusion, probably Tuesday.

Informants said the meeting was to canvass the views of the provinces on the possibility of agreeing in Victoria to a formula to amend the British North America Act of 1867 in Canada.

Prime Minister Trudeau and provincial premiers will meet in Victoria June 14 to continue the constitutional discussions. They last met here in February and tentatively agreed on a plan which they regarded as feasible for amending the BNA Act in Canada.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec was also in Ottawa today for talks with Mr. Trudeau.

'OUR KIND OF RACE' BECAME CONFUSED

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Aboard Frank Bush's tough Warrior class sloop Concubine we welcomed the stiff winds that damaged several boats and sent many more home with other ills in the first few hours of the 1971 Swiftsure.

"Nothing trivial, I hope," was the favorite joking remark we offered each time one of the competition fell back around us with gear or stomach failure. We were in reach of the leaders.

But the spectacular display of foam, spray and broken spars seen also by landward Swiftsure watchers Saturday morning was only an illusory introduction to about 30 more hours of the most demoralizing kind of weather a yacht racer encounters.

What looked like "our kind of weather" became a big, careless, confused slop the closer we came to the edge of the Pacific and the turning point on the Swiftsure Banks 75 miles west of Victoria.

The highlight of that long, deadly night was the few moments when a huge ocean liner, blazing with lights and luxury, swished past on its way to romantic ports of call, unaware of the woozy misery of six men in a small boat far below.

Otherwise, it was a matter of worrying over the throbbing, barely lit freighters that passed in every direction, and hoping that the time we gained on that first brisk windward leg was not being swallowed up completely by the quick light boats that can move in light airs.

When the dawn finally produced its great grey expanse, we still had some painfully slow miles to go to round Fundy, the minesweeper anchored on Swiftsure Bank, and it seemed that everywhere on the horizon we could see sails heating back down the strait.

Then as the Pacific rollers built up over the 19-fathom shallows, we had a hair-raising gibe and sail change around the Fundy which was one moment towering above us, and the next moment eye-to-eye at bridge level.

When the spinnaker was set for an 18-hour run home, we hoped hopelessly for a brisk

Q. AND A.

If a Mini-Skirt Why Not a Beard?

Being our Questions and Answers Department to begin the week's work:

Question: "Would you please write an indignant column on the double standard that employers apply to young men and young women? My son was refused a position in the firm of (name withheld) because he would not shave his beard, cut his hair and wear the more conservative clothes the manager insisted upon. But when I went to complain I found the office filled with girls in mini-skirts so ridiculously short and revealing that they would surely offend any older customer. How can a man accept the current styles for girls and yet not for boys?"

Answer: I'm for everybody wearing exactly what they want to wear or nothing at all if that's their choice, but in this case the manager has a strong case for what you call the double standard. Your son would be in a selling role meeting people who could be turned off by his appearance. If a girl were to be taken on in a similar capacity, rather than just in the office, he says, he wouldn't accept the mini-skirt either. Rightly or wrongly, it's his privilege to insist on conformity and your son's privilege to tell him where to go.

Question: "How many readers of your paper, I wonder, are aware of the preferential treatment given to Americans by the Canadian Pacific ferry system? A Victorian going to Seattle by CP ferry is forced to pay out for two nights at a hotel or motel while the American visitor may enjoy a day trip to Victoria. Why can't they alternate the schedule to give us Canadians a break?"

Answer: You have a point there. The ferry to Seattle leaves here at 5:30 p.m., gets there at 9:30 p.m. Unless you plan to return the next morning at 8:30 it does, indeed, mean two nights in Seattle. The U.S. visitor, on the other hand, may have five hours in Victoria and be back in Seattle the same night. But it would seem to be entirely a matter of economics since U.S. tourists vastly outnumber the Victorian visitors to Seattle and we want to be nice to them to get their lovely money. Your best bet would be Pacific Western's direct, 35-minute flight to Seattle leaving here at 8:45 a.m. and leaving Seattle at 8:45 p.m.

Question: My wife and I were recently guests aboard HMCS Provider, the supply vessel. We were surprised that all orders were given in English though many of the crew are French-Canadians. As one who espouses the cause of bilingualism would you not think that the armed forces would be the first to adopt such a policy?"

Answer: In fact, the navy does have a policy of bilingualism that seems reasonable and realistic. I'm told that most daily messages are now written in English and French, but that the number of Quebecois serving on this coast wouldn't justify having both languages used in verbal orders. It would be impractical, for example, in emergency situations. The situation is reversed aboard the Halifax-based destroyer-escort HMCS Ottawa. Aboard Ottawa all verbal commands are given in French, even by those whose first language is English. Where it really counts—in menus—all navy ships are using both languages.

Question: "As potential foster parents my husband and I found your two recent articles alternately inviting and frightening. How can we learn more about it?"

Answer: You can start with a call to Mrs. B. Levitz Packford, supervisor of the Family and Children's Service in Victoria, who will doubtless invite you to the regular "open house" meetings held for prospective foster parents. There you'll hear all about it, the good and the bad, from social workers, foster parents and, occasionally, parents whose children are in foster homes. The starting-point requirement is that you be a married couple of any age over 25, preferably with at least one child of your own.

If you go on from there—and many do not—social workers within the agency may spend up to six or eight weeks of pre-placement "home study," sizing up your home life and other qualifications. The decision on the age and sex of a foster child will be made mutually by you and the social worker. You'll know everything about the history of the child and he or she, in turn, will make visits to your home before any kind of decision is made.

Question: "In one of your recent articles you talk of Torontonians 'crouched in their miserable apartments in the concrete canyons of the terrible city.' As a former Torontonian I must object to this unflattering and unfair picture. What turned you against that exciting, cosmopolitan city?"

Answer: And, why, dear sir, are you a former Torontonian if not for the same reasons that impelled my own escape? For many years, off and on, I worked in Toronto. My best friends live there. Culturally it makes Victoria seem like Podunk Junction. But the city itself is built where no city should properly be built. It is an enormous, rogue-elephant sprawl of unmitigated ugliness. Its winters are as unbearably cold as its summers are unbearably hot. Only a man in single-minded search of fame or fortune could possibly endure it. I offer a little prayer each morning to whatever gods gave me the courage to leave.

Question: "Just to settle a little bet between my husband and me would you tell us if that was really you near Clover Point at noon the other day flying a kite? I say it was. My husband says it is something no newspaperman would ever do. Your answer can win me a dinner out."

Answer: Bon appetit, my dear. I keep a kite in the back seat of my car and fly it whenever breeze and time will allow. It cost 49 cents and is the best escape I know from life's little irritations. You can't beat Clover Point on a brisk day.

The point was nicely made not long ago by some anonymous, middle-aged editorial writer for the Ottawa Journal who put it this way:

"Kites are like the human spirit, trying to surmount this world of care and strife. They soar into the blue sky, they dip and they glide. They are free. Or so they seem. But kites also falter, and even plunge in precipitous fall. Some get entangled in trees and overhead wires. Even when they return safely, it is to this terribly real world. For they must return. So it is with even the freest human spirit, and fortunate is he who can avoid the entanglements when returning. Anyone who flew a kite when young always felt this subconsciously. The kite at the end of that string in hand was yourself, flying free and high. With this in mind we over-thirties hesitantly offer this advice to youngsters: 'Make some adult happy today. If you see one watching you fly a kite, let him hold it for a minute'."

CRITICISM OF PARTRIDGE RESENTED

Grads Walk Out on Valedictorian

Faculty Member Leads Exodus

By BRIAN BUTTERS

A valedictory address critical of University of Victoria president Bruce J. Partridge and his policies caused about half of the graduates and spectators at Saturday's convocation ceremonies to walk out in protest.

★

The valedictory, given by Denis Johnston, a graduating mathematics student, criticized the university's decision to not renew the contracts of three popular professors.

And when he finished, the remaining graduates gave him a standing ovation.

At first, it appeared that the contract dispute, which has disrupted the campus for the last year, would not be mentioned at the convocation, except for a passing reference by Chancellor Roderick Haig-Brown in his welcoming address.

Further Details On Page 17

He spoke of the "anger and frustration" which students felt at the forcing-out of the three teachers — Drs. William Goede, Dr. Tikam Jain and Toby Graff.

"Most students don't give a damn who is playing political games in the Student Union building," Johnston said, "but they do care who is standing in front of their classrooms."

"It is the very essence of our university experience."

"Anyone who thinks that Goede, Graff and Jain can be easily replaced has been misled," he said. "Anyone who thinks they have been treated with respect has been misled."

The mass exodus from Memorial Arena, where convocation was held, was started by associated professor Kathleen Christie, who rose from her seat on the guest platform and walked down the centre aisle past the seated graduates and out of the building. A smattering of applause followed her.

Mrs. Christie was the mace-bearer of the convocation.

ONE QUESTION

He said he had one question to ask of arts and science dean John Climenhaga, whose field of study is physics, and Partridge, who studied physics and law.

"What do either of you know about the teaching of English?" he asked.

He was referring to the case of Goede, an English professor whose recommendation for tenure had been denied first by Climenhaga and then by Partridge.

Johnson said there were "several dozen faculty members who could have been treated in this way" without anyone minding and said that of the 13 professors who earlier this year faced non-renewal of contracts, most were outstanding teachers in terms of teaching effectiveness and scholarship.

Johnston said students now "doubted the competence of an administration which would make them leave."

He outlined the history of the cases of Graff, Goede and Jain amid murmers and shuffling from many of the spectators, who numbered about 2,500.

'WE MOURN'

He said, "Bill Goede is out, and we mourn, not for Bill Goede but for the university because a man like this had to go when he did not want to."

At this point several graduates rose and walked out and were followed by more, as well as some of the spectators. Johnston continued speaking until more graduates, in dozens now, walked out with proportionate numbers of spectators.

Finally only about 300 of the 550 graduates remained in the arena with about 2,000 spectators. Of those graduates who stayed, the majority were from the faculty of arts, while science and education students made up most of the group who walked out.

Johnston, who had resolutely stuck to his speece through the mass exit, finally said:

"But I'm afraid I've gotten off the track. I'm sorry that people thought my comments were not germane to a university convocation."

Johnston said after the ceremonies his speech had been taken in a manner in which it was not intended.

VISIBLY SHAKEN

Visible shaken by the walkout, he said, "If it was taken that way I could be accused of a breach of taste. But it wasn't intended that way."

Johnston said he had cut out the most offensive parts of his speech because of the occasion.

"Didn't you see me doodling up on the stage?" he asked. So he was even more surprised when the graduates and spectators walked out.

Partridge said after the convocation:

"I feel it would be discreet not to comment at this time."

He said the actions of the students who walked out were sufficient comment for him.

Several students came by to congratulate Johnston.

"Way to go, Denis," said one, and another: "You were great!"

But one student commented that convocation was not the time for the remarks Johnston made.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing for too many people to do that," he said.

As if the experience of the walkout was not enough for Johnston, he found he had to make a return trip to the arena. He had left his diploma on the platform.

Speaker Deplores 'Shut Off Minds'

"I said in my speech, 'A university is to teach people to think.' In view of this belief, it seemed sadly inappropriate that so many graduates could shut off their minds at a ceremony commemorating their university experience," Johnston said.

"It shocked me that so many graduates reacted when they should have thought.

"They were, in effect, demonstrating that they had brains, but didn't have the backbone to use them."

Johnston said, "I am idealistic enough to believe that one's convictions shouldn't change with the time of day. For me to have stood up there and pretended that the whole tenure controversy hadn't happened would have been terribly hypocritical and dishonest."

'NON-POLITICAL'

"If the people who walked out had listened to and thought about what I was saying, they would have realized that I didn't say anything that hasn't been thoroughly established as fact. I made no personal remarks, except in praising certain teachers; in my opinion, the text of my speech was almost entirely non-political and non-controversial," he said.

"When I was elected valedictorian, the hassle was in its embryonic stages, and I had no way of knowing it would develop the way it did, with CAUT censure and all. Having assumed the responsibility of valedictorian, however, I couldn't cop out when my turn came to speak up."

Johnston had a comment on the action of associate professor Kathleen Christie, who initiated the mass walkout.

REPUDIATION

Johnston said, "I think that if she hadn't made such a production of leaving, the students would not have acted the way they did. It points up the effects of students looking up to their teachers. She was the leader."

Prof. Christie said today the only regret she had about her action was that she did not fulfill her role as mace-bearer in the ceremonies. She walked out before the official procession of dignitaries filed out of the arena.

The honor of mace-bearer was conferred on her because she is retiring this year after 21 years on the faculty.

"Someone had to express a repudiation of an action which was completely out of place. To me the convocation is a very significant and solemn ceremony and no place for a political forum, especially of that vicious nature," she said.

NOT THE FIRST

"By sitting still, even impassively, I felt I would condone what this young man was doing. I did it without any premeditation. It was an action which just seemed to be necessary," she said.

"I didn't expect anyone to follow me."

Mrs. Christie pointed out that she was not in fact the first person to walk out in protest. She said that Professor Sidney Pettit and Dr. Herta Hartmannsienn had been the first to leave the faculty platform, but that they went out a side exit.

"I was the first visible one to walk out," she said.

The Alma Mater Society steering committee had this comment on the convocation walkout:

"It is probably true that for as long as Partridge remains at Uvic this sort of thing will continue to happen. Neither Partridge nor the board can get away from the fact that the University Act requires that first among the duties of the president is that he be 'the senior academic and administrative officer of the university'."

"It is now quite evident that the majority of faculty and students have no confidence in his performance in either role."

Partridge said today he was sorry the valedictory may have ruined the occasion for some of the graduates and their families.

"But I was interested to see the depth of feeling students, faculty and members of the audience exhibited by their walkout," he said.

Campsite Bid In Royal Oak Sparks Protest

A petition objecting to rezoning of 58 acres at Royal Oak for camper and trailer use charges that provisions of a 1965 Pollution Control Board permit have not been complied with.

The charges were denied by two of the owners of the Royal Oak Motel property, Joseph Isherwood and Saanich Ald. Foster Isherwood.

A rezoning application submitted by Joseph Isherwood to change the land use to include campers and trailers with hotel, motel and ancillary uses will be considered by Saanich council at a public hearing tonight at 7:30 in the municipal hall.

The petition said spray irrigation facilities have not been constructed and for at least a month this year the lower drains of each holding pond were open, allowing virtually untreated sewage to drain off towards Colquitz Creek.

Foster Isherwood, who has excused himself from council consideration of the issue because he and his brothers own the land, said today it is true the spray irrigation has not been constructed. But this was a requirement for a 100-room hotel "and we only have a 30-room motel." He said the facilities will be built when they have to be.

On the open drains, Joseph Isherwood said "we had a broken line" and it was not a month but a week and a half which was involved. He also said there was a "slight sloughing" in the system which was cleared out "but there was only rain water there."

He said that adding camper and trailer use to the sewage system would have to be cleared with the Pollution Control Board and the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, the two principal agencies involved in these matters.

He also said the campers and trailers would be a summer-time use only, there would be no permanent installations such as mobile homes, the area to be used is screened by trees and would not be seen from the road.

Sewer Inadequacy Hinted

The petition also states:

● The Pollution Control Board permit "implies" that the authorized sewage system has sufficient capacity for the motel complex and is not designed for additional camper and trailer area.

(Isherwood replied that once additional facilities are put in, extra capacity will be built. "It can be done.")

● The rezoning application appears to include the 12 acres required by the pollution permit to be set aside for spray irrigation.

(Isherwood said there would be no trailers on the 12 acres because the permit would not allow this.)

● The camper and trailer site involves a larger sewage system and priority should be given to areas which will have residential buildings rather than "to areas for transients."

● There is a "probability" that an access driveway will be constructed to Pipeline Road.

(Isherwood said "no one says so.")

● Construction of a camper and trailer area next door to Beaver Lake Park will increase the already extensive use of the park.

("I thought parks were to be used. That's what we have them for," replied Foster Isherwood.)

● The proposed use will increase police and traffic problems and involve the municipality in more expense.

One of the petition organizers, Dr. Mare Bell, 4651 Pipeline, said he hopes many questions will be answered at the public hearing "and hopefully council will refer it to committee for further study and/or preferably to the Capital Regional District for detailed study and recommendation."

The regional district owns Elk-Beaver Lake park.

"None of us is against encouraging tourists to come to Victoria for pleasure. We all benefit from this.

"The question is where to put them and how best to encourage them without making local residents suffer in the process of have to give up some of their own potentially valuable recreational and greenbelt area to accommodate them," he said.

Saanich council agreed to hold a public hearing after favorable recommendations from its Advisory Planning Commission and planning department.

BEAVER LAKE PARK

Access to Be Examined

The senior traffic engineer at the provincial highways department, John Harding, will take a look at access problems at the entrance to Beaver Lake Park in Saanich.

This was confirmed today by a spokesman for the department, which is rebuilding Patricia Bay Highway along the Saanich Peninsula.

The problem, which confronts motorists proceeding from the urban area to the park is that a double white line makes it illegal to turn left into the park. Even if it were legal, such a turn from the one north-bound lane at that point would pose problems of potential traffic delays and rear-end collisions.

The alternative for motirsts is to drive further north, turn on to a residential street, turn around and come south on the highway.

The existing problem is a temporary one until the new highway is completed just to the east. This is expected to be in two months, when the present highway will become a frontage road.

Alf Petersen, owner of Wooded Wonderland at the park entrance, said today there will be a serious accident or a traffic pileup "or both" unless something is done.

BUSIEST PERIOD

The coming two months, he said, will be in the busiest period of the year. Seventy per cent of Wooded Wonderland's traffic comes from the south and "only one of every 10 people going to Beaver Lake Park" goes to Wooded Wonderland.

He suggested warning sings of an approaching left-hand turn be posted and carry the double north-bound lanes an extra 300 to 400 feet to allow a car to have a left-turn bay.

Ask The Times

Q. Who pays for the transportation and housing of the American bands that participate in the May 24th parade?
L.D.

A. The bands pay all costs themselves. Members raise money through fund-raising campaigns such as car washes, pancake bakes.

Q. Is there an organization in Canada which handles complaints about defective automobiles?—E. G.

A. Yes. Write to the Automobile Protection Association, 292 St. Joseph's Boulevard West, Montreal.

Q. Could you please give me the personal mailing address of Bob Dylan and Joan Baez?

A. The only available mailing addresses are their offices. Bob Dylan's may be reached in care of Albert B. Grossman, 75 E. 55th N.Y., 1022; Joan Baez in care of Folklore Productions, 176 Federal Street, Boston, 02110.

Record Youth Invasion Due to Start Soon...

As summer days and temporary surcease from their studies approach, students across Canada are shouldering their knapsacks, ready to join the nation's permanent transients on highways from coast to coast.

Predictions are that the number of young people on the road, most of them with little or no money and no specific destination, will be greater than ever this year.

Across Canada, civic officials, social agencies and police departments are girding for the influx of transients and the inevitable confrontations which will result.

Victoria will greet more than its share of these casual tourists. However, this city's attitude toward the situation is in marked contrast to those of other areas.

Some of the reasons for this contrast were revealed recently, when two workers from Cool Aid, the city's youth self-help organization, and four police officers sat down for a frank discussion of youth, particularly transient youth, in this area.

Following are excerpts from the discussion, involving Inspector John Post and Staff Sergeant Charles Trueit of the Saanich force, Constables Dale Melin and Douglas Wilson of the Victoria department, Cool Aid workers Rick Stamford and Laurie Smith, and Victoria Daily Times reporter Neill Gaddes.

Melin: When we go to Cool Aid house, they're not trying to sneak us into one room or keep us in the hall . . . they take you anwhere you want to go. Anybody who wants to see the place they'll take you through . . .

Smith: We feel the relationships are excellent. We don't have any trouble at all. We tell that to a lot of like groups across Canada and they're usually fairly astounded at that. They say you don't have any trouble with police? They don't come around? They don's hassle you in the middle of the night? Occasionally they come around to look for a runaway but they never come to cause any trouble because we are open. That's really an important thing.

Smith: Well, the first thing if a kid comes and is 15 . . .

Wilson: They don't say they're 15 but you believe they're 15. And it turns out they're 15.

Smith: I have seen so many people through there I seem to be a fairly good judge of it — I think Charles (Barber) and Rick and the other people are . . . They say I'm 18 and you say wait a minute I don't believe that you're 18. Then generally if you talk to them usually you can explain . . . the reason for it if we get charged with harboring then we're going to get into a lot of trouble. And they're going to get into a lot of trouble, too.

Wilson: You send them on their way or what?

Smith: No. So he finally says I am 15 and a runaway from Moose Jaw. Okay, obviously we're not going to get him back to Moose Jaw right that instant. He's got to have a place to stay that night. So, you phone Children's Aid Society and talk to a worker there and get their approval . . . permission to stay overnight with us.

Wilson: So they know it?

Smith: They know he's there. And we set an appointment up in the morning and try to arrange some repatriation of whatever the service wants to do with him . . . or the kid wants to do. But, you know, we don't throw him in the back of a car and take him up there. We just say in the morning the Family and Children's Service is there if you want a ride okay if you don't okay. What they do then is up to them.

Melin: Family and Children's Service don't come down and get them?

Smith: No.

Times: So you alert the Family and Children's Service, they can stay there one night and they're not obligated to go to the appointment. You say it is there and you can speak to them if you want. What if they say I don't want to go? I want to stay another night? Or we want to stay three nights in Victoria?

Smith: Well, they can't.

Times: So you deal with them?

Smith: Yeah, you're here for the night with the blessings of the Family and Children's Service and if you want something else to happen, if you want to go home or you want to stay here another night, then you better get out there and go for your appointment tomorrow morning or forget it.

Post: Do you feel, for instance, when a kid knocks on your door at Cool Aid . . . is he more or less surrendering? He knocks at your door and say look I'm 15 . . . are you sort of the last resort?

Smith: Yeah, sometimes . . . You run out of places to crash, you don't have any money anymore, you're tired, you don't want to do it anymore . . . it's over, it's not fun and you want to go home . . . I remember when I ran away from home it was a lot easier for me to go and get my brother who was older and wasn't living at home and we went and it was just an easier thing to get back into the situation . . . sort of like the mediator. It's just an easier way to go home.

Post: So, in other words, if a kid wants to stay on the road Cool Aid should be the last place he comes to if he is a runaway?

Wilson: Some kids go there, I think, because they can get two or three nights lodging.

Smith: I'm sure we have kids that are only 15 but look 20.

Smith: People ask us all the time why can't you find my kid? Why can't you find this? And I usually show them the stack like that of runaways that have been reported in the last two years just through us alone.

Wilson: I'll bet you have got a lot of missing juveniles on your outstanding file. . . .

Smith: We do.

Post: It seems whenever parents talk to us there is always one question that comes up. That is "When they are in your establishment, is it the same as what it was in the armouries in Vancouver?" For instance one big happy family, boys and girls together, sleeping together and using of drugs. What is the stand of Cool Aid on that?

Smith: People always remember bad things so the thing they remember out of the newspapers . . . not any good hostel reports . . . all they remember is the fiasco at Jericho. The way we operate now and we always have is the boys and girls are segregated. Right now when we move into the new church it'll be boys in the gymnasium, girls in the old part of the church.

No access at all . . . and completely separate toilet facilities in the same building.

The way we are running now the boys stay at St. John which is the corner of Balmoral and Quadra and the girls stay at our house which is 953 Balmoral, a third of the way up the block. The only time any of them mix is during dinnertime . . . lunch or dinner.

Smith: About the dope. We have three rules; we won't tolerate drugs, alcohol or sex. And sex is pretty hard because the boys and girls are half a block away.

Stamford: One time — I remember that time we had a couple of faggots in there . . . only time . . . slip of the rules . . . they snuck in.

Wilson: Do they have a worker staying with the girls?

Smith: At the house there are three of us — Charles Barber lives there, I live there on the top floor with an office and downstairs we have a girl working for us, Kathy Sharkey, a university student. She lives there and the girls sleep in the front part of the house . . . She sleeps right down there and so she answers the door and sort of is there and keeps control.

Smith: It's only happened once that we know of.

Melin: Did you take it away from him or what did you do?

Smith: It happened during a free clinic and it's the only time in three years. We just threw him out. Those three rules are unbreakable . . . once they're broken that's out forever. Middle of the night, 10 feet of snow, it's goodbye. If we tolerated that for one second we'd close down like that.

Stamford: We got these signs up all over the place and they know why we don't want to allow it. Therefore, if they are breaking it, they don't have much respect for us.

Wilson: How old will you accept people?

Smith: Anybody.

Wilson: In other words, if a 50-year-old guy wanders in he can stay there overnight? It's not limited to young people?

Smith: It's just anybody that needs help. A lot of times the Salvation Army refer people right to us. A guy will go there who is a little under the weather or for reasons they won't let him in . . . in some cases they have a certain program and they have to stick to it. Sometimes they come at dinnertime and they'll notice that most of the people are fairly young and feel uncomfortable. They'll eat something and go away.

Smith: Yeah, a lot of them are anti-Cood Aid never mind anti-police. I mean they're anti-us.

Melin: What would happen if Doug or I or the inspector or the staff-sergeant popped in one day? And I assume a few of your guests are performing . . . telling you . . . pig.

Stamford: I don't know what you'd do. You can't make rules . . .

Smith: It happened once . . . this young kid came late at night and we said how did you get here. Oh, the pigs drove me here. Here's this kid and he didn't even stop to think. It was just something that came out of him. And Charles (Barber) said well did the guy take you to jail.

Hospital Locals Merge

NEW WESTMINSTER — Essondale and Woodlands School employees who belong to the B.C. Government Employees' Union have merged into one local with a membership of 1,600.

The merger was approved during May at separate branch meetings. A statement issued by the union said it didn't make sense to have separate union groups representing large numbers of psychiatric aides, tradesmen and culinary staff doing the same work for the same employer in institutions so close together.

The Woodlands branch represented about 450 members who worked in the school for retarded children. The Essondale branch represented some 1,150 members working at the Riverview and Valleyview mental hospitals.

BEN FRANKLIN'S
UNUSUAL COPY

"TAKEN OUT OF A PEW in the Church some months since, a Common Prayer Book, bound in red gilt, and lettered D F (Deborah Franklin) on each cover. The who took it is desired to open it and read the eighth Commandment, and afterwards return it into the same Pew again, upon which no further Notice will be taken.

Hydro Strike 'Unavoidable'

Barrett Firmly In Saddle

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

"The unity of this convention indicates that this party for the first time in 35 years is united both psychologically and politically in a way that it represents a positive alternative to those foolish, wasteful and uneconomic policies centred around a small group of men whose homes are in Victoria," Barrett said following his re-election by acclamation as NDP leader.

Not only was Barrett re-elected without a fight, but he also won firm control of the party's executive, taking 12 out of 19 positions. The three-day convention ended Sunday at the University of British Columbia.

HAYNES DEFEATED

Several federation-backed candidates did win executive posts, but Haynes' defeat surprised even Barrett's supporters and left the labor leader solidly in the background of NDP internal politics for at least another year.

Haynes issued a repeated string of "no comments" when asked by reporters to discuss his defeat. The Waffle decided to censure Barrett, but this had more of a "sour grapes" tone than a policy statement against his views.

TWO SPEECHES

Barrett talked about the convention in political, rather than policy language. Like Haynes, he too stayed mostly in the background, speaking to the 430 delegates only twice, and then only for brief periods.

From a strictly political viewpoint, it was Barrett's convention. Now that the Waffle has censured him, no one will be able to call Barrett a radical. With Haynes in the background and a pro-Barrett slate running the executive, Barrett will be able to continue his task of

FORNAZZO, Sicily (AP)—Angry farmers on the slopes of Mount Etna complained today that the thousands of sightseers watching the eruption were doing more damage than the lava.

Crowds trampled the vineyards and climbed to vantage perches in the fruit trees to see the fiery spectacle.

The lava still was pouring down the mountain side on the 56th day of Etna's second worst eruption this century.

2,200 Linemen Poised

VANCOUVER (CP) —A strike by 2,200 B.C. Hydro linemen is unavoidable and it could be a long one, an official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said Sunday.

Labor Minister James Chabot said today that while he "views the situation with alarm," he would not use Bill 33 "at the present time."

The government's action will depend on whether the IBEW initiates a total walkout, Chabot said. He also said the labor department has no further plans to find a way of getting Hydro and the union back to the bargaining table.

Though he would set no time for a strike start, union negotiator Doug Cronk said:

STRIKE PLANS

"We have no choice now but to strike, and we're looking at one soon. When we start, our actions will be predicated on the support we have behind us (from other labor organizations)".

He said the electrician's union has strike plans all set

Census Called Sexist Oppression

MONTREAL (CP)—The federal government's 1971 census form is an insult to women and a prime example of "sexist oppression," says the Women's Action Movement of Montreal.

The movement is urging women and sympathetic men not to complete the form and to return it blank to Ottawa.

★ ★ ★

In a statement released today, the movement criticizes the section of the census form which defines the husband as head of the household.

Noting that the census does not include housework in unpaid hours worked "in the operation of a family business or farm," the statement said:

By PAT DUFOUR

In the toughest race since the first Swiftsure was sailed in 1930, one of the smallest boats has won the biggest trophy of them all.

On handicap, Tom O'Brien's Cal 2-30 Hooligan of the Seattle Yacht Club today was named over-all winner, taking the Swiftsure Trophy and the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club Trophy for Division IV.

In the first hours of the race Saturday morning more than a quarter of the 1971 vessels were forced to quit.

Mauled by gale-force winds that whipped up angry tide rips, at least six boats lost their masts shortly after the race began, others suffered gear failure or were crippled with seasick crews.

Of the 44 boats that retired, 35 were in Swiftsure and the others, the 75½-mile Juan de Fuca.

LOSING SPARS

Among those losing their spars were two Buchan-built boats, John Buchan's Warrior and Lawrence Robinson's Gamin, both of Corinthian Yacht Club.

Swiftsure veteran, Joseph Williams' Norwester broke her water tank, George Clark's Nubian was damaged in a collision and Don Lawson's Cubara of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, her halyards.

Survivors of the punishing first hours of the race went on to face the usual ordeal in the night and early hours of Sunday. They flogged around in long, heavy swells, made sloppier by the lack of wind.

The first boat to reach the Swiftsure Bank and round the mark vessel, HMCS Fundy, was George Schubert's Pemaquid of the Seattle Yacht Club. She wins the Royal Canadian Trophy for the first boat rounding the outward mark and the Ocean Cement Co. Trophy for winner of Division 1.

It was a long haul home for the Swiftsure boats. Lack of wind altered the positions of the leaders continously, giving a decided advantage to the smaller, light-displacement boats.

She went over the line at 8:39 p.m. Sunday, being followed by Joe Pollack's MinSette of Rose City, Ore. and Pemaquid.

Veteran Royal Vancouver Yacht Club sailor Bonar Davis sailed a spectacular race in his Discovery 32 Hyak, designed by Vancouver marine architect Peter Hatfield, the man chosen to create Canada's entry in the next America's Cup.

He narrowly lost out to Hooligan for top place, coming second over-all and winning the Seattle Yacht Club Trophy for Division III.

Adventure In Juan de Fuca Race —See Page 17

Per Christoffersen, also of Royal Vancouver, repeated his trophy win of 1966, when he won his division in a Discovery 32. Sailing a C and C 45 this year, he ended fifth over-all and won the T. Eaton Company Trophy for Division II.

Winner of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club Trophy for Division IV was Don Brink's Tonic of the CYC, who came third over-all.

The first boat home and winner of IOR, Division I, in Juan de Fuca was D. S. Gibberd's Gypsy G of the West Vancouver Yacht Club. Gordie Hill's Ariki IV of the same club won the IOR, Division II trophy and the first boat in PHRF racing was Te-Pah, skippered by Roger Oldham of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association.

Preliminary Session Held For Victoria BNA Talks

A spokesman for Mr. Turner's office said the discussions were private and no communique should be expected at the conclusion, probably Tuesday.

Informants said the meeting was to canvass the views of the provinces on the possibility of agreeing in Victoria to a formula to amend the British North America Act of 1867 in Canada.

Prime Minister Trudeau and provincial premiers will meet in Victoria June 14 to continue the constitutional discussions amending the BNA Act in Canada.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec was also in Ottawa today for talks with Mr. Trudeau.

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Aboard Frank Bush's tough Warrior class sloop Concubine we welcomed the stiff winds that damaged several boats and sent many more home with other ills in the first few hours of the 1971 Swiftsure.

"Nothing trivial, I hope," was the favorite joking remark we offered each time one of the competition fell back around us with gear or stomach failure. We were in reach of the leaders.

But the spectacular display of foam, spray and broken spars seen also by landward Swiftsure watchers Saturday morning was only an illusory introduction to about 30 more hours of the most demoralizing kind of weather a yacht racer encounters.

What looked like "our kind of weather" became a big, careless, confused slop the closer we came to the edge of the Pacific and the turning point on the Swiftsure Banks 75 miles west of Victoria.

The highlight of that long, deadly night was the few moments when a huge ocean liner, blazing with lights and luxury, swished past on its way to romantic ports of call, unaware of the woozy misery of six men in a small boat far below.

Otherwise, it was a matter of worrying over the throbbing, barely lit freighters that passed in every direction, and hoping that the time we gained on that first brisk windward leg was not being swallowed up completely by the quick light boats that can move in light airs.

When the dawn finally produced its great grey expanse, we still had some painfully slow miles to go to round Fundy, the mine sweeper anchored on Swiftsure Bank, and it seemed that everywhere on the horizon we could see sails beating back down the strait.

Then as the Pacific roller built up over the 19-fathom shallows, we had a hair raising jib and sail change around the Fundy which was one moment towering above us, and the next moment eye to eye at bridge level.

When the spinnaker was set for an 18-hour run home, we hoped hopelessly for a brisk
